SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File Nos. 31-567, 70-2234]

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in this city of Washington, D. C., on the 26th day of January A. D. 1951.

In the matter of Southern Natural Gas Company, File No. 70-2234; Equitable Securities Corporation, File No. 31-567.

On December 30, 1949, the Commission issued its Findings, Opinion, and Order approving the sale by Southern Natural Gas Company to Equitable Securities Corporation ("Equitable") of all the outstanding shares of common stock of Chattanooga Gas Company ("Chattanooga"). The Commission also granted Equitable an exemption as a holding company from the duties, obligations, and liabilities of the provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, subject to certain conditions, including the condition that Equitable dispose of its interest in Chattanooga within a period of 12 months from the date of acquisition unless such time is extended by order of the Commission after an appropriate application.

Equitable has filed an application and an amendment thereto, requesting the Commission to extend its exemption as a holding company under the act for a period of 6 months from January 31, 1951 to July 31, 1951. The record shows that arrangements were made for a public offering of its entire interest but that the underwriting group, prior to making a firm underwriting commitment, advised that they would be able to take only 400,000 shares leaving Equitable with the ownership of 195,000 shares or approximately 30 percent of the Chattanooga common stock. In addition, Equitable agreed with the underwriting group that the 195,000 shares retained by it would not be the subject of a public offering for a period of at least 90 days from the effective date of Chattanooga's Registration Statement, which date was December 22, 1950. Equitable states that it has no plans for the immediate sale of the remaining 195,000 shares. Equitable further states that its failure to dispose of its entire interest in the Chattanooga stock within the 12 month period from the date of acquisition was due to no fault of its own.

Equitable represents that so long as its exemption as a holding company is in effect Equitable will not vote said 195,000 shares of the common stock of Chattanooga at any election of the directors of the latter company and that during such period no officer or director of Equitable will serve as a director of Chattanooga.

The Commission having considered the application, as amended, of Equitable requesting an extension of an exemption as a holding company under the act, and being of the opinion that Equitable has shown a diligent but unsuccessful effort to dispose of its entire interest in Chattanooga within the 12 month period, as ordered by the Commission, and being of the further opinion that, under the circumstances of this case, an extension of a six months' period is appropriate in order to afford Equitable additional opportunity to dispose of its remaining interest in Chattanooga, and that the application, as amended, should be granted forthwith:

It is ordered, That the application, as amended, of Equitable with respect to an extension of its exemption as a holding company from the provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (File No. 31-567) for a period of six months or until July 31, 1951, be, and the same hereby is, granted forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions contained in Rule U-24, and subject further to the condition that Equitable give the Commission at least 10 days' notice of any proposed sale of its stock interest in Chattanooga.

By the Commission.

[File No. 54-130]

INTERSTATE POWER CO. AND OGDEN CORP.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 26th day of January A. D. 1951.

By order dated June 30, 1949 (Holding Company Act Release No. 9202) the Commission approved a plan ("Compromise Plan") pursuant to section 11 (e) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") providing for the distribution of 944,961 escrowed shares of the $3.50 par value common stock of Interstate Power Company ("Interstate"), a registered holding company, together with approximately $1,050,000 of escrowed cash, among the holders of Interstate's formerly outstanding 6 percent Debentures due 1952 (or debenture escrow certificates issued in exchange therefor), the public holders of Interstate's formerly outstanding $6 and $7 preferred stock (or preferred escrow certificates issued in exchange therefor) and Ogden Corporation ("Ogden"), Interstate's former parent, as holder of Interstate's formerly outstanding 6 percent demand note and certain shares of Interstate's formerly outstanding preferred stocks. The Compromise Plan was the result of negotiations among, and was supported by, Ogden, a Committee for former preferred stockholders of Interstate ("Preferred Stockholders Committee"), and Philip D. Crockett (representing holders of approximately $2,000,000 principal amount of debenture escrow certificates), and was opposed by the "Colton Group" of preferred escrow certificate holders.

Following hearings before the United States District Court for the District of Delaware on the Commission's application for enforcement of the Compromise Plan, the Court entered an opinion holding that the Commission's approval of the Compromise Plan as fair and equitable was supported by evidence, and not contrary to law. Subsequently the Court entered a Memorandum allowing the Colton Group time to present to the Commission evidence of alleged changes in circumstances subsequent to Commission approval of the Compromise Plan. The Colton Group thereupon filed with the Commission a petition for hearing on such evidence. Pursuant to an order of the Court dated May 18, 1950, the Commission, by order dated June 8, 1950, directed that hearings in the matter be reconvened to receive evidence limited to "matters bearing upon the question whether there has been such a change in factors affecting the valuation of the escrowed Interstate common stock as to make the allocations proposed in the Compromise Plan no longer fair and equitable to the persons affected by it." At the same time, the Commission reserved jurisdiction, after completion of said hearing, "to submit to the Court a proposed order enforcing the Compromise Plan, or to take such other action in respect of the Compromise Plan, any proposed amendments thereto, or any alternative plan or plans, as the Commission may deem appropriate" (Holding Company Act Release No. 9910).

Pursuant to said order of the Commission, hearings were held, briefs were filed, and the Division of Public Utilities of the Commission filed a Statement of Views stating, among other things, that "the changes which have occurred since June 1949 in the factors affecting the valuation of the escrowed stock are such as to make the allocations proposed in the Compromise Plan no longer fair and equitable to the public holders of the preferred stock escrow certificates • • •." Thereafter a Committee for holders of debenture escrow certificates (the "Debenture Committee") was organized, and negotiations concerning possible adjustments to the Compromise Plan were held among all representatives of security holders participating in this proceeding.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with this Commission on behalf of Ogden, the Preferred Stockholders Committee, the Colton Group, Philip D. Crockett, and the Debenture Committee, setting forth, among other things, certain proposed adjustments of the allocations contained in the Compromise Plan. The Compromise Plan as adjusted by the terms and conditions set forth in said petition, will hereinafter be referred to as the "Adjusted Compromise Plan". The following table shows the allocations of the escrowed shares of Interstate common stock and cash proposed by the Adjusted Compromise Plan, compared to the allocations thereof pursuant to the original Compromise Plan, as of January 2, 1951.

[1] The basic cash allocations under the Compromise Plan were $73.50 per $1,000 debenture or an aggregate of $551,212 for the class, and the aggregate cash allocation to Ogden was $485,415—all subject to certain adjustments specified in the Compromise Plan. The cash amounts shown in the table reflect such adjustments as of Jan. 2, 1951. As of that date the total amount of escrowed cash was $1,200,000, as compared with $1,050,000 as of June 1948 when the Compromise Plan was formulated.

All distributions of stock and cash under the Adjusted Compromise Plan will be made by Chemical Bank and Trust Company ("Chemical") as Distribution Agent. No fractional shares will be issued under the Adjusted Compromise Plan. On or about the distribution date Chemical will sell the full shares estimated to represent the aggregate of fractional shares otherwise issuable, and persons entitled to fractional shares shall receive, in lieu thereof, their pro rata portion of the net proceeds of said sale.

The effective date of the Adjusted Compromise Plan will be the date of entry of an order of the United States District Court for the District of Delaware enforcing it. Chemical will fix a date for distribution of the escrowed stock and cash (the "payment date") to be as soon as practicable after the effective date. In the event that a dividend is paid on Interstate's common stock prior to the payment date and subsequent to the last payment of interest on the debenture escrow certificates, holders of debenture escrow certificates will receive cash equal to 6 percent per annum on principal amount from the last interest date to and including the date such dividend is paid. Holders of preferred escrow certificates will be entitled to receive all dividends, if any, paid by Interstate subsequent to March 20, 1951, on the shares allocated to them.

Ogden agrees to pay all fees and expenses of Chemical, as Distribution Agent, in respect of distributions made to all holders of, and persons entitled to, escrow certificates who present their securities to Chemical no later than 60 days after the payment date for the purpose of claiming their escrowed stock (and cash, if any). Holders who present their securities after said period of 60 days shall be required to pay out of the accumulated dividends, if any, to which they are entitled, the fees and expenses charged them by Chemical. To the extent that such charges to any holder shall exceed such accumulated dividends, Ogden agrees to pay the excess.

Ogden also agrees to pay the fees and expenses of all participants in the proceedings relating to the Adjusted Compromise Plan, and the formulations, adjustments, and consummation thereof, including fees and expenses, if any, relating to Interstate's reorganization of March 1948, as may be determined, allocated or ordered by the Commission. Ogden, however, reserves the right to urge upon the Commission that some or all of said fees and expenses shall be payable by Interstate.

Except as the provisions of the Compromise Plan are specifically affected by the terms and conditions contained in the petition herein, or are in conflict therewith and with any amendments thereto, the provisions of the Compromise Plan shall be deemed to be controlling in carrying out the Adjusted Compromise Plan, and any provisions of the Compromise Plan which are not so specifically affected shall be considered to remain in full force and effect.

Petitioners request that the Commission approve the Adjusted Compromise Plan and apply to the United States District Court for the District of Delaware for an order enforcing the terms and provisions thereof, in accordance with the provisions of section 11 (e) of the act.

The Debenture Committee's joinder in the petition is conditioned on the plan's becoming effective on or before March 20, 1951; and, in the event the plan does not become effective on or before June 30, 1951, Ogden reserves the right to apply to the Commission and the District Court for appropriate modification of the Adjusted Compromise Plan with respect to the fees and expenses of Chemical and such other matters as may be equitable.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than February 14, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., file a written request that he be heard by the Commission in this matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request, and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after February 14, 1951, the Adjusted Compromise Plan may be approved by the Commission under the applicable provisions of the act.

Notice is further given that in the event the Commission approves the Adjusted Compromise Plan, the Commission will apply to the United States District Court for the District of Delaware for an order enforcing the Adjusted Compromise Plan. NEW ENGLAND ELECTRIC SYSTEM AND SALEM GAS LIGHT CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 25th day of January A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that a joint application-declaration has been filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, by the New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company, and its subsidiary company, Salem Gas Light Company ("Salem"). The application-declaration designates sections 6, 7, 9 and 10 of the act and Rules U-23, U-24 and U-42 (b) (2) promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration, which is on file in the offices of this Commission, for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

Salem proposes to reduce the par value of its 45,353 shares of capital stock, aggregate par value $1,133,825, from $25 to $10 per share, and to transfer $680,295 representing such reduction from capital stock account to premium on capital stock account. Salem also proposes to issue and sell, for cash, 30,236 shares of additional capital stock, par value $10 per share, and to issue to its stockholders warrants to subscribe to such shares on the basis of 2/3ds of a new share for each share held. Salem also proposes to issue and sell $1,000,000 principal amount of 20-year First Mortgage Bonds, 3½ Percent Series, due 1970.

The proposed additional shares of capital stock will be offered to Salem's stockholders at a subscription price of $15 per share as determined by Salem's board of directors. Each warrant will expire on the 21st day following the date of mailing of the notices and warrants to stockholders and each warrant will indicate the number of new shares or the fraction of a new share to which the holder thereof is entitled to subscribe. No fractional shares will be issued, but fractional warrants may be combined.

NEES owns 42,138 shares (92.9 percent) of the present capital stock of Salem and will receive warrants to subscribe for 28,092 additional shares, the total subscription price therefor being $421,380. The minority public shareholders own 3,125 shares (7.1 percent) of such capital stock and will receive warrants to subscribe for an aggregate of 2,143⅓ shares, the total subscription price therefor being $32,145. Salem proposes to sell any shares unsubscribed for by its shareholders to NEES at the price of $15 per share, provided the same is authorized by the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts.

NEES proposes to exercise its right to subscribe to said 28,092 shares of capital stock of Salem and will offer to purchase from the minority stockholders at $15 per share their present holdings and any shares which they may acquire through the exercise of rights, such offer to remain open for a period of 60 days following the date of offering of Salem's additional capital stock. The total cost of minority shares to NEES, if all such shares are acquired, is expected to be not more than $80,370.

Salem proposes to sell the bonds to John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company under a First Mortgage Indenture and Deed of Trust which provides, among other things, that such bonds are secured by a direct first mortgage lien on substantially all of Salem's gas properties.

The proceeds of $453,540 from the sale of the proposed additional capital stock and the proceeds of $1,000,000 from the sale of the proposed First Mortgage Bonds are to be applied by Salem to the payment of (a) $350,000 face amount of 3 percent notes payable to NEES, (b) $100,000 non-interest bearing advances from NEES, (c) $800,000 face amount of 3½ percent notes payable to banks and (d) the balance estimated at $203,540 is to be applied to the cost of properly capitalizable extensions, enlargements and additions to plant and property.

Total expenses to be borne by Salem in connection with the reduction in par value of its capital stock the issue of 30,236 additional shares of capital stock and warrants representing rights to subscribe therefor and the issuance of said $1,000,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds are estimated at $13,300. Such estimate includes $5,000 for services rendered at the actual cost thereof by New England Power Service Company, an affiliated service company, and $1,000 for counsel for the purchasers of the Bonds. The cost to NEES for services to be rendered by said Service Company is estimated not to exceed $500.

The application-declaration indicates that the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts has jurisdiction over the transactions proposed by Salem, and that no State commission or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the transactions proposed by NEES.

The applicants-declarants request that the order of this Commission be made effective forthwith upon issuance.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than February 7, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request, and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after said date, said application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted or permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rules U-20 and U-100 thereof.

INTERSTATE POWER CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 26th day of January A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that a declaration and an amendment thereto has been filed with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") by Interstate Power Company ("Interstate"), a registered holding company and an operating public utility company. Declarant has designated sections 6 and 7 of the act as applicable to the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than February 14, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the reasons for such request, the nature of his interest and the issues of fact or law raised by said declaration, as filed or as amended, which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after February 14, 1951, said declaration, as filed or as amended, may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may exempt such transaction as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said declaration, as amended, which is on file in the offices of this Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which may be summarized as follows:

Interstate proposes to issue and sell at par on or before April 15, 1951, and on or before September 15, 1951, promissory notes in the aggregate amount of $2,500,000 and $2,000,000 respectively. Said notes, bearing an interest rate of 2¾ percent per annum and maturing 360 days from the date of the first borrowing, will be issued to The Chase National Bank of the City of New York and Manufacturers Trust Company, respectively, in equal amounts not to exceed $2,250,000 to each of said banks in accordance with the terms of a loan agreement dated January 9, 1951. The notes may be prepaid in whole or in part at any time without premium, however, if such prepayment is made from proceeds of any bank borrowing, a premium at the rate of 1 percent per annum on the principal amount so prepaid, calculated from the date of such prepayment to the stated maturity of the notes, will be payable.

Interstate requests the Commission to authorize, at this time, the issue and sale of only $2,500,000 aggregate principal amount of its 2¾ percent promissory notes as described above in equal amounts to the order of the two above named banks on or before April 15, 1951, and to reserve jurisdiction until some later date prior to September 15, 1951, with respect to the proposed issuance and sale of the additional $2,000,000 principal amount of its 2¾ percent promissory notes. Interstate makes the foregoing requests so that it may study the advisability of issuing additional common stock or other equity securities.

Declarant states that the proceeds of the notes will be applied toward the financing of the construction program of the declarant and will also be used to reimburse the company for funds already used to finance new construction. The expenses in connection with the proposed transaction are estimated by Interstate at $14,000, of which $3,500 represents estimated fees for legal services and $9,000 represents a commitment fee to be paid to the lending banks.

Declarant states that no Commission other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Declarant requests that the Commission enter its order as early as possible and before February 19, 1951, and that the Commission's order herein become effective upon the issuance thereof.

By the Commission.

State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committees established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of grapefruit, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions of this section effective not later than February 5, 1951. Shipments of grapefruit grown in the State of Florida, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since September 11, 1950, and will so continue until February 5, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to February 4 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on January 23; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulating, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit this regulation, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such grapefruit; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of grapefruit; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., February 5, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., February 12, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any grapefruit of any variety, grown in Regulation Area I, which do not grade at least U. S. No. 2;

The following regulations for the entry free of duty and import tax of articles of which metal is the component material of chief value, other than ores or concentrates or crude metal, imported to be used in remanufacture by melting are prescribed under section 2 of the act of March 13, 1942 (56 Stat. 171), as amended by Public Law 869, 81st Congress.[1]

Sec.
64.1 Scope of exemption; non-deposit of estimated duty.
64.2 Proof of intent; bond; proof of use; liquidation.
64.3 Foreign excess property.

AUTHORITY: §§ 64.1 to 64.3 issued under R. S. 251; 19 U. S. C. 66. Interprets or applies sec. 2, 56 Stat. 171, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1001 note.

§ 64.1 Scope of exemption; non-deposit of estimated duty. (a) Articles in chief value of metal (except ores, concentrates, and crude metal) imported to be used, and actually used, in remanufacture by melting shall be exempted from duty (including import tax), upon compliance with the provisions of §§ 64.2 and 64.3, if entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption on or after October 1, 1950, and before the close of June 30, 1951.

(b) Such articles shall likewise be exempt from duty if so entered or withdrawn before October 1, 1950, and the provisions of the said §§ 64.2 and 64.3 are complied with before the liquidation of the covering entry or withdrawal, or any other controlling decision or exac-

[1] • • • SECTION 1. (a) No duties or import taxes shall be levied, collected, or payable under the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, or under section 3425 of the Internal Revenue Code with respect to metal scrap, or relaying and rerolling rails.

(b) The word "scrap", as used in this Act, shall mean all ferrous and nonferrous materials and articles, of which ferrous or nonferrous metal is the component material of chief value, which are second-hand or waste or refuse, or are obsolete, defective or damaged, and which are fit only to be remanufactured.

SEC. 2. Articles of which metal is the component material of chief value, other than ores or concentrates or crude metal, imported to be used in remanufacture by melting, shall be accorded entry free of duty and import tax, upon submission of proof, under such regulations and within such time as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, that they have been used in remanufacture by melting: Provided, however, That nothing contained in the provisions of this section shall be construed to limit or restrict the exemption granted by section 1 of this Act.

tion, has become final and conclusive by reason of section 514, Tariff Act of 1930.

(c) In the case of articles entered or withdrawn before October 1, 1950, if the entry or withdrawal[2] has not been liquidated, and no other controlling decision or exaction has been made, and if claim is made by the importer in writing that the articles were imported to be used in remanufacture by melting, as provided for in section 2 of the act of March 13, 1942, as amended by Public Law 869, 81st Congress, liquidation shall be suspended pending proof of use or other disposition of the articles in accordance with § 64.2. If in such a case the entry or withdrawal has been liquidated, or other controlling decision or exaction has been made, action toward the collection of duty shall be suspended to allow compliance with § 64.2 if (1) a claim by the importer in writing has been made or shall be made that the articles were imported to be used in remanufacture by melting, and (2) a timely protest has been or shall be filed against the liquidation, decision, or exaction.

(d) No deposit of estimated duty shall be required upon the entry, or withdrawal, for consumption of articles within the purview of paragraph (a) of this section if the collector is satisfied at the time of entry or withdrawal by an affidavit of the importer that the merchandise was imported to be used in remanufacture by melting.

§ 64.2 Proof of intent; bond; proof of use; liquidation. Articles in chief value of metal, except ores, concentrates, and crude metal, imported to be used in remanufacture by melting shall be admitted free of duty (including import tax), upon compliance with the following conditions:

(a) There shall be filed in connection with the entry[2] an affidavit of the importer that the articles are to be used in remanufacture by melting. Where the articles have been entered prior to the promulgation of the regulations in this part, the foregoing affidavit may be filed at any time prior to liquidation or in connection with a timely protest, provided the declared intent to import the articles to be used in remanufacture by melting existed at the time of importation.

(b) If the articles are entered for consumption, there shall also be filed in connection with the entry a bond on customs Form 7551 or 7553. If the articles are entered for warehouse, the regular warehouse bond, customs Form 7555, shall be given and withdrawals shall be made on customs Form 7506. The liquidation of the consumption or warehouse entry shall be suspended pending proof of use or other disposition of the articles within the time hereinafter prescribed.

(c) Within 3 years from the date of entry (in the case of warehouse entries as well as consumption entries) the importer shall submit to the collector of customs at the port of entry an affidavit of the superintendent or manager of the plant at which the articles were used in remanufacture by melting, showing: (1) The name and location of the plant; (2) the entry number, date, and port of entry (if the affiant is not in possession of this information a reference to invoices, purchase orders, or other documents which will identify the shipment with the entry may be substituted); (3) the date or inclusive dates of the processing of the articles; and (4) a description of the processing in sufficient detail to enable the collector to determine whether such processing constituted a use in remanufacture by melting. In appropriate cases the processing of the articles covered by more than one entry may be included in one affidavit. The affidavit shall be based on adequate and carefully kept plant and import records, which shall be open at all times to customs agents or other employees of the Customs Service. The affidavit shall be in duplicate, one copy to be forwarded to the comptroller of customs.

(d) If satisfactory proof of use of the articles in remanufacture by melting is furnished within the prescribed time, the entry shall be liquidated without the assessment of duty on the articles covered by such proof. If such proof is not filed within 3 years from the date of entry, or the use does not warrant the classification claimed, the entry shall be liquidated without any exemption from duty under section 2 of the act of March 13, 1942, as amended.

§ 64.3 Foreign excess property. In the event that metal articles entered or withdrawn under the provisions of the regulations in this part are foreign excess property subject to the provisions of § 59.2 of this chapter (T. D. 51875), compliance with the provisions of §§ 64.1, 64.2 and 59.2, of this chapter, shall be required, except that satisfactory proof of use submitted in connection with either set of regulations may be accepted under the other.

[SEAL] FRANK DOW,
Commissioner of Customs.

Approved: January 26, 1951.

JOHN S. GRAHAM,
Acting Secretary of Treasury.

[F. R. Doc. 51-1682; Filed, Jan. 31, 1951; 4:03 p. m.]

[2] Public Law 869, 81st Congress, does not contemplate any liquidation of a warehouse withdrawal otherwise than as may be provided for in the general customs regulations.

SEC. 2. The amendment made by this act shall be effective as to merchandise entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption on or after the day following the date of the enactment of this act and before the close of June 30, 1951. It shall also be effective as to merchandise entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption before the period specified where the liquidation of the entry or withdrawal covering the merchandise, or the exaction or decision relating to the rate of duty applicable to the merchandise, has not become final by reason of section 514, Tariff Act of 1930.

NOTE: Section 2 of Public Law 869, 81st Congress applies to both sections 1 (a) and 2 of the act of March 13, 1942, as amended by said Public Law 869.

Therefore, a claim for free entry under section 2 of the act of March 13, 1942 (56 Stat. 171), as amended by Public Law 869, 81st Congress, supported by an affidavit of intent may be filed at any time prior to the liquidation of the entry or within the period during which a valid reliquidation may be completed.

TITLE 21—FOOD AND DRUGS

Chapter I—Food and Drug Administration, Federal Security Agency

PART 141—TESTS AND METHODS OF ASSAY FOR ANTIBIOTIC AND ANTIBIOTIC-CONTAINING DRUGS

PART 146—CERTIFICATION OF BATCHES OF ANTIBIOTIC AND ANTIBIOTIC-CONTAINING DRUGS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

By virtue of the authority vested in the Federal Security Administrator by the provisions of section 507 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (52 Stat. 1040, 1055, as amended by 59 Stat. 463, 61 Stat. 11, 63 Stat. 409; 21 U. S. C. and Sup., 357), the regulations for tests and methods of assay for antibiotic and antibiotic-containing drugs (21 CFR 141.1 et seq., and 1949 Supp.: 15 F. R. 9446) and certification of batches of antibiotic and antibiotic-containing drugs (21 CFR 146.1 et seq., and 1949 Supp.; 15 F. R. 9464), are amended as indicated below:

1. In § 141.1 (h), the headnote and first two sentences are amended to read as follows:

§ 141.1 Sodium penicillin, calcium penicillin, potassium penicillin; potency. • • •

(h) Assay by alternative methods. The potency of the sample may also be determined by the iodometric method as described in § 141.5 (d), or by the standard-curve technique, using a single dose of standard and unknown. In the case of the standard-curve technique, dilute the sample to be tested to 1.0 unit per milliliter (estimated) in 1 percent phosphate buffer pH 6.0. • • •

2. Section 141.5 (d) (2) is amended to read as follows:

§ 141.5 Sodium penicillin, calcium penicillin, potassium penicillin. • • •

(d) Heat stability. • • •

(2) Crystalline penicillin O. Proceed as directed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, except regard the difference in titers divided by 2.80 as the milligrams of penicillin O salt. Penicillin O does not show a loss of more than 10 percent of its original potency.

3. Part 141 is amended by adding the following new section:

§ 141.41 Penicillin-bacitracin troches—(a) Potency—(1) Penicillin content. Proceed as directed in § 141.12 (a). Its content of penicillin is satisfactory if it contains not less than 85 percent of the number of units per troche that it is represented to contain.

(2) Bacitracin content. Proceed as directed in § 141.403 (a), except that sufficient penicillinase is added to the solution under test to completely inactivate the penicillin present. Its content of bacitracin is satisfactory if it contains not less than 85 percent of the number of units per troche that it is represented to contain.

(b) Moisture. Proceed as directed in § 141.5 (a).

4. Section 141.301 Chloramphenicol is amended by deleting paragraph (g).

5. Part 141 is amended by adding the following new sections:

§ 141.303 Chloramphenicol ointment—(a) Potency. Proceed as directed in § 141.301 (a), except subparagraphs (8) and (9) thereof, and in lieu of the directions in subparagraph (4), prepare sample as follows: Accurately weigh approximately 1.0 gram of the ointment and place in blending jar containing 100 milliliters of 1-percent phosphate buffer at pH 6.0. Using a high-speed blender, blend the mixture for 2 minutes and make the proper estimated dilutions in 1-percent phosphate buffer at pH 6.0. The potency of chloramphenicol ointment is satisfactory if it contains not less than 85 percent of the number of milligrams per gram it is represented to contain.

§ 141.304 Chloramphenicol ophthalmic—(a) Potency. Proceed as directed in § 141.301 (a), except subparagraph (9) thereof. The potency of chloramphenicol ophthalmic is satisfactory if it contains not less than 85 percent of the number of milligrams it is represented to contain.

(b) pH. Proceed as directed in § 141.5 (b), using a solution prepared as directed in the labeling of the drug.

(Sec. 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U. S. C. 371. Interpret or apply sec. 507, 59 Stat. 463, as amended; 21 U. S. C. and Sup., 357)

6. Part 146 is amended by adding the following new section:

§ 146.60 Penicillin-bacitracin troches. (a) Penicillin-bacitracin troches conform to all requirements prescribed by § 146.30 for penicillin troches and are subject to all procedures prescribed by § 146.30 for penicillin troches, except that:

(1) Each troche shall contain not less than 50 units of bacitracin. The bacitracin used conforms to the standards prescribed by § 146.401 (a), except subparagraphs (1), (2), and (4) of that paragraph, but its potency is not less than 30 units per milligram.

(2) In lieu of the labeling prescribed for penicillin troches by § 146.30 (c) (1) (ii), each package shall bear on the outside wrapper or container and the immediate container the number of units of penicillin and the number of units of bacitracin in each troche of the batch.

(3) In addition to complying with the requirements of § 146.30 (d), a person who requests certification of a batch shall submit with his request a statement showing the batch mark and (unless it was previously submitted) the results and the date of the latest tests and assays of the bacitracin used in making the batch for potency, toxicity, moisture, and pH. He shall also submit in connection with his request a sample consisting of not less than 30 troches of such batch and (unless it was previously submitted) a sample consisting of 6 packages, each containing approximately equal portions of not less than 500 milligrams of the bacitracin used in making the batch, packaged in accordance with the requirements of § 146.401 (b).

(b) The fee for the services rendered with respect to each immediate container in the sample of bacitracin submitted in accordance with the requirements prescribed therefor by this section shall be $4.00.

Such solution has a pH of 7.3±0.2. The chloramphenicol used conforms to the requirements of § 146.301 (a), except subparagraphs (2), (4), and (5) of that paragraph. Each other ingredient used, if its name is recognized in the U. S. P. or N. F., conforms to the standards prescribed therefor by such official compendium.

(b) Packaging. The immediate container of chloramphenicol ophthalmic shall be a tight container as defined by the U. S. P. Its closure shall be one through which a hypodermic needle cannot be introduced. The composition of the immediate container and closure shall be such as will not cause any change in the strength, quality, or purity of the contents beyond any limit therefor in applicable standards, except that minor changes so caused which are normal and unavoidable in good packaging, storage, and distribution practice shall be disregarded. Each such container shall contain not less than 25 milligrams and each may be packaged in combination with a container of the solvent, distilled water U. S. P.

(Sec. 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U. S. C. 371. Interpret or apply sec. 507, 59 Stat. 463, as amended; 21 U. S. C. and Sup., 357)

This order, which provides for the use of an iodometric method of assay for determining the potency of penicillin; a change in the method for determining the stability of crystalline penicillin O; deletion of the test for crystallinity of chloramphenicol; certification of three new antibiotic preparations, penicillin-bacitracin troches, chloramphenicol ointment, and chloramphenicol ophthalmic; and the optional use of a suitable and harmless preservative in the manufacture of aureomycin troches, shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER; since both the public and the affected industries will benefit by the earliest effective date, and I so find.

Notice and public procedure are not necessary prerequisites to the promulgation of this order, and I so find, since it was drawn in collaboration with interested members of the affected industries and since it would be against public interest to delay providing for the use of an iodometric method of assay for determining the potency of penicillin; a change in the method for determining the stability of crystalline penicillin O; deletion of the test for crystallinity of chloramphenicol; certification of three new antibiotic preparations, penicillin-bacitracin troches, chloramphenicol ointment, and chloramphenicol ophthalmic; and the optional use of a suitable and harmless preservative in the manufacture of aureomycin troches.

Dated: January 29, 1951.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-16, as amended Jan. 31, 1951]

PART 29—COPPER AND COPPER-BASE ALLOYS

SUBPART C—DISTRIBUTION OF COPPER AND COPPER-BASE ALLOY SCRAP

This order, as amended, is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives, including trade association representatives of all trades and industries affected, in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action, and because the order affects a large number of different trades and industries.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-16 dated December 18, 1950, as follows:

It amends §§ 29.52, 29.53, and 29.54. As amended, this order reads as follows:

Sec.
29.51 What this subpart does.
29.52 Definitions.
29.53 Acceptance and deliveries of scrap.
29.54 Restrictions on disposal of scrap.
29.55 Restrictions on inventory accumulations by scrap dealers.
29.56 Restrictions on toll agreements.
29.57 Specific authorizations and directions.
29.58 Applications for adjustment.
29.59 Records and reports.
29.60 Communications.
29.61 Violations.

AUTHORITY: §§ 29.51 to 29.61 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

§ 29.51 What this subpart does. The primary purpose of this subpart is to regulate the acceptance, delivery and distribution (whether on purchase, toll agreement or otherwise) of copper scrap and copper-base alloy scrap. The subpart also prohibits undue accumulations of such scrap.

§ 29.52 Definitions. As used in this subpart:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Copper" means unalloyed copper, including electrolytic copper, fire refined copper and all unalloyed copper in any form.

(c) "Copper-base alloy" means any alloy in the composition of which the percentage of copper metal equals or exceeds 40 percent by weight of the metallic content of the alloy. (Includes fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases, and all copper-base alloy in any form. It does not include alloyed gold produced in accordance with U. S. Commercial Standard C3 67-38).

(d) "Scrap" means all copper or copper-base alloy materials or objects, which are the waste or by-product of industrial fabrication, or which have been discarded on account of obsolescence, failure or other reason.

(e) "Copper wire mill product" means bare wire, insulated wire and cable, whatever the outer protective coverings may be, and uninsulated wire and cable, where the conductors are made from copper, copper-base alloy, or copper clad steel containing over 20 percent copper by weight. All copper wire mill products should be measured in terms of pounds of copper content.

(f) "Brass mill product" means sheet, including strip and plate; rod, including bars; wire, or tube, including pipe; made from copper or copper-base alloy. This does not include copper wire mill products.

(g) "Foundry product" means cast copper or copper-base alloy shapes and forms suitable for ultimate use without remelting, rolling, drawing, extruding or forging. (Includes the removal of gates, risers and sprues and sandblasting, tumbling or dipping, but excludes any further machining or processing.)

(h) "Brass mill scrap" means scrap which is the waste or by-product of industry fabrication or of the production of brass mill products and copper wire mill products. It also includes reclaimed scrap which, by processing, has become usable by brass mills. It does not include material which has been reclaimed for use and which is unsuitable for brass mill use because of contamination.

(i) "Other copper-base alloy scrap" means alloyed copper scrap other than brass mill scrap.

(j) "Other unalloyed copper scrap" means unalloyed copper scrap other than brass mill scrap.

(k) "Fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases" means fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases which have been manufactured from brass mill products.

§ 29.53 Acceptance of deliveries of scrap. Any person listed in Column A of the table set forth below may accept delivery of the scrap materials specified in the corresponding section of Column B of the table. Unless specifically authorized in writing by the National Production Authority, deliveries of any such scrap materials shall not be made to or accepted by any person except as permitted by this section. Accordingly, any person who in his own operations generates scrap, but who does not produce copper raw materials, may not accept any of the scrap materials specified in Column B unless he qualifies as a "Miscellaneous Producer" as listed in Column A.

Column A	Column B
1. Scrap Dealer—Any person regularly engaged in the business of buying and selling scrap, but who does not melt such scrap.	1. Other unalloyed copper scrap; other copper-base alloy scrap; brass mill scrap; fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases, both contaminated and uncontaminated.
2. Refiner—Any person who produces unalloyed copper. This includes any person who converts copper or copper-base alloy scrap into refined copper or other usable forms of copper.	2. Other unalloyed copper scrap; other copper-base alloy scrap; contaminated fired or demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases not usable by a brass mill.
3. Brass Mill—Any person who produces brass mill products, brass mill castings, or intermediate shapes.	3. Brass mill scrap; uncontaminated fired or demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases.
4. Brass and Bronze Foundry—Any person who produces foundry copper or copper-base alloy products.	4. Other unalloyed scrap; other copper-base alloy scrap; contaminated fired or demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases not usable by a brass mill.
5. Ingot Maker—Any person who produces copper-base alloy ingot for delivery as such.	5. Other unalloyed scrap; other copper-base alloy scrap; contaminated fired or demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases not usable by a brass mill.
6. Miscellaneous Producer—Any person, not listed above, who requires copper raw materials in his regular production operation, such as operators of chemical plants, iron foundries, aluminum foundries, etc.	6. Other unalloyed scrap; other copper-base alloy scrap.

§ 29.54 Restrictions on disposal of scrap. (a) No person, other than one who is in the business of producing copper raw materials (such as refineries, ingot makers, copper wire mills, brass mills or foundries) or who qualifies as a "Miscellaneous Producer" as listed in Column A under § 29.53, shall melt or process any scrap generated in his plant through fabrication or accumulated in his operations through obsolescence, except as specifically authorized in writing by the National Production Authority, nor shall he dispose of such materials in any way other than by delivery to a person authorized by this subpart to accept such delivery.

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section will not apply to any establishment of the United States Army, Navy or Air Force such as arsenals, navy yards, gun factories and depots.

(c) Nothing contained in this subpart shall prohibit any public utility from using in its own operation copper wire or cable which has become scrap by obsolescence.

§ 29.55 Restrictions on inventory accumulations. (a) No person who generates scrap in his operations through fabrication, manufacture or obsolescence shall accumulate excessive inventories of scrap. Such excessive inventories may be subject to requisition, under certain circumstances, as provided in section 201 (a) of Title II of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

(b) No scrap dealer shall accept delivery of any form of scrap, defined in § 29.52, if his total inventory of such scrap (including inventory not physically located in the dealer's yard or plant) is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of his total deliveries of such scrap by weight during the first six months of 1950, divided by three.

§ 29.56 Restrictions on toll agreements. (a) Commencing on December 18, 1950, and unless the person delivering or owning the scrap, or the person for whose benefit the conversion, remelting, or other processing of the scrap will be effected, has received the approval of the National Production Authority, no person shall deliver scrap, and no person shall accept same, for converting, remelting or other processing into electrolytic or fire refined copper under any existing or future toll agreement, conversion agreement or other arrangement by which title to the scrap remains vested in the person delivering or owning the scrap, or pursuant to which unalloyed copper in any quantities, equivalent or otherwise, is to be returned to the person delivering or owning the scrap. The provisions of this paragraph will apply with equal effect to any agency relationship which would result in a toll arrangement hereinabove described.

(b) Persons requesting such approval shall file with the National Production Authority a letter setting forth: the names and addresses of the parties to any existing or proposed toll or conversion agreement; the kind, grade and form of the scrap involved; the tonnage of the scrap and the estimated tonnage of the electrolytic or fire refined copper resulting; the estimated rate and dates of delivery of such copper; the length of time such agreement or other similar agreement between the same parties has been in force; the duration of the agreement; the purpose for which such copper is to be used; and such other information as the applicant may wish to submit.

§ 29.57 Authorizations and directives. The National Production Authority may issue authorizations or directives from time to time with respect to the delivery, disposal and conversion of scrap. Such authorizations and directives shall be complied with by the recipients thereof, unless otherwise directed by the National Production Authority.

§ 29.58 Applications for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this subpart may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that any provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this subpart, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing, shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

§ 29.59 Records and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this subpart shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this subpart have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this subpart shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Persons subject to this subpart shall make such records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

§ 29.60 Communications. All communications concerning this subpart shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–16.

§ 29.61 Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this subpart or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority in the course of operation under this subpart is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority on allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this subpart have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act.

This subpart as amended shall take effect on January 31, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Acting Administrator.

EFFECTIVE BEGINNING DATES FOR PAYMENT OF BENEFITS AND EFFECTIVE DATE OF INCREASE IN RATE OF SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCES ON ACCOUNT OF DEPENDENCY

1. In § 21.100, the title and paragraphs (b) and (e) are amended to read as follows:

§ 21.100 Effective beginning dates for payment of benefits. * * *

(b) The beginning date for payment of benefits will be authorized effective as of the date of receipt of claim, or the date of entrance or reentrance into training as certified by the institution, or the date of approval of the institution, course, or establishment by the appropriate agency of the State or by the Veterans' Administration, or the date the institution applied to the State agency for approval, whichever is the later.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[7 CFR, Part 911]

[Docket No. AO-215]

HANDLING OF MILK IN SUBURBAN ST. LOUIS, MO., MARKETING AREA

FINDINGS AND DETERMINATIONS ON RESULTS OF REFERENDUM ON PROPOSED MARKETING ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at East St. Louis, Illinois, on February 23 and 24 and February 27 to March 3, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 327), upon a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order, regulating the handling of milk in the Suburban St. Louis, Missouri, marketing area. The recommended decision (15 F. R. 7317), of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, and the decision (16 F. R. 163), of the Secretary of Agriculture, setting forth a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order as the appropriate and detailed means for effectuating the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on November 21, 1950 and January 6, 1951, respectively. The Secretary also issued an order (16 F. R. 179) directing that a referendum be conducted among producers to determine whether the requisite percentage of such producers favor the issuance of the proposed order.

Of the three cooperative associations of producers that voted in the referendum, two were not in favor of the issuance of the proposed order regulating the handling of milk in the Suburban St. Louis, Missouri, marketing area. The ballot cast by one of these associations for its members as a group is not valid, since it has been found that the indicia of membership specified in the cooperative by-laws have never been executed. The results should not be affected by this legal technicality. Since the Board of Directors of the aforementioned cooperative association and the Board of Directors of an association empowered to vote for its members did not favor issuance of the proposed order for the Suburban St. Louis, Missouri, milk marketing area, it is determined that the proposed order set forth in the Secretary's decision of January 6, 1951 (16 F. R. 168) will not tend to effectuate the purpose of the act, and therefore will not be issued or made effective.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 30th day of January 1951.

[SEAL] C. J. MCCORMICK, Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

[7 CFR, Part 916]

HANDLING OF MILK IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS MARKETING AREA

FINDINGS AND DETERMINATIONS ON RESULTS OF REFERENDUM ON PROPOSED MARKETING ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Murphysboro, Illinois, oh March 7-11, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 800), upon a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order, regulating the handling of milk in the Southern Illinois marketing area. The recommended decision (15 F. R. 7327), of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, and the decision (16 F. R. 179), of the Secretary of Agriculture, setting forth a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed order as the appropriate and detailed means for effectuating the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on November 1, 1950, and January 6, 1951, respectively. The Secretary also issued an order (16 F. R. 191), directing that a referendum be conducted among producers to determine whether the requisite percentage of such producers favor the issuance of the proposed order.

It is hereby found and determined, on the basis of the results of the referendum conducted pursuant to the aforesaid referendum order, that issuance of the proposed order regulating the handling of milk in the Southern Illinois marketing area, is not favored by the requisite percentage of producers voting in the aforesaid referendum.

It is hereby further determined that the proposed order set forth in the Secretary's decision of January 6, 1951 (16 F. R. 179), will not be issued or made effective because of the failure of producers to approve or favor its issuance by the requisite percentage of producers voting in the referendum conducted among such producers.

Done at Washington, D. C. this 30th day of January 1951.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

[14 CFR, Part 22]

PILOT CERTIFICATE REQUIREMENTS FOR HOT AIR BALLOONS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to authority delegated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Bureau of Safety Regulation, notice is hereby given that the Bureau will propose to the Board amendment of Part 22 of the Civil Air Regulations in substance as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rule by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted, in duplicate, to the Civil Aeronautics Board, attention Bureau of Safety Regulation, Washington 25, D. C. All communications received by February 19, 1951, will be considered by the Board before taking further action on the proposed rule. Copies of such communications will be available after February 21, 1951, for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section of the Board, Room 5412, Commerce Building, Washington, D. C.

Section 22.13 currently establishes requirements for the issuance of free balloon pilot certificates. Of these requirements, those in paragraphs (f), (g), and (h) are directly affected by this proposal. Under paragraph (f), each applicant is required to pass an extensive examination on aeronautical matters which include meteorology, navigation, and the servicing and operation of airships. Under paragraph (g) he must comply with the minimum experience requirements in respect of flight instruction and solo flight time. Under paragraph (h) he is required to demonstrate successfully his skill in actual solo flight.

The proposed amendment would exempt from the requirements of paragraphs (f), (g), and (h) an applicant who seeks a certificate for the operation of hot air balloons and who otherwise meets the requirements of the section. Experience has shown that the knowledge requirements of paragraph (f) are not prerequisite to the safe operation of hot air balloons and that the experience and skill requirements of paragraphs (g) and (h) are inconsistent with the operating limitations of hot air balloons. For these reasons, we have been requested to amend the Civil Air Regulations to permit the issuance of a free balloon pilot certificate limited to the operation of hot air balloons without requiring compliance with the provisions of § 22.13 (f), (g), and (h).

It is proposed to amend Part 22 by amending § 22.13, as follows:

§ 22.13 Free balloon pilot certificate. An applicant for a free balloon pilot certificate other than for a hot air balloon shall comply with the requirements of paragraphs (a) through (h) of this section. An applicant for a certificate limited to the operation of hot air balloons shall comply only with the requirements of paragraphs (a) through (d) of this section.

[It is not proposed to amend paragraphs (a) through (h) of this section.]

This amendment is proposed under the authority of Title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended. The proposed amendment when finally adopted by the Board may be considerably changed in view of the comments received in response to this notice of proposed rule making.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-2555]

NEW ENGLAND POWER CO.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C. on the 29th day of January A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that an application has been filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, by New England Power Company ("NEPCO"), a subsidiary of New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company. The application designates the third sentence of section 6 (b) of the act and Rules U-42 (b) (2) and U-50 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any person may, not later than February 12, 1951, at 12:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held with respect to the application, stating the reasons for such request, the nature of his interest, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after 12:30 p. m., e. s. t., on February 12, 1951, said application, as filed or as amended, may be granted as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt the proposed transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to the application, which is on file in the office of this Commission, for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which may be summarized as follows:

NEPCO proposes to issue and sell $12,000,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds, Series D, to be dated February 1, 1951, and to mature February 1, 1981. The interest rate (which shall be a multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent) and the price to be paid to NEPCO (which, excluding accrued interest, shall not be less than 100 percent nor more than 102.75 percent of the principal amount) are to be determined at competitive bidding pursuant to Rule U-50. NEPCO proposes to issue the bonds under an Indenture of Trust and First Mortgage dated November 15, 1936, as amended and supplemented by supplemental indentures dated July 1, 1948 and July 1, 1949, and a third supplemental indenture to be dated February 1, 1951, securing the bonds to be issued, like the bonds of the three preceding series now outstanding, by a direct first mortgage lien on substantially all the electric properties then owned by the company, with certain limited exceptions.

The application states that the proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be used by NEPCO to pay indebtedness to banks which it is expected will aggregate $10,500,000 at the time of receipt of such proceeds and the balance of the proceeds will be used to pay for construction expenditures made or to be made (see Holding Company Act Release No. 10343).

In connection with the system program for financing the construction requirements of the subsidiaries of NEES, including, among other things, the maintenance by NEES of a reasonable equity base for the required senior financing, the application contains the same statement quoted in the order of this Commission dated October 27, 1950, in Beverly Gas and Electric Company et al., Holding Company Act Release No. 10182.

NEPCO estimates the expenses to be paid by it in connection with the proposed transactions as $84,000.

The application states that petitions have been filed with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities and the New Hampshire and Vermont Public Service Commissions for authorization of the proposed transactions.

Applicant requests that the Commission's order herein become effective upon issuance.

By the Commission.

§ 933.511 Tangerine Regulation 107—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 33, as amended (7 CFR Part 933), regulating the handling of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines grown in the State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committees established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of tangerines, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than February 5, 1951. Shipments of tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since October 23, 1950, and will so continue until February 5, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to February 4 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on January 30; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such tangerines; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of tangerines; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., February 5, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., February 12, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(ii) Any tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that are of a size smaller than a size that will pack a 210 pack of tangerines, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a half-standard box (inside dimensions 9½ x 9½ x 19⅛ inches; capacity 1,726 cubic inches) except that the minimum size of such tangerines shall be 2⁵⁄₁₆ inches with a total tolerance for variations incident to proper sizing of 20 percent, by count, of tangerines that are smaller than 2⁵⁄₁₆ inches in diameter of which not more than one-half, or a total of 10 percent by count of the tangerines, are smaller than 2¹⁄₁₆ inches in diameter.

(2) As used in this section, "handler," "ship," and "Growers Administrative Committee" shall have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and "U. S. Subchapter F—Animal Breeds

[BAI Order 379, Amdt. 12]

DOGS

On November 28, 1950, a notice of rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 8120) regarding the proposed withdrawal of recognition by the Secretary of Agriculture of the book of record of purebred dogs entitled "Livre des Origines Français", sponsored by the Société Centrale Canine pour l'Amélioration des Races de Chiens en France, 3 Rue de Choiseul, Paris, France, of which Mr. A. Bordereau is Director General.

After due consideration of all relevant material presented in connection with the notice, the Secretary of Agriculture, pursuant to the authority vested in him by section 201, Paragraph 1606 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (19 U. S. C. and Supp. III, sec. 1201, Par. 1606), hereby withdraws recognition of the said book of record, and hereby amends § 151.10 (a), Chapter I, Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations (14 F. R. 159), as amended, by removing the name of said stud book from the list of books of record named under the subheading "dogs".

(Par. 1606, 46 Stat. 673, as amended; 19 U. S. C. and Sup. 1201, par. 1606)

The foregoing amendment shall become effective on the 7th day of March 1951.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 30th day of January 1951.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[GCPR, Supp. Reg. 1]

DEFENSE AGENCY PRICING

Pursuant to the Defense Product on Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 1 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

Statement of considerations. This Supplementary Regulation 1 exempts from the General Ceiling Price Regulation certain purchases and sales of defense materials and services. These exemptions are deemed to be necessary at the present time in order to insure that price controls shall not interfere with the defense effort.

Many commodities and services purchased by Defense Agencies are of a strictly military nature and the imposition of price ceilings upon them is not practical or advisable because of frequent changes of specifications or production plans or because of variations in the conditions under which contractors and subcontractors operate. Moreover, there are certain types of purchases, such as emergency purchases, and purchases under secret and developmental contracts for which the price control techniques of the General Ceiling Price Regulation are not suitable. Experience has indicated that in such cases and in the case of commodities especially designed for military needs, prices can be best controlled by the Defense Agencies themselves either in the original negotiation or in renegotiation provided for by law to eliminate excessive profits.

This supplementary regulation exempts from the General Ceiling Price Regulation until April 1, 1951, sales to the Defense Agencies or to suppliers with defense contracts or sub-contracts of commodities or services normally produced or supplied only for military use. This provision is designed to eliminate any immediate adverse effect of the freeze upon military procurement. After April 1, 1951, the exemption applies only to a more limited group of commodities and services of this type specified in the supplementary regulation. Furthermore, in order to facilitate defense programs, specific provision is made to exempt purchases of strategic and critical materials from marginal sources for the stockpile until April 1, 1951.

Contracting officers of Defense Agencies are specifically exempted from the civil and criminal liabilities under the General Ceiling Price Regulation for buying commodities or services at higher than ceiling prices. Those selling to the Defense Agencies are, however, still bound by these provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, and the removal of the liability on the part of the purchaser in no way affects the seller's obligation. Contracting officers are not typically purchasers "in the regular course of business or trade" and, as such, are not subject to the prohibition of the Defense Production Act of 1950. This supplementary regulation, however, specifically removes this liability in order that there may be no misunderstanding which would lead to delay in the procurement of essential defense materials.

Sales of scrap, waste, damaged, or used materials or commodities by a Defense Agency, sales by the Atomic Energy Commission and sales by commissaries, exchanges and stores of the Department of Defense are also exempt from the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The operations of these stores are governed by law and regulations of the Department of Defense. Such stores are not open to the public and the prices charged in them are generally lower than prevailing market prices. To subject these stores to price control would impose an unnecessary task both upon the Department of Defense and upon the Director of Price Stabilization.

SECTION 1. What this regulation does. This Supplementary Regulation 1 provides for the exemption from the General Ceiling Price Regulation of certain sales to the Defense Agencies and to their suppliers and, with respect to sales not exempt, for the adjustment of ceiling prices in certain hardship cases. It also relieves the Defense Agencies and their officers of any liability, as buyers, under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

SEC. 2. Temporary exemptions, commodities and services for military needs. Until April 1, 1951, the provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall not apply to sales, of commodities and services normally produced and supplied only for military use, to a Defense Agency or to any person for use in connection with a defense contract or subcontract.

SEC. 7. Developmental contracts. (a) The provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall not apply to sales of any commodities or services pursuant to a defense contract or subcontract which is certified in writing to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., by the appropriate Defense Agency as being a "developmental" contract or subcontract.

(b) A contract or subcontract is, for the purpose of this section 7, deemed to be "developmental" during such period, not to exceed six months, as is required by the manufacturer or supplier for the accumulation of sufficient production experience to permit him to make a reasonably accurate estimate of his manufacturing costs or as is required by a purchaser thereunder for the selection of a product.

(c) The certifying Defense Agency shall promptly file with the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., a report containing a description of the product to be manufactured or service to be supplied, a summary of the terms of the contract or subcontract, including all pricing provisions, a statement of the production program of which the contract or subcontract is a part, and an estimate of the expected duration of such developmental work.

(d) If at any time the Director of Price Stabilization determines, after consultation with the certifying Defense Agency, that the period necessary for development has expired, and in writing so notifies such agency and the manufacturer of the commodity or supplier of the service, this exception shall not apply to the commodities or services thereafter sold, delivered, or supplied under the contract or subcontract to which such notice relates.

SEC. 8. Secret contracts. The provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall not apply to sales of any commodity or the performance of any service pursuant to a contract which is officially classified as "secret" or above.

SEC. 9. Emergencies. (a) The provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall not apply to the sale of any commodity or service to a Defense Agency under such circumstances of emergency as to make immediate delivery imperative and as, in the judgment of the Defense Agency, to render it impossible to secure immediate delivery at the ceiling price which would otherwise be applicable.

(b) The sale shall not be exempt unless the Defense Agency promptly files with the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., a report setting forth for each purchase: (1) The name and address of the seller, (2) the date of purchase, (3) the date of delivery, (4) a description of the commodity, or service purchased, and (5) a brief statement of the facts giving rise to the emergency situation which necessitated such purchase at a price higher than the applicable ceiling price; except that the information specified in items (4) and (5) of this paragraph may be omitted where such agency states that omission is required in the interests of national security.

SEC. 10. Individual hardship adjustments. The Director of Price Stabilization, either on his own motion or on application for adjustment in accordance with Price Procedural Regulation 1 may adjust the ceiling price or prices of any seller who has entered into or proposes to enter into a defense contract or subcontract for the sale of a commodity or service essential to the defense program, whenever it appears that the ceiling price impedes or threatens to impede the production, manufacture, or distribution of such commodity or the supply of such service.

SEC. 11. Facts to be shown in applications for adjustment. Such application shall set forth for each commodity and service, (1) the applicable ceiling price, (2) the requested price, and (3) the facts showing the nature and cause of the hardship.

SEC. 12. Certification required for adjustment. The seller shall forward such application to the appropriate Defense Agency which shall transmit it to the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., with a certification by the Defense Agency that in its judgment:

(a) The ceiling price or prices impedes or threatens to impede the production, manufacture, or distribution or such commodity or the supply of such service, and

(b) The production, manufacture, or distribution of the commodity or the supply of the service is essential to the defense program.

SEC. 13. Contracts and deliveries pending disposition of adjustment applications. Upon the filing of an application for adjustment and until final disposition of the application, contracts may be entered into or proposals and bids may be submitted at the price or prices requested in the application and deliveries may be made under such contracts, but the seller may not receive and the buyer may not pay the amount by which the requested price exceeds the ceiling price unless and until an order granting a higher price has been issued. The seller shall include in any sale, contract to sell, or offer to sell at the price requested:

(a) The ceiling price for the commodity or service in question.

(b) A statement that the quoted price is subject to approval by the Director of Price Stabilization.

(c) A statement that an appropriate application has been filed with the Director of Price Stabilization.

SEC. 14. Records. A seller of commodities and services the sale of which is exempted by this supplementary regulation from the price ceiling established in General Ceiling Price Regulation shall not be required to comply with the record keeping provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation (Sec. 16) but must preserve and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization records in his possession showing the prices charged by him for the commodities and services which he delivered or offered to deliver during the base period, December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951.

SEC. 15. Defense Agencies and officers not liable as purchasers. The prohibitions contained in the General Ceiling Price Regulation against buying or receiving any commodity or service at a price higher than the ceiling price permitted shall not be construed to apply to any Defense Agency, or any contracting or paying finance officer thereof. Any such Defense Agency or contracting or paying finance officer thereof shall be relieved of any and every liability, civil or criminal, imposed by such regulation or by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 16. Definitions. (a) Terms used in this supplementary regulation shall, unless defined herein, or unless the context requires a different meaning, have the same meaning as when used in the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(b) The term "Defense Agency" as used in this regulation means the Department of Defense (including the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force), the Maritime Administration of the Department of Commerce, the United States Coast Guard, and the Atomic Energy Commission.

(c) "Defense contract" means a purchase order, or agreement with a Defense Agency.

(d) "Subcontract" means any purchase order, or agreement to perform all or any part of the work required under or to make or furnish any commodity needed for the performance of a defense contract.

Effective date. This regulation is effective immediately.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[CPR 3]

COAL, EXCEPT PENNSYLVANIA ANTHRACITE, DELIVERED FROM MINE OR PREPARATION PLANT

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738): It is hereby ordered, That ceiling prices and ceilings on the weighted average realization on the sale of coal, except Pennsylvania anthracite, from a mine or preparation plant shall be effective as provided in this Ceiling Price Regulation No. 3.

Statement of considerations. Bituminous coal prices have been non-inflationary since the Korean outbreak. However, with the threat of a more serious emergency and the possibilities of record-high levels in industrial activity resulting from the defense program, it is likely that a basic industry such as coal will not be able to avoid the forces of inflation. During World War II coal proved to be the main source of energy for the economy, and it was produced in great volume to satisfy the civilian and military needs of the country. It again may have to be produced in large amounts to meet the needs of the country in building its defenses.

Average mine realization, i. e., the average price per ton f. o. b. the mine, has changed very little during the last three years. According to figures compiled and published by the United States Bureau of Mines, the average mine realization was as follows:

	Per ton
1950 estimated	4.90

Since July 1948 wholesale prices on bituminous coal—f. o. b. mine prices plus transportation charges—compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, have fluctuated within a narrow range of one percent. At the same time, they reflect increased transportation costs in part, which means that current mine prices are lower, even though slightly, than they were a year or two back. According to the latest information available, it appears that the bituminous coal price level has changed little since 1948, and the change that has taken place has edged downward. There is no evidence of a general increase in bituminous coal prices since the Korean outbreak.

Bituminous coal is mined in 30 States of the United States and Alaska by thousands of companies. Over 90 percent of the total production is mined east of the Mississippi River to supply a substantial part of the country's main fuel market. Today, coal is in good supply except as occasioned in special instances by transportation shortages. With present manpower and equipment, along with adequate transport, the bituminous coal industry can increase its output well above the current rate, which is 550 to 560 million tons annually.

With its many companies spread over the nation, the bituminous coal industry is highly competitive and there are few markets where tonnage from widely separated fields fail to meet. In addition, coal has strong competition from oil, natural gas and waterpower.

Actually, coal is not one but many products represented by sizes and grades produced under widely different conditions. Because of this factor and because of the keen competition, it has a complex market structure. If the latter is ignored under a system of ceiling price control, production and distribution will be hampered and financial difficulties will be encountered which will jeopardize the ability of the industry to supply the maximum needs of the economy. Because of seasonal and other factors, it requires a period of approximately one year to obtain a representative picture of market operations.

Records over the years show that the bituminous coal industry is not a prosperous one and that it has been considered hazardous for investment purposes. New capital has to be derived primarily from earnings. Yet, the progressive management in the industry has mechanized the mines to a high degree, particularly in late years, and has provided a plant that needs a steady return for financial support. A large percentage of the earnings during the better periods since World War II have been used in large amounts to promote greater plant modernization. This accounts for the very sound and strong position of the industry to produce all of the coal required by the country for its civilian and defense programs.

In combatting inflation, the bituminous coal industry generally can adopt pre-Korean price levels without financial hardship except for the impact of the wage increase negotiated during the first two weeks of January 1951, and effective February 1, 1951, and parallel wage increases in other segments of the industry. Since the industry absorbed the increased costs of the wage agreement entered into in March of 1950, the additional cost of the 1951 wage increase, without price adjustment by mines, would result in serious financial difficulties. It is estimated that the 1951 wage advance will cost, on a weighted average basis, approximately 25 cents per ton. This advance, of course, will vary from mine to mine. Furthermore, not only was the 1950 wage addition absorbed, but the increased costs of supplies and other items related to mining, have been absorbed without price advances since the start of the Korean conflict.

Another consideration is that the bituminous industry, with its numerous units, has many mines operating at a return near or below costs. A price schedule established without recognition of these situations can depress production. A cost increase such as resulting from wages, unless reflected in prices, may cause the actual closing of mines.

In arriving at a fair and representative period upon which to base ceiling prices, it was obvious that the 12 months' period prior to the Korean outbreak was unrepresentative insofar as most of the bituminous coal industry is concerned. During that period there were general suspensions of operations and there were three-day week operations beyond the control of the industry during a good part of the period. In addition to these factors the 1949–50 winter was comparatively warm in the major fuel consuming markets, which depressed coal sales of domestic heating coals. Excesses in the supply of residual fuel oil caused by imports from foreign fields competed with industrial coal and captured large coal markets on the Atlantic seaboard and at other points. This factor also resulted in price reductions. These factors, viewed as exceptional and temporary, combined to cause serious disruptions in the marketing of bituminous coal and their effects are still noticeable today.

The period July 1948 to June 1949, inclusive, is considered to be the latest year that has the features of normalcy. Bituminous coal production during that year was 576 million tons, about what might be expected during the year ahead. There were no general strikes of consequence. At the same time, on the conservative side, the 1948–49 winter was relatively warm, and the impact of foreign oil had begun to be felt by late 1948. As stated above, there have been no wide fluctuations since the middle of 1948.

The regulation controlling ceiling prices of bituminous coal, lignite and Virginia anthracite contemplates (a) limiting the average mine realization, during 12 months' periods under the regulation, to the average mine realization of the base period, as adjusted, and (b) fixing ceiling prices at the highest prices received during the base period or the period from January 1–15, 1951, as adjusted. The latter period permits the reflection of the more current changes in price relationships. In brief, the regulation fixes average mine realizations at a representative pre-Korean year and the ceiling prices for individual sizes or grades of coal at the highest prices received during the same year except for recognition of recent changes in price patterns. On the average, prices for domestic heating coals and other major grades are today at about the same level they were in the base period. Average realization obtainable under this order will not exceed the average realization that could be obtained under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. To the realization levels and ceiling prices so established, the regulation permits the addition of the increased costs under the 1951 wage agreement.

In arriving at a fair and representative base period for the industry, it was determined that conditions affecting the bituminous coal industry west of the Mississippi River required a different base period. This segment of the industry produces less than 10 percent of the national output. In that part of the country the industry was affected less by strikes and the three-day week than was the industry east of the Mississippi. Furthermore, the western fields were affected less by competition with foreign oil. The winters in the west were more normal and enhanced the marketing and realization of domestic sizes. Therefore, the realization levels have increased since 1948 but have not shown an increase since June of 1950.

Therefore, the regulation as applicable to the bituminous coal industry west of the Mississippi River and Alaska will use (a) a period March to December 1950, inclusive, as a base period, and (b) that period and January 1–15, 1951, inclusive, will be used from which to establish ceiling prices. It is found that provisions of the regulation promote stability and efficiency.

Findings of the Director of Price Stabilization. In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of Ceiling Price Regulation No. 3 are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

In formulating this regulation the Director has consulted with representatives of the industry to the extent practicable under the circumstances, and has given consideration to their recommendations.

It is applicable to all sales or deliveries of coal f. o. b. mine.

SEC. 2. Definitions. When used in this regulation, the term:

(a) "Person" includes an individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, or legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, and includes the United States or any agency thereof, or any other government, or any of its political subdivisions, or any agency of any of the foregoing;

(l) "Ceiling price" means the highest price applicable to a particular size or grade of coal determined in accordance with the provisions of this regulation. Such ceiling price shall include commissions to sales agents and discounts to distributors, and shall be an f. o. b. mine price.

SEC. 3. Prohibition against selling, delivering or otherwise disposing of coal at prices above the ceiling. On and after the 1st day of February 1951, regardless of any contract, agreement, lease or other obligation:

(a) No person who is a producer or distributor shall sell, dispose, deliver or ship coal from a mine or preparation plant operating as an adjunct of a mine or mines or from mine loading facilities, at prices higher, f. o. b. the mine, than the ceiling prices determined in accordance with the provisions of this regulation.

(b) No person shall, in the course of trade or business, buy or receive such coal so delivered or shipped at prices higher than the ceiling prices determined in accordance with the provisions of this regulation. Any person who buys or receives coal subject to the provisions of this regulation may rely in good faith on a certified statement furnished by the seller that the prices charged do not exceed the ceiling prices so established.

(c) No person shall agree, offer, solicit, or attempt to do anything prohibited in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

SEC. 4. Ceiling prices and ceiling weighted average realization. (a) The ceiling prices for each mine or group of mines, for any size or grade of coal, as established by previous marketing practices, which may be charged under this regulation shall be the highest prices received for coal in the same sizes or grades in the base period or in the period January 1–15, inclusive, 1951. The producer shall file a certified statement of these ceiling prices, to include such ceiling prices as are derived from distributors' sales, with the Director and with the regional office or offices of the Office of Price Stabilization in the area or areas where the producer's coal is shipped, within 10 days after such prices become effective, on a form prescribed and in accordance with instructions issued by the Director, as provided in section 7 of this regulation.

(b) On and after February 1, 1951, the prices charged for the coal produced at any mine or group of mines shall be such that the weighted average realization per ton by the producer for the 12-month period commencing February 1, 1951, and ending January 31, 1952, and for each 12-month period beginning on the first day of each succeeding month, commencing March 1, 1951, shall not exceed the weighted average realization obtained by the producer from the sale, delivery or other disposal of coal during the base period.

(c) The producer shall determine his ceiling weighted average realization for the base period for any such mine or group of mines by dividing the realization received from sales of coal on the open market by the number of tons so sold. The producer shall file a certified statement of the ceiling weighted average realization so determined with the Director, as required by section 8 (a) of this regulation.

(d) The ceiling prices and ceiling weighted average realization determined for a mine or mines in accordance with the provisions of this regulation may be increased by the amount of the increase in cost resulting from wage and salary advances and other items related to the payroll: Provided, That such increases became effective on or after January 1, 1951, and prior to July 1, 1951, and that such increases satisfy the policy and requirements of the Wage Stabilization Board of the Economic Stabilization Agency.

(e) The highest price referred to in paragraph (a) of this section shall be separately determined by the producer in accordance with such classification, whether by size, grade or other grouping or designation as established by previous marketing practices.

(f) The ceiling prices to be determined in paragraph (a) of this section and the ceiling weighted average realization to be determined under paragraph (b) of this section may, at the option of the producer, be determined and established for a group of mines (as distinguished from a particular mine), where such mines are operated or controlled by a single person, and where such mines produce similar and interchangeable coals: And provided, further, That such groupings have been the usual custom and practice in the marketing of such coals.

SEC. 5. Long-term contracts. (a) A producer who sells and delivers coal under a bona fide long-term written contract of three years or longer, entered into prior to July 1, 1948, may, at his option, exclude such tonnage in determining the ceiling weighted average realization under section 4 (c) of this regulation and must exclude such tonnage in determining ceiling prices under section 4 (a) of this regulation. In such event, the realization obtained from coal sold under such contract during the life of this regulation may not be included in computing realization under section 4 (b) of this regulation. Such tonnage and realization shall be reported separately on forms prescribed and in accordance with instructions issued by the Director.

(b) Coal sold and delivered under the terms and conditions of all such contracts, whether excluded or not, may continue to be sold and delivered in accordance with the terms and conditions, including pricing provisions, of such contracts.

SEC. 6. Procedure for establishing ceilings on new products. (a) In the event the weighted average realization for a mine or group of mines as determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions is less than the representative cost of production at such mine or mines the producer may file a petition asking for such adjustment in his ceiling prices or realization as will not require the mine or group of mines to operate at a loss.

(b) In the event a mine or group of mines were not in operation during all or part of the base period, or in the event all or a portion of a mine or group of mines' production as presently produced has been affected by unusual circumstances or is of a special or enhanced quality due to the installation of preparation or other facilities during or since the base period, such producer may file a petition seeking the establishment of ceiling prices and a ceiling weighted average realization that are fair and equitable. The producer shall state the name of the mine, if any, the name or number of the seam, the county and the state in which the mine is located, the type of operation whether underground or strip; and in addition shall furnish the same information for the nearest mine or mines in the same seam and producing coal similarly processed, and the applicable ceiling prices for such mine. If there is no such mine in the same seam, the producer shall furnish the same comparative information for the nearest mine in a substantially similar seam.

For 30 days after filing the application, such coals of the applicant shall be sold at temporary ceiling prices no higher than the ceiling prices established under this regulation for the coals which are produced at the nearest mine or mines in the same seam or in a substantially similar seam and similarly processed. After 30 days from the filing of the application, if no action has been taken by the Director, the prices as requested in the application shall be the ceiling prices for such coals.

(c) If a particular size of coal was not made or sold during the base period or during the period January 1–15, inclusive, 1951, and therefore no specific ceiling price is established therefor, the ceiling price for such size shall be determined as follows:

(d) (1) If the particular unpriced size is a lump size, the ceiling price shall be not more than the lowest ceiling price established for any size of lump coal for the same mine.

(2) If the particular unpriced size is a double-screened coal, the ceiling price shall be not more than the lowest ceiling price established for any double-screened size of the same mine.

(3) If the particular unpriced size is a resultant (slack or screening) size, the ceiling price shall be not more than the lowest ceiling price for any resultant (slack or screening) size of the same mine.

(e) In the event of the mixture of two or more sizes or classifications of coal to which different ceiling prices are applicable, which mixture was not made during the base period or the period January 1–15, 1951, the ceiling price for such mixture shall not be more than the weighted average of the ceiling prices for each of the component sizes or classifications of coal in said mixture, on a per net ton basis.

(f) It is the intent and purpose of this section and this regulation that no mine or group of mines shall obtain an average realization for any consecutive 12-month period beginning February 1, 1951, which exceeds the weighted average realization during the base period as adjusted.

(g) Where bituminous coal is delivered from a mine or preparation plant in any transportation facilities owned or subject to the control of the producer or subsidiary or affiliate of the producer, or in any transportation facilities hired by the producer, there may be added to the applicable ceiling prices established herein a sum not in excess of the highest charge for transportation costs made during the base period or the period January 1–15, 1951, inclusive, but in no event to exceed the lowest common carrier rate for a haul between the same points; provided that there may also be added by a producer, to the applicable ceiling price established herein, an amount not in excess of the transportation tax imposed by section 620 of the Revenue Act of 1942 if said producer incurred such tax and if he separately states the amount of the tax in sales to all purchasers except the United States or any agency thereof, the District of Columbia, any state government or any political subdivision thereof.

(h) The rate of interest on overdue accounts or on a note, trade acceptance or other form of indebtedness accepted in payment of an account shall not exceed the rate charged by the seller on similar transactions during the base period.

(i) Any purchaser, lessee or transferee of a mine for which ceiling prices and a ceiling weighted average realization have been established shall take the ceiling prices or ceiling weighted average realization previously assigned to the mine or other seller, lessor, or transferor thereof.

SEC. 7. Less than ceiling prices. Lower prices than those established under this regulation may be charged, demanded, paid or offered.

SEC. 8. Evasion. The price limitations set forth in this regulation shall not be evaded, whether by direct or indirect methods, in connection with an offer, solicitation, agreement, sale, delivery, purchase or receipt of or relating to bituminous coal alone or in conjunction with any other commodity or by way of commission, service, transportation, or other charge, or discount, premium or other privilege, or by tie-in agreement or other trade understanding, or by the making of excessive charges for trucking or otherwise. Persons subject to the regulation shall continue to observe their customary and standard cash discount practices.

SEC. 9. Reporting, invoicing and record-keeping requirements. (a) Each producer shall compute and establish its weighted average realization during the base period and shall report such realization base to the Director within 10 days after the date ceiling prices become effective under this regulation. The report shall be made on forms prescribed and according to instructions issued by the Administrator.

(b) The basis for setting up ceiling prices on particular sizes and grades of bituminous coal shall be submitted to the Director on forms provided by him in accordance with his instructions within ten days after this regulation becomes effective.

(c) Ceiling price schedules shall be filed by the producer, sales agent or distributor with the Director and with the regional office or offices of the Agency in the area or areas where the producer's coal is shipped, within ten days after the day such prices become effective. Copies of such price schedules shall be open for public inspection. All changes in ceiling prices shall be similarly filed.

(d) Each producer shall report monthly its monthly realization to the Director on forms provided by him and in accordance with his instructions on or before the twentieth day of the month following the month for which the report is being filed.

(e) Each person subject to this regulation shall keep on file invoices and other sales data of the base periods applicable to average realizations and ceiling prices. Each person subject to this regulation shall furnish to each person to whom he sells bituminous coal an invoice stating the ceiling price established by this part separately from any other charge or a certified statement that the prices charged do not exceed the ceiling prices established under this regulation.

(f) Each person subject to this regulation shall preserve and keep available for inspection by the Director for a period of two years, all records necessary to substantiate ceiling prices, base period realization and average realization established pursuant to this regulation.

(g) The producer shall furnish to each retail coal dealer to whom he sells coal a statement showing the exact dollar-and-cents amount the producer has added to the price of his coal as authorized under this regulation.

SEC. 10. Sales agents and distributors. No sales agent or distributor shall charge a price f. o. b. mine, preparation plant operated as an adjunct of a mine or mines, or from mine loading facilities in excess of the ceiling price or prices established for such mine or mines under the provisions of this regulation: Provided, That in the event a distributor purchased coal from a mine or mines during the producer's base period or the period January 1–15, 1951, and resold such coal, said distributor may buy and resell coal from said mine or mines and charge the highest price or prices he received for each size or grade of coal during the aforesaid periods plus any adjustments in price applied to the f. o. b. mine price of such coal: Provided, further, That the distributor files with the Director such reports or records as may be required on forms prescribed and according to instructions issued by the Director. The distributor shall preserve his records to support such reports for a period of two years.

SEC. 11. Petitions for amendments. Any person seeking an amendment of any provision of this regulation may file a petition for amendment in accordance with Price Procedural Regulation 1 issued by the Economic Stabilization Administrator.

SEC. 12. Adjustable pricing. Any person may agree to sell at a price which can be increased up to the ceiling price in effect at the time of delivery; but no person may, unless authorized by the Office of Price Stabilization, deliver or agree to deliver at prices to be adjusted upward in accordance with action taken by the Director after delivery. Such authorization may be given when a request for a change in the applicable ceiling price is pending, but only if the authorization is necessary to promote distribution or production and if it will not interfere with the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950. The authorization may be given by the Director or by any official of the Office of Price Stabilization to whom the authority to grant such authorization has been delegated. The authorization will be given by order, except that it may be given by letter or telegram when the contemplated revision will be the granting of an individual application for adjustment.

SEC. 13. Taxes. There may be added to the applicable ceiling price the amount of any sales, gross receipts, gross proceeds or use tax levied by any statute or ordinance, under which the tax is measured by gross proceeds or units of sale, only if the statute or ordinance permits or requires the seller to state the tax separately and the seller does state it separately on his invoice or other memorandum of sale, and only if the seller customarily added the amount of such tax to the ceiling price and separately stated the tax on his invoices prior to January 15, 1951.

SEC. 14. Enforcement. Persons violating any provision of this regulation are subject to the criminal penalties, and enforcement actions, and suits for damage provided for by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

Effective date. This regulation shall become effective on the 1st day of February 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[CPR 4]

ANTHRACITE DELIVERED FROM MINE OR PREPARATION PLANT

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738); It is hereby ordered, That ceiling prices on the sale of anthracite from a mine or preparation plant shall be effective as provided in this Ceiling Price Regulation 4.

Statement of Considerations

The level of prices on anthracite has not changed basically since the start of the Korean conflict. Faced with intensive competition of oil, natural gas, and bituminous coal, the anthracite industry has not been able to realize market expansion with the growth of defense activity and, as a matter of fact, is operating on a narrow financial margin. Moreover, it appears that anthracite mining capacity is well above requirements of the prospective market.

Available information, covering over two-thirds of the anthracite industry, shows that net income before taxes was about 15 cents per ton in 1950, and as low as 5 cents per ton in November of that year. This income was only 1 to 2 percent of the average mine price.

The larger sizes are distributed almost exclusively for home heating. Although a substantial portion of the steam sizes is sold to industrial consumers, primarily for steam generation purposes, the major portion of the small sizes is consumed in domestic and commercial heating. All together, about 75 percent of the commercial anthracite production moves for space heating purposes. Substitutes for solid fuels cannot be made without equipment changes.

The New England States, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia make up the industry's primary marketing area, and this area consumes about 80 percent of the anthracite shipped to market. As of July 1, 1948, the Census Bureau estimated that almost one-third of the nation's population lived in this marketing area. These facts demonstrate the vital importance of the anthracite industry as an important source of fuel for a large segment of the nation's population. The need to increase its production during the defense period, is underscored further by the fact that of all the fuels commonly used for space heating in this principal market area, the consumption of anthracite accounted for 40 percent of the total of all fuels consumed.

Anthracite during World War II and the need for increased production during the present defense period. The anthracite industry made a substantial contribution to the heavy demands for fuel during World War II. For the five years ending December 31, 1946, the total anthracite production averaged more than 60 million tons per year. Because of the large military demands for fuel oil, the great industrial needs for bituminous coal and metallurgical coke, and the shifts in population, many consumers formerly using these war-drafted fuels, had to use anthracite to take care of their fuel needs.

The strategic importance of anthracite in time of national emergency, cannot, therefore, be overestimated.

Upon the basis of these facts and circumstances, and giving consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950, it is readily apparent that anthracite production must expand to meet the present defense demands.

The present position of the anthracite industry. Preliminary figures show that the total production for 1950 will approximate 42 million tons, or 30 percent less than the average yearly production during the period of World War II.

The industry's price pattern since April 1950. On March 16, 1950, the anthracite industry signed a wage contract, calling for increased wages, with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America. Anthracite prices are customarily reflected in published circular prices issued by the major operators, and in April of 1950, the operators published their circular prices which took into account the March wage contract. Since April 1950, however, basic material and supply costs have steadily risen, while the prices published in April 1950 prevailed for sales made throughout that year.

A study of the industry's supply cost shows a weighted average increase of 13.4 percent. This is equivalent to 10.7 cents per net commercial ton of production. Anthracite companies were notified on January 1, 1951, by the Bureau of Employment and Unemployment Compensation of the State of Pennsylvania that minimum unemployment rates in effect under the merit rating system were being increased. The maximum taxable wages increased from $3,000 to $3,600 for Old Age Insurance. The total social security increase cost is 9.2 cents per net ton.

On January 26, 1951, the industry signed a new wage contract with the UMWA calling for a higher wage. Translated into production costs, this wage increase with equalizing increases for clerical and supervisory forces, adds $0.696 per net ton to the industry's cost of producing anthracite. The industry's level of prices on January 1, 1951, and its present financial condition does not permit industry absorption of this increased cost of production. The total of all of the cost increases detailed is 89.5 cents.

Giving due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950, it is thus apparent that the ceiling prices for the industry must take into account the increased supply costs which the industry has not passed along to its customers. It is also apparent, for the same reasons, that the period May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, is not generally representative for this industry, and that the industry must be permitted to price its anthracite on the basis of the circular prices which it had in effect on January 1, 1951, supplemented by the aforesaid increased costs.

Special services such as oil treatment, truck loading at pockets, etc., shall be continued and charges for such services shall be made in the same amounts as they have historically been in the past.

The regulation also establishes quality standards for anthracite and specified amounts by which ceiling prices must be reduced for anthracite failing to meet such standards. These stated differentials are defined to reflect the loss in value to the consumer by reason of the higher ash content, and it is accordingly necessary to decrease the ceiling prices applicable to substandard anthracite to preserve the relative values between standard and poor quality anthracite.

With respect to customary marketing of anthracite some companies have received a premium for anthracite. Upon filing proof with the Director, producers may add such differential, not in excess of 25 cents per net ton, to the ceiling price applicable to such coals.

Findings of the Director of Price Stabilization

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of Ceiling Price Regulation No. 4 are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

In formulating this regulation the Director has consulted with representatives of the industry to the extent practicable under the circumstances, and has given consideration to their recommendations.

SECTION 1. Applicability of regulation. This regulation establishes ceiling prices on anthracite produced and sold f. o. b. the mine.

SEC. 2. Definitions. When used in this regulation, the term:

(a) "Person" includes an individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons, or legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing, and includes the United States or any agency thereof, or any other government, or any of its political subdivisions, or any agency of any of the foregoing.

(b) "Producer" means a person engaged in the business of mining and or preparing anthracite and any person acting as an agent of a producer in the sale of anthracite.

(c) "Distributor" means a person who purchases anthracite f. o. b. transportation facilities at a mine or preparation plant for resale, and resells the same in not less than cargo or railroad carload lots, or the equivalent thereof, without physically handling such anthracite, and any person acting as an agent of a distributor in the sale of anthracite.

(d) "Anthracite" means all coal produced in the Lehigh, Schuylkill and Wyoming regions in the State of Pennsylvania.

(e) "Ground storage facility" means a storage facility not operated as an adjunct of a mine or preparation plant, which is customarily used by a producer or distributor for storage of anthracite in transit from a mine or adjunct preparation plant to a purchaser.

(f) "Ton" means a short or net ton of 2,000 pounds.

(g) "F. o. b. mine" means free on board transportation facilities at a mine, a preparation plant or other loading facilities (not including ground storage facilities).

SEC. 3. Prohibition against selling or delivering anthracite at prices above the ceiling. On and after the 1st day of February 1951, regardless of any contract, agreement, lease, or other obligation:

(a) No person who is a producer or distributor shall sell, dispose, deliver, or ship anthracite from a mine at prices higher, f. o. b. mine, than the ceiling prices set forth in Appendix A, attached hereto, and made a part hereof.

(b) No person shall, in the course of trade or business, buy or receive anthracite so delivered or shipped at prices higher than the ceiling prices set forth in Appendix A, attached hereto, and made a part hereof.

(c) No person shall agree, offer, solicit, or attempt to do anything prohibited under this regulation.

SEC. 4. Less than ceiling prices. Lower prices than those set forth in this part and Appendix A attached hereto may be charged, demanded, paid, or offered.

SEC. 5. Adjustment of prices. The Director may by order grant an adjustment of the prices shown in Appendix A when the producers, individually or collectively, show to the satisfaction of the Director that (a) the sale of the entire production of the mine at ceiling prices would not return a realization equal to the representative cost of production; and (b) such costs of production are of a continuing nature; and (c) the production of the mine is necessary to supply the fuel needs of the economy. The adjustments to ceiling prices resulting from such cost increases may be allocated among the various sizes of anthracite after consultation with the Anthracite Industry Advisory Committee.

SEC. 6. Adjustable pricing. Any person may agree to sell at a price which can be increased up to the ceiling price in effect at the time of delivery; but no person may, unless authorized by the Office of Price Stabilization, deliver or agree to deliver at prices to be adjusted upward in accordance with action taken by the Director after delivery. Such authorization may be given when a request for a change in the applicable maximum price is pending, but only if the authorization is necessary to promote distribution or production and if it will not interfere with the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950. The authorization may be given by the Director or by any official of the Office of Price Stabilization to whom the authority to grant such authorization has been delegated. The authorization will be given by order, except that it may be given by letter or telegram when the contemplated revision will be the granting of an individual application for adjustment.

SEC. 7. Premium coals. Where a producer historically has marketed anthracite, graded as premium coals, and has sold such coals at premium prices, such producer may, for such premium coals in the rice and larger sizes, and upon filing evidence in support thereof with the Director, add to the ceiling prices established in this part a sum, not in excess of 25 cents per net ton, equal to the amount by which the price at which such producer had theretofore marketed and sold such premium coals in excess of the standard prices.

SEC. 8. Special services. There may be added to the applicable ceiling prices set forth in this part the charges made for any special services and pocket charges including (specifically but not exclusively) calcium chloride treatment, oil treatment, specially prepared sizes, split cars (containing more than one size), partitions, box-car loading, truck loading from pockets at the mines, bags and bagging, and the making of local or retail deliveries from the mine or adjunct preparation plant: Provided, however, That such charges shall not exceed the charges made for the same service during the month of January 1951 (or if no such charges were made in January 1951, the nearest month prior thereto).

SEC. 9. Transportation. Where anthracite is delivered from a mine, adjunct preparation plant, to or from any ground storage facility in any transportation facilities owned or subject to the control of the producer or a distributor or subsidiary or affiliate of the producer or distributor, or in any transportation facilities hired by the producer or distributor, there may be added to the applicable ceiling prices established herein a sum not in excess of the actual transportation costs incurred by such producer or distributor, or subsidiary or affiliate thereof, determined in a reasonable manner, but in no event to exceed the lowest common carrier rate, if any, for a haul between the same points: Provided, That there may also be added by a producer, to the applicable maximum price established herein, an amount not in excess of the transportation tax imposed by section 620 of the Revenue Act of 1942 if said producer incurred such tax and if he separately states the amount of the tax in sales to all purchasers except the United States or any agency thereof, the District of Columbia, any state government or any political subdivision thereof.

SEC. 10. Taxes. There may be added to applicable ceiling prices the amount of any sales, gross receipts, gross proceeds, or use tax levied by any statute or ordinance, under which the tax is measured by gross proceeds on units of sale, only if the statute or ordinance permits or requires the seller to state the tax separately and the seller does state it separately on his invoice or other memorandum of sale, and only if the seller customarily added the amount of such tax to the ceiling price and separately stated the tax on his invoices in the month of January 1951.

SEC. 11. Evasion. The price limitations set forth in this regulation shall not be evaded, whether by direct or indirect methods, in connection with any offer, solicitation, agreement, sale, delivery, purchase or receipt of or relating to anthracite coal alone or in conjunction with any other commodity or by way of commission, service, transportation or other charge, or discount, premium or other privilege, or by tie-in agreement or other trade understanding, or by the making of excessive charges for trucking or otherwise.

SEC. 12. Records and reports. (a) Each producer and distributor shall preserve and keep available for inspection by the Director for a period of two years such records as the Director shall determine to be necessary under this part; and the Director may require such reports as he deems necessary in order to effectuate this regulation.

(b) The producer shall furnish to each retail coal dealer to whom he sells coal a statement showing the exact dollar-and-cents amount the producer has added to the price of his coal as authorized under this regulation.

SEC. 13. Petitions for amendment. Any person seeking an amendment of any provision of this regulation may file a petition for amendment in accordance with Price Procedural Regulation 1 issued by the Economic Stabilization Administrator.

SEC. 14. Enforcement. Any person who violates any provision of this regulation is subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions, and suits for damage provided for by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

Effective date. This regulation shall become effective on the first day of February, 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[Gen. Reg. 1]

DEFINITION OF WAGES, SALARIES OR OTHER COMPENSATION

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1 (16 F. R. 816) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 3 (16 F. R. 739), this General Regulation No. 1 is hereby issued.

INCREASES DETERMINED BUT NOT EFFECTIVE PRIOR TO JANUARY 25

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1 (16 F. R. 816) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 3 (16 F. R. 739), this General Regulation No. 2 is hereby issued.

Statement of Considerations

This general regulation is issued by the Wage Stabilization Board in discharge of its responsibilities under the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950, Executive Order 10161, General Order No. 3 and General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1 of the Economic Stabilization Administrator. It is designed to stabilize wages, salaries and other compensation and to effectuate the purposes and intent of said statute, orders, and regulation.

For the purpose of preparing itself for the discharge of its responsibilities, the Wage Stabilization Board heretofore distributed to representative labor and industry groups a series of questions, the answers to which would provide the Board with essential information for the development of wage stabilization policies. Thereafter, the Board conducted conferences which were attended by representatives of labor and industry, who presented their views respecting the development of wage stabilization policies. In the formulation of the provisions hereof there has thus been consultation with industry and labor representatives, including trade association and labor union representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

Collective bargaining conferences, arbitration proceedings and other proceedings directed to the resolution of wage questions were in progress prior to January 25, 1951, the effective date of General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1. In some instances collective bargaining agreements were reached, wage determinations made and awards issued prior to the effective date of that regulation. In the interest of furthering and maintaining sound working relations including collective bargaining and avoiding the imposition of inequities and hardships it is necessary and desirable to recognize and give effect to such agreements, determinations and awards applicable to work performed within a relatively short period of time after January 25, 1951, without prior approval of the Wage Stabilization Board.

Sec.
1. Increases determined on or before January 25 and not applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter.
2. Increases determined on or before January 25 and applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter.
3. Awards or decisions issued before January 25 and applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter.
4. Agreements for intra-plant adjustments effective prior to January 25.
5. Filing of copies required.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 5 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. Increases determined on or before January 25 and not applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter. Increases in wages, salaries, and other compensation agreed to in writing or determined and communicated to the employees on or before January 25, 1951, but which, by the terms of such agreement or determination, are to become applicable only to work performed later than fifteen (15) calendar days after January 25, 1951, require the prior approval or authorization of the Wage Stabilization Board.

SEC. 2. Increases determined on or before January 25 and applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter. The Wage Stabilization Board hereby authorizes the payment of increases in wages, salaries, and other compensation provided for by written agreement executed on or before January 25, 1951, or formally determined and communicated to the employees on or before said date, which increases, by the terms of said agreement or communications, are to take effect and to be applicable to work performed after January 25, 1951, but not later than fifteen (15) calendar days after said date.

SEC. 3. Awards or decisions issued before January 25 and applicable to work performed within 15 days thereafter. The Wage Stabilization Board hereby authorizes the increases in wages, salaries, and other compensation resulting from the award or decision of an arbitrator or referee issued on or before January 25, 1951, which increases, by the terms of said award or decision, are to take effect and to be applicable to work performed after January 25, 1951, but not later than fifteen (15) calendar days after said date.

SEC. 4. Agreements for intra-plant adjustments effective prior to January 25. Authorization is hereby granted also of payments pursuant to wage or salary increase agreements entered into and effective on or before January 25, 1951, calling for application of a fixed amount of payroll increase to accomplish intra-plant adjustments, but which adjustments were not actually reflected in wage or salary payments prior to that date because of the necessity for determining the allocation and method of application of such increases among different job classifications.

SEC. 5. Filing of copies required. In all instances in which increases in wages, salaries, and other compensation are placed in effect under the terms of sections 2 or 3 of this regulation, copies of the agreement, award, or decision providing for such increases, or, if no such agreement, award, or decision exists, a statement of the amounts and manner in which the determination was formally made and communicated to the employees, and the date or dates, and place or places, shall be filed with the Wage Stabilization Board on or before February 20, 1951.

Adopted by the Wage Stabilization Board. Dissenting: Industry Members Henry B. Arthur, J. Ward Keener, Reuben Robertson, Jr.

Issued: February 1, 1951.

Chairman.

[Gen. Reg. 3]

INCREASES TO COMPLY WITH MINIMUM WAGE LAWS AUTHORIZED

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1 (16 F. R. 816) and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 3 (16 F. R. 739), this General Regulation No. 3 is hereby issued.

Statement of Considerations

This general regulation is issued by the Wage Stabilization Board in discharge of its responsibilities under the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950, Executive Order 10161, and General Order No. 3 and General Wage Stabilization Regulation 1 of the Economic Stabilization Agency. It is designed to stabilize wages, salaries and other compensation and to effectuate the purposes and intent of said statute, orders, and regulations.

For the purpose of preparing itself for the discharge of its responsibilities, the Wage Stabilization Board heretofore distributed to representative labor and industry groups a series of questions, the answers to which would provide the Board with essential information for the development of wage stabilization policies. Thereafter, the Board conducted conferences which were attended by representative groups of labor and industry, which presented their views respecting the development of wage stabilization policies. In the formulation of the provisions hereof there has thus been consultation with industry and labor representatives, including trade association and labor union representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

SECTION 1. Increases to comply with minimum wage laws authorized. Section 402, subdivision (d) (2) of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.) provides that "No action shall be taken under authority of this title with respect to wages, salaries, or other compensation which is inconsistent with the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, or the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947, or any other law of the United States, or of any State, the District of Columbia, or any Territory or possession of the United States." Since statutes and orders of the duly constituted authorities acting under any Federal or State law fixing minimum rates for certain types of workers are consistent with the purposes and intent of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, the Wage Stabilization Board hereby authorizes increases in wages, salaries, and other compensation to bring such wages, salaries and other compensation into compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, and such other statutes and orders establishing minimum rates of compensation.

(Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105).

Adopted unanimously by the Wage Stabilization Board.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

[NPA Order M-12, as amended December 30, 1950, Direction 1]

USE OF COPPER AND COPPER-BASE ALLOYS

BASE PERIOD—APPLICATIONS FOR ADJUSTMENT—USE DURING THE FIRST CALENDAR QUARTER OF 1951

The following Direction is issued under NPA Order M-12 as amended December 30, 1950. This Direction relates to the permitted use of the forms and products of copper which are specified in § 29.23 of the Order during the first calendar quarter of 1951.

SECTION 1. (a) Paragraph (b) of § 29.26 of the Order states that no person shall manufacture (as defined) or use in installation or construction "During the following months a total quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of § 29.23 in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of such material during the base period:

	Percent
January 1951	85
February 1951	85
March 1951	80

Paragraph (c) of § 29.26 states that no person shall manufacture or use in installation or construction "During the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, a total quantity by weight of foundry products in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use of such products during the base period."

(b) Section 29.28 of the order states: "Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, during the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, and each calendar quarter thereafter, no person shall use for maintenance, repair and operating supplies a quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of § 29.23 in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use for such purposes during the base period."

(c) "Base period" is defined by § 29.22 (b) as the six months period ending June 30, 1950.

(d) Section 29.31 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this subpart may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry. • • •"

(e) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority upon the ground that the application of the base period to the applicants' business operations caused undue hardship upon the applicants by reason of the fact that their business operations were substantially interrupted during the base period. This Direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitations stated in § 29.26 (b) and (c) and § 29.28 of the Order in such cases, whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority under § 29.31 thereof. This determination is subject, however, to the conditions hereinafter stated.

Direction. In any case in which manufacturing operations or construction was shut down or suspended for more than 15 consecutive calendar days, the applicant in determining its average monthly use during the base period may exclude from the base period specified in the Order the month or months in which the shutdown or suspension existed. In determining its average quarterly use during the base period, it may calculate the same to be three times its average monthly use during the base period as above determined.

Illustration 1: The A company was shut down from March 16 through April 5, 1950. Its base period will comprise the months of January, February, May and June 1950. Its average monthly use will be one-fourth of its total use during these months, and its average quarterly use will be three times this average monthly use.

SEC. 2. (a) The above determination of adjustment is subject to the following conditions: (1) That every person relying on this determination will promptly after the date of the issuance of this Direction prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations which will be signed by such person or by an authorized officer or representative; and (2) that such record shall be retained for at least two years and will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(b) The National Production Authority reserves the right to modify or revoke adjustments made pursuant to this Direction No. 1. Any person affected by such a modification or revocation will be notified in writing of the nature of the action taken and the reasons therefor. Such actions will be effective upon such date or dates subsequent to the date of the notification as are specified therein.

NOTE: All reporting requirements of this direction have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This direction shall take effect on February 1, 1951.

C. 1), § 207.115 is hereby prescribed establishing seaplane restricted areas in Chesapeake Bay near Annapolis, Maryland, to be used by the United States Navy for practice landings, and governing their use, as follows:

§ 207.115 Chesapeake Bay near Annapolis, Md.; seaplane restricted areas. (a) The areas.—(1) North area. The waters of Chesapeake Bay bounded as follows: Beginning at the southernmost tip of Greenbury Point; thence southerly to Greenbury Point Shoal Light; thence 90° true to longitude 76°25'; thence due north to an east-west line tangent to Hackett Point; thence 270° true along said east-west line to the shore at the Naval Radio Station; and thence southerly along the shore to the point of beginning.

(2) South area. The waters of Chesapeake Bay bounded as follows: Beginning at the easternmost tip of Tolly Point; thence southeasterly to Tolly Point Shoal Lighted Bell Buoy 33; thence 180° true to an east-west line passing through the southeasternmost tip of Thomas Point; thence 270° true along said east-west line to Thomas Point; and thence northeasterly to the point of beginning.

(b) The regulations. (1) Only one of the areas will be used for practice landings during any period. The north area will normally be used except when firing practice is being conducted at the Naval Academy Rifle Range. Such firing practice is generally conducted during the summer months, and at such times the south area will be used for practice landings.

(2) Within the area selected for practice landings, such operations will be confined during any period to a landing strip one mile long and one-fourth mile wide. This landing strip will be laid out, so far as the wind direction will permit, in such manner as to cause the least possible interference with commercial fishing and navigation, and will be patrolled during practice landings.

(3) Vessels will be permitted to pass through either area, including the landing strip, at any time, but they shall give seaplanes using the landing strip the right-of-way. Vessels shall not moor or anchor or otherwise delay their progress within the landing strip when informed by naval personnel assigned to patrol the landing strip that it is in use.

(4) Fixed fishing nets supported on stakes in accordance with Department of the Army regulations governing such structures may be placed in the areas without restriction. Unattended anchored or buoyed nets or other apparatus used for the purpose of taking sea food, except fixed fishing nets supported on stakes, may be placed in or permitted to enter the areas but only at the owners' risk, and the United States shall not be liable for any accidental damage thereto resulting from seaplane operations.

(5) The regulations in this section shall be enforced by the Commandant, Severn River Naval Command, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, and such agencies as he may designate.

TITLE 38—PENSIONS, BONUSES, AND VETERANS' RELIEF

Chapter I—Veterans' Administration

PART 21—VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION AND EDUCATION

SUBPART A—REGISTRATION AND RESEARCH

1. Section 21.65 is amended to read as follows:

§ 21.65 Leaves of absence (effective April 1, 1949). (a) Leaves of absence for veterans enrolled in institutions of higher learning will be authorized in accordance with the following:

(1) When the period of enrollment as certified by the school is for an ordinary school year and the interval between consecutive terms or semesters is in no case greater than 15 calendar days duration, the authorization of subsistence allowance shall terminate as of the date 15 calendar days following the closing date of the school year as shown by the catalog of the institution. If the certification by the institution is for the ordinary school year plus a summer term of 5 weeks or more in length and no interval between 2 consecutive terms is in excess of 15 calendar days in duration, the authorization of subsistence allowance shall terminate as of the date 15 calendar days following the closing date of the summer term as shown by the school catalog. If the certification by the school is for 4 quarters and no interval between quarters exceeds 15 calendar days in duration, the authorization of subsistence allowance shall terminate as of the date 15 calendar days after termination of the fourth quarter as shown by the school catalog. If the certification by the school is for a single term, or a single quarter, or a single summer session, and such summer session is 5 weeks or more in length, the authorization of subsistence allowance shall terminate as of the date 15 calendar days following the closing date of such certified term as shown by the school catalog. The provisions of this subparagraph apply even though the closing of the term constitutes the completion of the course for which the veteran was enrolled.

(2) If any interval between terms (within a period of certified enrollment) is in excess of 15 calendar days, the authorization of subsistence allowance shall terminate as of the date 15 calendar days following the end of the term immediately preceding such interval, as shown by the school catalog, and shall recommence as of the date of the commencement of the term immediately following such interval as shown by the school catalog.

(3) In no event will the extension authorized in subparagraph (1) and (2) of this paragraph be applicable at the end of the school year or at the end of attendance at a single term or semester, if the veteran elects at the time of enrollment, or prior to the completion of the period of enrollment, not to be granted leave. Intervals between consecutively attended terms or semesters within the ordinary school year are regular holidays and the veteran has no choice or election as to such intervals.

(4) Where a veteran withdraws from training at any time prior to the end of the period of certified enrollment, there will be no extension of training status except as provided in § 21.102 (d).

(5) Except as to days of leave within terms as may be granted by the institution in accordance with its policy respecting leave to all students no other leave will be authorized for any period in addition to the extensions of training status provided in subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of this paragraph.

(6) An institution of higher learning will not be expected to maintain for veteran-trainees records of attendance not normally maintained for other students provided, however, the institution must discharge its obligation to determine and notify the Veterans' Administration immediately when the veteran-trainee's conduct or progress is not satisfactory, i. e., such as to raise a question as to the desirability of his continuance as a student in the institution, or the veteran ceases to be in attendance or is permitted to modify his course so as to affect the charge against his period of entitlement, the payment of subsistence allowance or tuition. No other routine or grade reports will be required. The veteran will be carried in a training status so long as his conduct and progress continues to be satisfactory for continuation in training status according to the regularly prescribed standards and practices of the institution.

(b) Veterans enrolled in institutional on-farm training. A veteran enrolled in a course of institutional on-farm training shall be entitled to that leave which the approved institution grants to other students but not in excess of 30 days in a calendar year (or a pro-rata portion thereof where the course in which the veteran is enrolled is less than 12 months in duration) exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, provided such leave does not interfere with the progress of the trainee. No attendance reports need be made to the regional office.

(c) Veterans enrolled in on-the-job training. A veteran enrolled in on-the-job training will be granted such leave as is granted by the training establishment in accordance with its established policy, but not to exceed 30 days in a calendar year (or a pro-rata portion thereof where the course in which the veteran is enrolled is less than 12 months in duration) exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. The training establishment is not required to report any such leave to the Veterans' Administration. No other leave during the course will be granted by the Veterans' Administration. No records or accounting of leave accrued or used will be maintained by the Veterans' Administration. At the veteran's option and provided application is received by the Veterans' Administration prior to the completion of his enrollment, the veteran may be granted 15 calendar days of leave at the completion of the period of enrollment, subject to remaining entitlement.

(d) Veterans enrolled for other school training. A veteran enrolled for school training other than institutional on-farm or in institutions of higher learning will be granted leave in accordance with the provisions of the school's contract with the Veterans' Administration, or, in the absence of a specific contractual provision, in accordance with the school's established policy for granting leave to all students, but not to exceed 30 days in a calendar year (or a pro rata portion thereof where the course in which the veteran is enrolled is less than 12 months in duration) exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays. The school is not required to report any such leave to the Veterans' Administration. No other leave during the course will be granted by the Veterans' Administration. No records or accounting of leave accrued or used will be maintained by the Veterans' Administration. At the veteran's option, and provided application is received by the Veterans' Administration prior to the completion of his enrollment, the veteran may be granted 15 calendar days of leave at the completion of the period of enrollment, subject to remaining entitlement, and provided further that the period of enrollment is 5 weeks or more in length. Two such optional leave periods may be granted in any cumulative 12 months of training in those instances where there exists an interval between the end of the spring semester and the beginning of the summer term and a further interval following the end of the summer term. Otherwise, there will be no more than one such optional leave period granted in any cumulative 12 months of training.

(e) Definitions of holidays and charging of leave. Regular holidays are those days within a period of training on which the school or training establishment grants total exemption from attendance to all students or enrollees in the same course, i. e., those days during a continuous period of enrollment in which the trainee holds himself available and ready to attend classes but classes are not in session because of the calendar of the training institution. For enrollees pursuing courses in schools, regular holidays are also defined as school holidays and short intermissions between terms or periods of instruction within the ordinary school year of two semesters or three quarters if such intervals are not more than 15 days in duration and provided that the veteran actually attends the succeeding term. Under this policy leave will not be charged against the trainee for any Saturday, Sunday, holiday, or intermissions between terms within the ordinary school year as defined in this paragraph on which the trainee has no scheduled classes or exercises and is not expected to be in attendance at the institution. Vacation periods between school years or the corresponding vacation periods in those schools which operate on a year round basis and in job training establishments are not holidays within the definitions in this paragraph and accordingly any periods for which subsistence allowance is paid during such vacation periods will be chargeable as leave. An approved absence covering a period of less than the standard school or work week of the training institution or establishment should be charged against leave at the rate of 1 day for each school or working day of absence from the institution. An approved absence covering a period of 1 calendar week or more will be charged at the rate of 5 days for each 7 consecutive days of absence if the school or establishment furnishes instruction on a 5-day per week basis.

2. In § 21.66, paragraph (b) is amended to read as follows:

§ 21.66 Conduct and progress.

(b) Unauthorized absences and absences in excess of 30 days in a calendar year (effective April 1, 1949). (1) Applicable schools and training establishments will be responsible for reporting to the Veterans' Administration on VA Form 7–1963 all absences in excess of 30 days in a calendar year (or a pro-rata portion thereof where the course in which the veteran is enrolled is less than 12 months in duration) and all absences which the school or establishment considers unauthorized. Schools will also be responsible for notifying the Veterans' Administration of interruption of training where the provision of the contract with the Veterans' Administration or the established policy of the school requires interruption for lack of progress due to excessive absenteeism. Schools will also be responsible upon interruption, discontinuance, or completion of the veteran's training for notifying the Veterans' Administration of any absences or leave (authorized or unauthorized) which exceed 30 days in a calendar year (or a pro rata portion thereof where the course in which the veteran is enrolled is less than 12 months in duration), and such absence has not previously been reported to the Veterans' Administration on VA Form 7–1963. Such reports may be made on VA Form 7–1908.

(2) Subsistence allowance will be reduced for unauthorized absences reported on VA Form 7–1963 in accordance with § 21.107 (i).

* * * * *

3. In § 21.102, the introductory paragraph and paragraphs (a) and (b) are amended; and a new paragraph (d) is added as follows:

§ 21.102 Effective closing dates of an authorization of subsistence allowance. The effective closing date of an authorization of subsistence allowance shall be determined in accordance with the criteria set forth below:

(a) Schools, colleges, and universities. The effective closing date shall be the closing date of the course, or the closing date of the period of enrollment as certified by the school (or as either may be extended by a period of leave granted in accordance with the provisions of § 21.65), or the expiration date of the veteran's entitlement, whichever is the earlier.

(b) Apprenticeship or other on-the-job training. The effective closing date shall be the ending date of the training as established by the training agreement (or as extended by a period of leave granted in accordance with the provisions of § 21.65), or the expiration date of the veteran's entitlement, whichever is the earlier.

* * * * *

(d) Where veteran withdraws from training without giving prior notice to the Veterans' Administration. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) of this section, when a veteran in receipt of regular monthly payments of subsistence allowance withdraws—without giving prior notice to the Veterans' Administration—from either institutional or on-the-job training prior to the end of the course or the end of the certified period of enrollment, the authorization action will terminate the training status and subsistence allowance as of the end of the month in which the withdrawal, interruption, or discontinuance occurred: Provided, however, That in any case where an ending date has been previously fixed within the month in which the withdrawal, interruption, or discontinuance occurred, there will be no extension beyond such ending date: And provided further, That in no case will such extension be granted if the school or training establishment reports that the veteran's course of training has been discontinued because of unsatisfactory conduct or progress. If a report showing that the veteran's course of training has been discontinued because of unsatisfactory conduct or progress is received from a school or training establishment after an extension to the end of the month has been effected a revised authorization action will be accomplished to cancel such extension. This extension will be initially made by the Veterans' Administration even though there is of record no affirmative election upon the part of the veteran. It is provided further that only one such extension of training status shall be made in any cumulative 12 months of training and that as to any veteran whose training status and subsistence allowance has been extended to the end of the month under these circumstances and who is subsequently restored to training status in the same course in the same institution or training establishment the action authorizing such extension will be amended to establish the ending date effective as of the date the withdrawal from training occurred since under these conditions the period of interruption actually constituted a period of absence. The extension in this paragraph will not be applicable to interruptions of training occurring prior to May 27, 1948, except in the cases of deceased veterans who had withdrawn from or interrupted training status prior to that date under the circumstances defined in this paragraph, and to whom subsistence allowance was paid to the end of the month in which such withdrawal or interruption occurred, thus eliminating overpayments which would otherwise stand against the estate of the decedent.

[Docket No. AO 72 A15]

HANDLING OF MILK IN TOLEDO, OHIO, MARKETING AREA

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO A PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND A PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at Toledo, Ohio, on June 1, 1950, reopened on November 30, 1950, pursuant to notices thereof which were issued on May 5, 1950 (15 F. R. 2804) and November 17, 1950 (15 F. R. 7980).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, on January 9, 1951, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision in this proceeding. The notice of filing such recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 12, 1951 (16 F. R. 321; F. R. Doc. 51-570).

Ruling on exceptions. Within the period reserved for filing exceptions, to the recommended decision, exceptions were submitted on behalf of producers. These exceptions have been fully considered and to the extent to which the findings and conclusions of this decision are at variance with the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled.

The material issues and the findings and conclusions of the recommended decision (16 F. R. 321; F. R. Doc. 51-570) are hereby approved and adopted as the material issues and the findings and conclusions of this decision as if set forth in full herein.

Determination of representative period. The month of December 1950 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of an amendment to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area in the manner set forth in the attached amending order is approved or favored by producers who during such period were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area specified in such marketing order, as hereby amended.

Marketing agreement and order. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Toledo, Ohio, Marketing Area," and "Order Amending the Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Toledo, Ohio, Marketing Area," which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions. These documents shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

This decision filed at Washington, D. C. this 30th day of January 1951.

[SEAL] C. J. McCORMICK,
Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

Order,[1] Amending the Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Toledo, Ohio, Marketing Area

§ 930.0 Findings and determinations. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of each of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Toledo, Ohio, on June 1, 1950, reopened on November 30, 1950, upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order, as amended and as hereby further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(2) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Order relative to handling.—It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as amended, and as hereby further amended as follows:

Delete subparagraphs (a) (1) and (2) of § 930.5 and substitute therefor the following:

(1) Class I milk price. (i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, add to the basic formula price the following amount for the delivery period indicated:

Delivery period:	Amount
May and June	$0.75
March, April, July, August	1.00
All others	1.20

(ii) For the second delivery period following any period of 12 consecutive months in which the total receipts of milk from producers by all handlers exceed 135 percent of the total Class I utilization of all handlers, and continuing until the beginning of the second delivery period following any period of 12 consecutive months in which such milk receipts are less than 125 percent of such utilization, add to the basic formula price the following amount for the delivery period indicated:

Delivery period:	Amount
May and June	$0.75
March, April, July, August	.75
All others	1.05

(2) Class II milk price. The Class II milk price for each delivery period shall be the Class I milk price for such delivery period less 30 cents.

[F. R. Doc. 51-1737; Filed, Feb. 2, 1951, 8:50 a. m.]

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders have been met.

LUCKENBACH STEAMSHIP CO.

NOTICE OF FURTHER HEARING ON APPLICATION TO BAREBOAT CHARTER DRY-CARGO VESSELS

Pursuant to section 3, Public Law 591, 81st Congress, notice is hereby given that a further hearing will be held at Washington, D. C., on February 8, 1951, at 10 o'clock a. m., in Room 4823 Department of Commerce Building, before Examiner A. L. Jordan, upon the application of Luckenbach Steamship Company to bareboat charter Government-owned war-built dry-cargo vessels.

In its report herein, issued January 24, 1951, the Board determined that the record adduced at the original hearing on December 6, 1950, [held pursuant to notice of November 21, 1950, (15 F. R. 7956)] was insufficient to enable it to make necessary findings under Public Law 591, with respect to the application of Luckenbach Steamship Company for the charter of vessels for use in its Gulf Intercoastal service, and the matter was remanded to the examiner for the receipt of additional evidence in connection therewith.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive further evidence with respect to whether the service for which such vessels are proposed to be chartered is required in the public interest and is not adequately served, and with respect to the availability of privately owned American-flag vessels for charter on reasonable conditions and at reasonable rates for use in such service.

All persons having an interest in such application will be given an opportunity to be heard if present.

The parties may have oral argument before the examiner immediately following the close of the hearing in lieu of briefs, and the examiner will issue a recommended decision. Parties may have seven (7) days within which to file exceptions to or memoranda in support of the examiner's recommended decision, but the Board reserves the right to determine whether oral argument on exceptions will be granted or whether briefs in connection therewith will be received.

Dated: January 24, 1951.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN POWER CO., INC., ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING OF PLAN AND NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 29th day of January A. D. 1951.

In the matter of American & Foreign Power Company, Inc., Electric Bond and Share Company; File No. 54-111. In the matter of Electric Bond and Share Company, et al., respondents; File No. 59-12.

I. Notice is hereby given that American & Foreign Power Company, Inc. ("Foreign Power"), a registered holding company, and its parent company, Electric Bond and Share Company ("Bond and Share"), also a registered holding company, have filed a joint application with this Commission, pursuant to section 11 (e) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, for approval of a plan proposed by Foreign Power and joined in by Bond and Share for the reorganization of Foreign Power.

The stated purposes of said plan are the simplification of the capital structure of Foreign Power, the fair and equitable distribution of voting power among the security holders of Foreign Power in conformity with the provisions of the act, and the settlement and discharge of various claims and counterclaims among Bond and Share, Foreign Power, and their respective security holders. The proposed plan is filed in substitution for and supersedes a previous plan proposed for the reorganization of Foreign Power dated October 25, 1944, as amended, and applicants request permission to withdraw such previous plan.

Foreign Power is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Maine for the purpose of acting as a holding company of foreign properties or securities of corporations owning foreign properties. Foreign Power's subsidiaries operate in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Ecuador, Guatemala, India, Mexico, Panama, and Venezuela. Bond and Share is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York and is the parent of Foreign Power.

At December 31, 1950, the capitalization of Foreign Power was as follows:

	Total outstanding	Owned by—
		Bond and Share	Others
3½ percent bank loans, due serially 1951-54	$10,000,000		$10,000,000

The Preferred Stock ($7), the $6 Preferred Stock, and the Second Preferred Stock have no normal voting rights. The existing common stock is entitled to one vote per share. All the preferred stocks bear cumulative dividends and are entitled to $100 per share on liquidation plus accumulated dividends. The Preferred Stock ($7) and the $6 Preferred Stock rank equally. The redemption prices with respect to the preferred stocks are $110 per share for the Preferred Stock ($7) and the $6 Preferred Stock, and $105 per share for the Second Preferred Stock, plus accumulated dividends in each instance. As of September 30, 1950, accumulated dividends on the preferred stocks amounted to $41,995,867 ($87.675 per share) on the Preferred Stock ($7), $20,034,920 ($75.15 per share) on the $6 Preferred Stock, and $356,684,404 ($140 per share) on the Second Preferred Stock.

The existing Option Warrants entitle the holders, without limitation as to time, to purchase 6,444,594.8 shares of common stock of Foreign Power at $25 per share and, in lieu of cash, a share of Second Preferred Stock may be surrendered with four Option Warrants in payment of four shares of existing common stock.

All interested persons are referred to said joint plan which is on file in the offices of this Commission for a full statement of the transactions therein proposed which may be summarized as follows:

II. 1. Allocation of new securities proposed under the plan—(a) Bank loans and gold debentures, 5 percent series due 2030. The existing notes held by banks in the aggregate principal amount of $10,000,000 (which, in accordance with the terms of the loan agreement, may be increased to an aggregate principal amount of $15,000,000 on or before July 1, 1951), and the existing gold debentures in the aggregate principal amount of $50,000,000 will remain outstanding.

(b) Preferred stock ($7). The public holders of the Preferred Stock ($7) will receive for each share, $90 principal amount of 4½ percent debentures and $3^{9}/_{10}$ shares of new common stock. Upon consummation of the plan such stockholders will also receive for the period from October 1, 1950, to the effective date of the plan, interest at the rate of 4½ percent per annum on the debentures to which they are entitled and additional new common stock at the annual rate of $^{7}/_{10}$ of a share for each share of preferred stock.

(c) $6 Preferred stock. The public holders of the $6 Preferred Stock will receive for each share, $80 principal amount of 4½ percent debentures and $2^{9}/_{10}$ shares of new common stock. Upon consummation of the plan such stockholders will also receive for the period from October 1, 1950, to the effective date of the plan, interest at the rate of 4½ percent per annum on the debentures to which they are entitled and additional new common stock at the annual rate of $^{16}/_{100}$ of a share for each share of preferred stock.

(d) Second preferred stock, series A ($7). The public holders of the Second Preferred Stock will receive for each share $^{65}/_{100}$ of a share of new common stock.

(e) Common stock. The public holders of the common stock will receive for each share $^{1}/_{50}$ of a share of new common stock.

(f) Option warrants. The holders of option warrants will be accorded no participation in the new securities to be issued under the plan and such option warrants will be cancelled.

(g) Allocation to bond and share. For all of its security holdings in Foreign Power, Bond and Share will receive 3,750,098 shares (approximately 56 percent) of the new common stock. Upon consummation of the plan Bond and Share will also receive additional new common stock at the rate of 2,730.3 shares per month from October 1, 1950, to the effective date. Until the effective date Bond and Share will be paid interest on the $49,500,000 of indebtedness now owing to it by Foreign Power.

2. Capitalization of Foreign Power after consummation of the plan. Upon consummation of the plan the capitalization of Foreign Power will consist of debt and common stock in the following amounts:

	Total to be outstanding
3½ percent bank loans, due serially 1951–54	$10,000,000
Gold debentures, 5 percent series due 2030	50,000,000
4½ debentures	67,564,600
New common stock—no par value	Shares[1] 6,637,500

[1] Excludes any shares of new common stock to be issued in respect of the period between October 1, 1950, and the effective date.

The 4½ percent Debentures will be dated October 1, 1950, will mature not later than 35 years from the effective date of the plan, will bear interest at the rate of 4½ percent per annum payable semi-annually, and will be subordinate as to principal and interest on default to the Bank Loans and the Gold Debentures and to certain other debt which may be issued. The debenture agreement will, among other things, provide for a sinking fund and an improvement fund, both funds conditioned on earnings of Foreign Power and on the availability to it of dollar exchange and will also provide that other debt may be issued subordinate to the 4½ percent Debentures.

3. Fractional interests. No certificates for fractional securities will be issued in respect of fractional interests. Upon surrender of securities to be exchanged for new securities, holders will be requested whether additional fractional interests sufficient to constitute one whole new security should be purchased. If no such instructions are given the fractional interest will be sold for the holder's account.

4. Time limitations. Upon expiration of six years following the effective date, any securities or cash which shall not by that time have been claimed shall, in the case of securities, be cancelled or be sold for cash and the proceeds therefrom, together with any other cash so held, will become part of Foreign Power's general corporate funds.

5. Amendment of Foreign Power's certificate of organization and bylaws. The certificate of Organization and the By-Laws of Foreign Power will be amended to conform to the plan and will provide for limited preemptive rights to the holders of Foreign Power's capital stock, provided that the provisions with regard to such preemptive rights shall not be required to be printed on Foreign Power's stock certificates.

6. Claim settlement. The plan provides that its approval by the Commission, its confirmation by the Court, and its consummation by the parties, shall have the effect of a complete compromise, settlement and discharge of all claims and counter-claims of the parties or their various security holders as such, against the parties and wholly owned subsidiaries.

7. Fees and expenses. The Commission is petitioned if it aproves the plan to approve the amount of the payments which Foreign Power agrees to make to the plaintiffs or their attorneys or accountants in the Court actions enumerated in the plan and to any other persons by way of reimbursement of the disbursements or allowances for legal, accounting or other services. Foreign Power undertakes to make such other payments as may be determined or allowed by the Commission without prejudice, however, to its right to seek judicial review of any such determination.

8. Effective date. The effective date of the plan will be a date as soon as practicable following the entry by a United States District Court of an order approving and enforcing the plan and will be specifically fixed in a written notice delivered by Foreign Power to this Commission.

9. Miscellaneous. The Commission is requested in the event it approves the plan to apply to an appropriate District Court of the United States for its enforcement.

The plan states that its consummation is subject to the receipt from the United States Treasury Department of a closing agreement or ruling as to the tax consequences to Foreign Power and to the holders of its stocks of the transactions necessary to carry out the plan and such agreement or ruling shall be satisfactory to Foreign Power and Bond and Share. It is requested that any order of the Commission approving the plan recite that the relevant transactions of the plan are necessary or appropriate to the integration or simplification of the holding company system of which Foreign Power is a member and are necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act within the meaning and requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended, including section 1808 (f) and Supplement R thereof.

While application for approval of the plan is pending or while the plan is being carried out Foreign Power reserves the right to dispose of any securities or other assets or take any other action in a manner consistent with the provisions of the plan and of the act and other applicable provisions of law.

III. The Commission being required by the provisions of section 11 (e) of the act before approving any plan thereunder to find, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that such plan, as amended or as modified, is necessary to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act and is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby, and it appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to the plan filed by Foreign Power and Bond and Share to afford all interested persons an opportunity to be heard with respect thereto; and

It further appearing to the Commission that the record with respect to Foreign Power's previous plan dated October 25, 1944, as amended (File Nos. 54–111 and 59–12) contains facts and data pertinent to the present proceeding and should be incorporated in and deemed a part of the record in these proceedings subject, however, to the qualifications hereinafter set forth:

It is ordered, That all evidence adduced in the proceedings contained in File Nos. 54–111 and 59–12 shall be incorporated in and be deemed a part of the record in the proceedings with respect to the present plan without prejudice, however, to the right of the Commission upon its own motion or upon the motion of any interested party to strike such portions of the record in the prior proceedings as may be deemed irrelevant to the issues raised with respect to the proposed plan, and to the right of any interested person upon proper showing, to supplement the evidence therein and to recall witnesses therein for further examination.

It is further ordered, That a hearing with respect to the proposed plan be held on March 6, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington, D. C., in such room as may be designated on that date by the Hearing Room Clerk in Room 193.

A petition having been filed on December 21, 1950, by C. Shelby Carter, et al., as a committee for the holders of the $7 and $6 First Preferred Stocks of Foreign Power requesting that the Commission issue an order requiring (1) that Foreign Power make no further payment of principal or interest on the $49,500,000 principal amount of its notes held by Bond and Share pending determination of such motion and until the December 1948, and all subsequent dividends of Foreign Power's First Preferred Stocks shall have been fully paid and (2) that an order be issued enjoining Bond and Share from taking any steps to collect any such principal or interest and (3) that an order be issued directing an immediate redistribution of voting power on a fair and equitable basis among the holders of the First and Second Preferred Stocks of Foreign Power.

It is further ordered, That the petition of the said C. Shelby Carter, et al., be considered at the hearings commencing March 6, 1951, hereinbefore ordered.

It is further ordered, That Harold B. Teegarden or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at said hearing. The officer so designated to preside at such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of said act and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

The Division of Public Utilities of this Commission having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the plan and upon the basis thereof the following matters and questions are presented for consideration without prejudice to the specifying of additional matters and questions upon further examination:

(1) Whether the plan as submitted or as hereafter modified is necessary to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act, is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby and is in conformity with the requirements of the Commission's order of May 2, 1949.

(4) Whether the Commission shall, in accordance with the petition of the parties to the plan, take and exercise jurisdiction to fix and determine the amounts of the payments, if any, to be made by Foreign Power to the plaintiffs or their attorneys or accountants in the legal proceedings specifically enumerated in the plan, by way of reimbursement for disbursements or allowances for legal, accounting or other services, and if so, what action it should take in the exercise of such jurisdiction.

MALDEN AND MELROSE GAS LIGHT CO. ET AL.

ORDER PERMITTING DECLARATIONS TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 29th day of January A. D. 1951.

In the matter of Malden and Melrose Gas Light Company, New England Power Company, Southern Berkshire Power & Electric Company, File No. 70–2547.

Malden and Melrose Gas Light Company ("Malden and Melrose"), New England Power Company ("NEPCO") and Southern Berkshire Power & Electric Company ("Southern Berkshire"), all subsidiaries of New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company, having filed with this Commission separate declarations under section 7 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 with respect to the following transactions:

The three declarant companies propose during the three months ending March 31, 1951, to issue to certain banks, pursuant to bank letter agreements, notes in the aggregate amounts shown in the following table. The table also shows, among other things, the maximum amounts of notes which may be outstanding at any one time under the bank letter agreements and the amounts of such notes outstanding at January 1, 1951.

	Amounts proposed to be issued up to Mar 31, 1951	Outstanding Jan. 1, 1951	Maximum amounts which may be outstanding at any one time	Estimated amounts
				To be retired by Mar. 31, 1951	To be outstanding Mar. 31, 1951
NEPCO	[1] $5,500,000	$7,500,000	$10,500,000	$10,500,000	[1] $2,500,000
Malden and Melrose	100,000	850,000	1,000,000		950,000
Southern Berkshire	50,000	350,000	500,000		400,000

[1] NEPCO states that borrowings by that company would be reduced by $1,500,000 in the event of a bond issue of $12,000,000 principal amount, and the balance at Mar. 31, 1951 of notes payable would thereby be reduced to $1,000,000.

Under the bank letter agreements (see Holding Company Act Releases Nos. 8253, 9527, and 10182), the notes proposed to be issued by NEPCO, like its notes presently outstanding, would bear interest at a rate of 2¼ percent and mature May 31, 1951, and the notes proposed to be issued by Malden and Melrose and by Southern Berkshire, like the notes of these two companies presently outstanding, would bear interest at a rate of 2½ percent and mature May 31, 1951. NEPCO states that it has entered into a supplemental agreement extending its prior bank letter agreement from December 31, 1950, to March 31, 1951. The existing agreements of Malden and Melrose and of Southern Berkshire extend to May 31, 1951. Under each of the three agreements the commitment fee is ½ of 1 percent per annum of the average daily unborrowed balance of the commitment.

Each of the declarant companies proposes that if any permanent financing is done before the maturity of the notes issued under bank letter agreements, exclusive of permanent financing which replaces indebtedness to NEES, it will apply the proceeds therefrom in reduction of, or in total payment of, notes then outstanding, and the balance of such notes then unissued, if any, pursuant to the declarations herein, or to any order of this Commission with reference thereto, will be reduced by the amount, if any, by which such permanent financing exceeds the notes at the outstanding. NEPCO states that it plans to issue $12,000,000 of bonds, the proceeds of which it assumes will be realized early in March 1951, and it estimates that $10,500,000 of such proceeds will be used to pay off its total bank debt then outstanding. NEPCO states that the balance of the proceeds, $1,500,000 will be used to pay construction costs in March 1951 but, as it is estimated that a total of $2,500,000 will be needed in that month, it will be necessary to borrow the balance of $1,000,000.

The three declarant companies state that the proposed transactions have as their purpose the temporary financing of construction through March 31, 1951, or until such earlier time as permanent financing is arranged, and to replenish any depletion of working capital occasioned by construction of property already in progress. In connection with the system program for financing the construction requirements of the subsidiaries of NEES, including, among other things, the maintenance by NEES of a reasonable equity base for the required senior financing, the declaration contains the same statement quoted in the order of this Commission dated October 27, 1950, in Beverly Gas and Electric Company, et al., Holding Company Act Release No. 10182.

Expenses in connection with the proposed transactions, consisting of payments to be made to New England Power Service Company, an affiliated service company, for services to be performed at cost, are estimated by declarants as $600 for NEPCO and $200 each for Malden and Melrose and for Southern Berkshire. In addition NEPCO proposes to reimburse The First National Bank of Boston, as agent under the bank letter agreement for out-of-pocket expenses, including counsel fees, incurred in connection with the supplemental agreement, estimated to be $200 and miscellaneous expenses, including printing, estimated to be $100.

It is stated that no state commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Notice of such filing having duly been given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 under the act and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect thereto within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon;

Declarants having requested that the Commission's order become effective upon issuance; and

The Commission finding with respect to said declarations, as amended, that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the act and the rules thereunder are satisfied, that no adverse findings are necessary, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said declarations, as amended, be permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act and the rules thereunder, and subject to the terms and conditions of Rule U-24, that said declarations, as amended, be, and hereby are, permitted to become effective forthwith.

By the Commission.

Rule N-17D-1 of the general rules and regulations was promulgated by the Commission pursuant to section 17 (d) of the act. The rule among other things provides, in effect, that no registered investment company shall participate in or effect any transaction in connection with a pension plan or arrangement, unless an application regarding such plan or arrangement has been filed with the Commission and has been granted by an order entered prior to the submission of such plan or arrangement to security holders for approval of prior to the adoption thereof if not so submitted.

Under the rule as then in effect, an application became effective on the tenth day after filing unless on or before such tenth day the Commission ordered a hearing thereon for the purpose of determining whether or not the plan or arrangement met the standards prescribed in the rule. The Commission permitted the application to become effective without ordering a hearing thereon.[1] The stockholders of both Foreign and International adopted the plan at their annual meetings held on March 19, 1947, and the Treasury Department subsequently approved the plan as meeting the requirements of section 165 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code.

[1] Subsequently the rule was revised to require affirmative action by the Commission in the form of an order authorizing a registered investment company to participate in or effect a transaction in connection with a pension plan.

The plan provides among other things that any employee, including officers, in the service of any of the three companies on April 1, 1947, or on any April 1st thereafter who has completed at least two years of continuous service, has attained the age of twenty-five, and has not attained his sixty-second birthday, shall be eligible to become a participant in the plan. Contributions are required from participants and the benefits under the plan are provided through annuity contracts issued by an insurance company. The plan provides that the standard pension payable annually shall be one-half of the average of a participant's annual salary for each of the ten years commencing with the calendar year in which he has reached the age of 50 years less his annual primary Social Security benefits. Averages of shorter periods are provided for in the computation of pensions of employees who are employed after they have reached the age of 50. The plan also provides that the maximum pension payable under the plan shall be an amount equal to $10,000 a year, less the participant's annual primary Social Security benefits.

The application states that legislation has recently been enacted increasing the amount of primary Social Security benefits and also increasing the amounts deducted from salaries pursuant to the Social Security Law. In addition, the cost of living has increased considerably since the adoption of the plan in 1947. If the plan is not amended, the recently enacted increase in primary Social Security benefits will not increase the aggregate amount which a participant in the plan will receive upon his retirement, although the amounts deducted from the salaries of participants will in nearly all cases be increased. In addition, Applicants believe that consideration should be given to the increase in the cost of living since the plan was adopted. Applicants therefore desire to amend the plan in the following respects:

(a) To provide that instead of subtracting 100 percent of the annual primary Social Security benefits from one-half of a participant's average annual salary in order to determine the amount of his pension, there shall be subtracted 50 percent of such annual primary Social Security benefits; and

(b) To provide that the maximum annual pension shall be an amount equal to $12,500 per annum less 50 percent of a participant's primary Social Security benefits rather than $10,000 per annum less 100 percent of his primary Social Security benefits.

The current service costs of Applicants in the year 1951 without giving effect to the proposed amendments are estimated to be approximately:

Foreign	$9,400
International	10,500
Keswick	18,000
	37,900

The increased cost to Applicants in 1951 if only amendment (a) were to be adopted is estimated to be approximately:

Foreign	$500
International	600
Keswick	1,500
	2,600

The increased cost to Applicants in 1951 if only amendment (b) were to be adopted is estimated to be approximately:

Foreign	$1,200
International	1,200
Keswick	1,800
	4,200

Applicants desire to obtain from the U. S. Treasury Department an approval, under section 165 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, of the plan as amended by the proposed amendments. Applicants have discussed this matter with the United States Treasury Department and have been assured that there will be no difficulty in obtaining such approval. The proposed amendments to the plan will not be put into effect if for any reason such approval should not be obtained. If the order of the Commission requested by Applicants is granted, Foreign and International propose to submit the proposed amendments for approval of their respective stockholders at their annual meetings to be held on March 21, 1951.

All interested persons are referred to said application which is on file at the Washington, D. C., office of this Commission for a more detailed statement of the matters of fact and law therein asserted.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application, in whole or in part and upon such conditions as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate, may be issued by the Commission at any time on or after February 19, 1951, unless prior thereto a hearing upon the application is ordered by the Commission, as provided in Rule N-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act. Any interested person may submit to the Commission in writing, not later than February 16, 1951 at 5:30 p. m., his views or any additional facts bearing upon the application or the desirability of a hearing thereon, or a request to the Commission that a hearing be held thereon. Any such communication or request should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request, and the issue of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street, NW., Washington, D. C.

By the Commission.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the First War Powers Act, 1941, as amended by the act of January 12, 1951, entitled "An Act To amend and extend title II of the First War Powers Act, 1941" (Public Law 921, 81st Congress), hereinafter called the Act, and as President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the armed forces of the United States, and deeming that such action will facilitate the national defense, it is hereby ordered as follows:

PART I

Under such regulations, which shall be uniform to the extent practicable, as may be prescribed or approved by the Secretary of Defense:

1. The Department of Defense is authorized, within the limits of the amounts appropriated and the contract authorization provided therefor, to enter into contracts and into amendments or modifications of contracts heretofore or hereafter made, and to make advance, progress, and other payments thereon, without regard to the provisions of law relating to the making, performance, amendment, or modification of contracts.

2. The Secretaries of Defense, the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force may exercise the authority herein conferred and, in their discretion and by their direction may delegate such authority to any other military or civilian officers or officials of their respective departments, and may confer upon any such military or civilian officers or officials the power to make further delegations of such authority within their respective departments.

3. The contracts hereby authorized to be made include agreements of all kinds (whether in the form of letters of intent, purchase orders, or otherwise) for all types and kinds of things and services necessary, appropriate or convenient for the national defense, or for the invention, development, or production of, or research concerning any such things, including, but not limited to, aircraft, buildings, vessels, arms, armament, equipment, or supplies of any kind, or any portion thereof, including plans, spare parts and equipment therefor, materials, supplies, facilities, utilities, machinery, machine tools, and any other equipment without any restriction of any kind, either as to type, character, location, or form.

4. The Department of Defense may by agreement modify or amend or settle claims under contracts heretofore or hereafter made, may make advance, progress, and other payments upon such contracts of any percentum of the contract price, and may enter into agreements with contractors or obligors, modifying or releasing accrued obligations of any sort, including accrued liquidated damages or liability under surety or other bonds, whenever, in the judgment of the Secretaries of Defense, the Army, the Navy, or the Air Force, respectively, or their duly authorized representatives, the national defense will be thereby facilitated. Amendments and modifications of contracts may be with or without consideration and may be utilized to accomplish the same things as any original contract could have accomplished hereunder, irrespective of the time or circumstances of the making, or the form, of the contract amended or modified, or of the amending or modifying contract, and irrespective of rights which may have accrued under the contract or the amendments or modifications thereof.

5. Advertising, competitive bidding, and bid, payment, performance or other bonds or other forms of security need not be required.

6. Complete data shall be maintained by the Department of Defense as to all contracts and purchases made pursuant to the Act and this order. The Secretaries of Defense, the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force shall make available for public inspection so much of such data as they may respectively deem compatible with the public interest and as does not cover classified contracts or purchases.

7. There shall be no discrimination in any act performed hereunder against any person on the ground of race, creed,

8. No claim against the United States arising under any purchase or contract made under the authority of the Act and this order shall be assigned except in accordance with the Assignment of Claims Act of 1940 (54 Stat. 1029).

9. Advance payments shall be made hereunder only after careful scrutiny to determine that such payments will promote the national defense.

10. Every contract entered into, amended, or modified pursuant to this order shall contain a warranty by the contractor in substantially the following terms:

> The Contractor warrants that no person or selling agency has been employed or retained to solicit or secure this contract upon an agreement or understanding for a commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee, excepting bona fide employees or bona fide established commercial or selling agencies maintained by the Contractor for the purpose of securing business. For breach or violation of this warranty the Government shall have the right to annul this contract without liability or in its discretion to deduct from the contract price or consideration the full amount of such commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee.

11. All contracts entered into, amended, or modified pursuant to authority of this order shall include a clause to the effect that the Comptroller General of the United States or any of his duly authorized representatives shall have access to and the right to examine any pertinent books, documents, papers, and records of the contractor or any of his subcontractors engaged in the performance of and involving transactions related to such contracts or subcontracts.

In the absence of such limitation, the fixed fee to be paid the contractor as a result of any cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract entered into under the authority of this order shall not exceed 10 percentum of the estimated cost of the contract, exclusive of the fee, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, the Army, the Navy, or the Air Force at the time of entering into such contract (except that a fee not in excess of 15 percentum of such estimated cost is authorized in any such contract for experimental, developmental, or research work, and that a fee inclusive of the contractor's costs and not in excess of 6 percentum of the estimated cost, exclusive of fees, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, the Army, the Navy, or the Air Force at the time of entering into the contract, of the project to which such fee is applicable, is authorized in contracts for architectural or engineering services relating to any public works or utility project).

14. No contract or modification or amendment thereof shall be exempt from the provisions of the Walsh-Healey Act (49 Stat. 2036), as amended, because of being entered into without advertising or competitive bidding, and the provisions of such act, the Davis-Bacon Act (49 Stat. 1011), as amended, the Copeland Act (48 Stat. 948), as amended, and the Eight Hour Law (37 Stat. 137), as amended, if otherwise applicable shall apply to contracts made and performed under the authority of this order.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter VII—Production and Marketing Administration (Agricultural Adjustment), Department of Agriculture

PART 730—RICE

TERMINATION OF ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS FOR 1951 CROP

§ 730.201a Basis and purpose. This regulation is issued to announce the termination of 1951 national, State and county rice acreage allotments (15 F. R. 8673) and of farm acreage allotments determined under regulations applicable to the 1951 crop of rice issued December 19, 1950 (15 F. R. 9181). Such termination is based upon section 371 (b) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended.

Section 371 (b) of the act authorizes the Secretary to increase or terminate the national marketing quota or national acreage allotment for any basic agricultural commodity if he finds, after appropriate investigation, that such action is necessary to effectuate the declared policy of the act, or to meet a national emergency or increase in export demand for the commodity.

Pursuant to section 371 (b) of the act, an investigation has been made to determine whether acreage allotments should be continued in effect for the 1951 crop of rice. On the basis of that investigation, it is hereby found and determined that it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act and to meet the present national emergency in food production, to terminate all acreage allotments for the 1951 crop of rice. Such termination is made effective by this revision of § 730.202.

In order to provide for the required increase in rice production to meet the present emergency and to make certain that farmers have ample time to readjust their plans for planting rice for the 1951 crop, it is hereby found and determined that compliance with the notice and public procedure provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) is impracticable and contrary to the public interest.

§ 730.202 1951 national, State, county and farm acreage allotments for rice. The national acreage allotment for the 1951 crop is hereby terminated. Accordingly, no State, county or farm acreage allotments shall be in effect for the 1951 rice crop.

(Sec. 375, 52 Stat. 66, as amended, 7 U. S. C. 1375. Interpret or apply sec. 371, 52 Stat. 64, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1371)

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

[Supp. 13]

PART 4b—AIRPLANE AIRWORTHINESS; TRANSPORT CATEGORIES

FLIGHT AND NAVIGATIONAL INSTRUMENTS

The following policies are hereby adopted:

§ 4b.612-1 Automatic pilot systems (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.612 (d)). Recent advances in the design of automatic pilot systems (automatic flight control system) together with their use in newer type aircraft, both at higher speeds and in conjunction with navigation aids, have made it necessary that a more thorough investigation be made of their function and operation in order that the safety level of air carrier operation be maintained.

To preclude hazardous conditions which may result from any failure or malfunctioning of the automatic pilot system, or its inadvertent use by the human pilot, the following conditions should be investigated by flight tests:

(a) A signal or combination of signals about all axes simulating maximum failure or malfunction should be induced into the automatic pilot system during all regimes of flight appropriate to its use (straight cruising flight and maneuvering flight). If corrective action is taken three seconds after the signal is induced, neither the simulated failure nor the subsequent corrective action resulting therefrom should create loads beyond an envelope of 0 to 2 "g," or speeds beyond V_{NE}, or dangerous deviations from the flight path, or loads greater than those prescribed in § 4b.612 (d) (4).

(b) The automatic pilot system, including altitude control and coordinated turn control if installed, should be able to perform its intended function throughout all maneuvers appropriate to its type. All such maneuvers should be accomplished smoothly and without inadvertently placing loads on the aircraft greater than those called out in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) If the automatic pilot system is used in conjunction with an automatic approach coupler it should be able to perform its intended function and the following should apply:

(1) Throughout an approach no signal or combination of signals simulating maximum failure or malfunction in the automatic pilot system should produce hazardous deviations in the flight path or any degree of loss of control if corrective action is initiated one second after inducing the failure.

(2) An engine failure during such an approach should not result in rapid deviations of the airplane from the flight path.

(3) A positive means should be provided to indicate to the human pilot when the automatic pilot system has been uncoupled from the automatic approach coupler.

(d) If an automatic trim follow-up system is used, it should be so designed and adjusted that a maximum failure signal to the trim system will not create a hazardous condition.

(e) The provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), (c) (1), and (d) of this section, may be met by the use of an automatic disconnect if the pilot is provided with positive means to indicate when the automatic pilot system has been uncoupled from the airplane flight controls by the automatic disconnect.

(f) The automatic pilot system should not be subject to reactions that would produce spurious control signals due to variations in the automatic pilot system power source or induced signals produced by other electrical systems.

(g) The automatic pilot system should be so designed and adjusted that the servo stall force used during flight tests can be maintained in operation without excessive periods of adjustments. (This may be accompilshed by flight testing throughout an envelope of servo stall forces.)

(h) Sufficient limitations and operating procedures should be entered in the Airplane Flight Manual to insure the proper use and safety of the automatic pilot system.

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 425. Interprets or applies sec. 603, 52 Stat. 1009, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 553)

These policies shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

[Supp. 14]

AIRPLANE FLIGHT MANUAL

The following policies are hereby adopted:

§ 4b.740-1 Preparation of airplane flight manuals for aircraft certificated in the transport category (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.740). The primary purpose of the manual is to provide for the crew who will operate the airplane any information concerning the airplane considered by the Civil Aeronautics Administration essential to or likely to promote safety during such operation. This will ordinarily require a certain amount of descriptive material concerning those parts of the airplane directly operated or otherwise used by the crew, an understanding by them of the nature, location, and functioning of which is therefore essential. The manual should also contain, in order to serve this purpose, a description and chronological outline of the procedure to be followed by the crew during various phases of the operation both "normal" and "emergency" in which special attention and emphasis should be given to any precaution which should be observed therein in the interest of safety.

Another important purpose of the manual is to implement the operating requirements of §§ 41.27, 42.70, and 61.213 of this chapter; i. e., to furnish a source for all the airplane information necessary to establish the limitations specified by those requirements as well as that necessary to enable the crew readily to operate the airplane within the limitations so established. This purpose requires the inclusion in the manual of all operating limitations peculiar to the airplane under any circumstances likely to be encountered during its life as well as information concerning each of the items of performance involved by §§ 41.27, 42.70, and 61.213 of this chapter as functions of weight, altitude, outside air temperature, wind velocity, flap setting, etc., throughout the range of these variables for which it is desired by the applicant to provide; the point being that the scheduled operation of the airplane by an air carrier will be limited to values of all such variables within the range(s) covered by information available in the manual. This situation requires that the applicant consider the extent to which he wishes to limit the usefulness of the airplane subsequent to its certification as a type.

It may be noted, concerning the material to be included in the manual, that two types are involved. The first of these is the operating limitations which are, in effect, a partial statement of the terms upon which the airworthiness certificate is issued. Compliance with these operating limitations is therefore required by law (see section 610 (a) of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 and § 4b.738 (d). The second type of material is the performance information, recommended operating procedures, and loading instructions, the observance or use of which is not legally required of the operator of the airplane by this part, but may be required by §§ 41.27, 42.70, or 61.213 of this chapter. This second type of material is intended to convey information believed likely to promote or contribute to safety in operation.

The following outlines an acceptable arrangement of the Airplane Flight Manual. This policy does not affect the status of manuals which already have final approval. However, whenever such manuals are revised for other reasons, it is recommended that the terminology of this policy be incorporated wherever it will increase clarity and uniformity. It should be noted that not all the items outlined below for inclusion in the document for a given airplane, and the Civil Aeronautics Administration is desirous of holding the document to the smallest practicable amount of material as it is believed that the usefulness of the manual will bear some inverse relation to its physical bulk and to the extent of its complexity. It is, therefore, strongly recommended that great care be taken to prepare it in the simplest, most compact form consistent with the completeness and clarity of presentation of the necessary information. Also it is suggested that consideration be given to the likelihood of revisions and the manner in and ease with which this may be accomplished. Only the material (listed below) required by this part should be included in the Civil Aeronautics Administration approved portion of the manual. However, if desired, the manufacturer or operator may add other data in a distinctly separate section in the same cover. The portion of the material (outlined below) that is to be approved by the Civil Aeronautics Administration must be so marked, and clearly separated from any other material so that no one could easily err in regard to the part that is approved. The aircraft specification for the type will list the manual as an item of required equipment and the manual must be made available upon request to any CAA agent issuing an original airworthiness certificate under the type certificate in order that he may verify that the manual furnished with that individual airplane conforms with the approval manual. Since the manual is necessary for safe operation of the airplane, the manual is considered to be public information.

There is no objection to air carrier operators incorporating the subject manual in their own Operations Manual which is assigned to individual crew members in lieu of carrying two separate manuals provided the manual which is furnished by the air carrier includes a separate and properly identified chapter which contains the manufacturer's issue of the CAA Approved Airplane Flight Manual or a satisfactory reproduction identical in both form and contents. The Airplane Flight Manual or its equivalent may, in lieu of individual identification by serial or N numbers, contain a list of the airplane to which the manual is applicable. Such manuals may be installed in the aircraft or be issued to members of the flight crew. Regardless of the procedure in effect, it is the air carrier operator's responsibility to establish a satisfactory system whereby an up-to-date copy of the appropriate manual for the particular airplane is readily available to the flight crew during the operation of the airplane. Inasmuch as the subject manual constitutes a required item of equipment, it is the responsibility of the assigned Air Carrier Maintenance Agent to ascertain that an appropriate and up-to-date copy, or its equivalent, is available to the crew at all times during flight.

The page size for the Airplane Flight Manual will be left to the decision of the manufacturer, although it is believed that an 8" x 10½" size will probably be found most convenient and this size is recommended. A cover should be provided and it should indicate the nature of the contents with the following title: "Airplane Flight Manual." Each page of the approved portion should bear the notation "CAA Approved" and the date of issuance. The material should be bound in a semi-permanent fashion so that the pages will not be lost easily, yet should be so bound that revised pages can be inserted. The aircraft specification will identify the manual, and when different types of the airplane are covered in separate manuals, each will be listed. Also, the latest approved revisions will be shown on the aircraft specification when these changes are considered to be of major importance to airworthiness.

The Airplane Flight Manual should contain as much of the following as is applicable to the individual model. It is suggested that the document be divided into sections as indicated in paragraphs (a)–(g) of this section. The sequence of sections and of items within sections should follow this outline insofar as practicable. This will facilitate revising the document when an airplane is altered in the field. It is recommended that revisions to the manual resulting from major alterations to the airplane be in the form of supplements to the original manual with individual log of revision pages.

(2) Table of contents.

(3) Log of revisions. This page should be in the form of a table in which to record for each revision an identifying symbol, a date, and the page numbers involved. All revised pages should show a revision date and a vertical bar should be placed along the left hand margin to indicate the latest revised portion of each page.

(b) Operating limitations. The purpose of this section is merely to state the limitations without any unnecessary explanation of what they are. The manual should point out that observance of these limitations is required by law.

(1) Weight limits. Indicate the range of maximum take-off and landing weight approved by means of a table or suitable diagram showing these weights at various altitudes throughout the range for which performance information is contained in the manual. State that airplane weight in excess of maximum landing weight must be disposable fuel. State any other limitations on weight. In addition to the maximum weights and any relative information, a statement to the effect that the airplane must be loaded in accordance with the approved loading schedule should be included. (See paragraph (c) of this section.) The following is a typical example:

(i) Maximum take-off weight at sea level is 92,000 pounds.

(ii) Maximum landing weight at sea level is 73,000 pounds.

NOTE: This airplane is to be operated in accordance with the approved loading schedule. (See paragraph (c) of this section.) For maximum permissible weights at various altitudes, see paragraph (d), Performance information, of this section. In scheduled or irregular passenger operations, operating weights are limited in accordance with parts 41, 42, or 61 of this chapter.

(iii) All weight in excess of the maximum permissible landing weight must consist of disposable fuel.

(iv) All weight in excess of 68,000 pounds must consist of fuel for structural reasons.

(v) All fuel weight must be distributed equally on both sides of the airplane. All main tanks must be filled (equally) first, alternate second, and then auxiliaries. Fuel must be used in reverse order from fuel loading except for take-off, climb and landing—at which time the main tanks should be used.

(2) Center of gravity limits. State all authorized C. G. limits and refer to paragraph (e) of this section for weight and balance data. All C. G. limits should be given in inches from the datum, which should be identified and in percent of the mean aerodynamic chord, with the landing gear extended in all cases.

(3) Power plant. State all power plant limitations; i. e., manifold pressure, rpm, maximum time for use of take-off power, cylinder head and barrel and oil temperatures, minimum fuel octane number, etc. Give any limitation on rpm due to vibration, tip speed, etc.; also propeller pitch, cowl flap position limitations, etc. The items should be listed as follows:

(i) Engine.
(b) Model.
(c) Propeller drive gear ratio.
(d) Fuel, minimum octane.
(e) Temperatures — Maximum permissible cylinder head and oil inlet.
(f) Power limits—Those given by the engine specification; i. e., excluding the effect of ram on critical altitude.
(g) Any limitations, such as rpm ranges in which operation is prohibited due to engine or propeller vibration.
(ii) Propellers.
(a) Manufacturer.
(b) Model designation.
(iii) Instrument markings. An explanation of the instrument markings should be included. A typical example follows:
(a) General: Red radial line—Maximum and minimum limits. Yellow arc—Take-off and precautionary ranges. Green arc—Normal operating ranges. Red arc—Ranges in which operation is prohibited.
(b) Fuel quantity indicator (when applicable—Reference § 4b.736). Red arc—Fuel which cannot be used safely in flight.

(4) Speed limitations. The speeds and explanations of their significance given in subdivisions (i) through (vi) of this subparagraph should be included. Section 4b.710 does specify whether airspeed limitations should be expressed in terms of calibrated or indicated airspeed. However, to agree with past practice it is suggested that the airspeed values be expressed in terms of calibrated airspeed. The indicated airspeed values may also be included, but should be properly identified, e. g. by parentheses.

(i) Never exceed speed. V_{NE} (previously known as "glide or dive speed") with and without de-icer boots, if applicable plus a statement to the effect that speeds in excess of this value may result in structural, flutter, or control hazards. The effects of altitude (i. e., Mach number) on this speed should be given if applicable unless the airplane is equipped with a Machmeter, in which case the "never-exceed" Mach number should also be quoted.

(ii) Normal operating limit speed. V_{NO} (previously known as "level flight or climb speed" or "maximum structural cruising speed"), with and without de-icer boots if applicable, plus statements to the effect that: Speeds in excess of this value may result in excessive gust loads, whereas speeds below this value will reduce the structural loads produced by severe gusts. (The "maneuvering speed" is generally considered the optimum speed to avoid excessive loads as well as inadvertent stalling or loss of control in turbulent air.) The speed V_{NO} should not be deliberately exceeded, even during descents because of the possibility of unexpected gusts. The speed range between V_{NO} and V_{NE} is to provide for inadvertent speed increases. When this speed is reduced at altitude because of Mach number effects, the purpose of such reduction is to maintain the margin between V_{NO} and V_{NE} for inadvertent speed increases.

(iii) Maneuvering speed. V_A, plus a statement of its significance, of which the following is an example: "Maximum use" of the primary flight controls should be confined to speeds below this value. For this purpose, "maximum use" is defined as the lesser of the following: Rudder—full throw, or ------ pounds force. Elevator—full throw, or ------ pounds force. Aileron—full throw, or ------ pounds force with each hand.

(iv) Flaps extended speed. V_{FE} at least the speed determined in accordance with § 4b.714 must be given. However, when desired, speeds for various combinations of flap settings and power conditions may be given, the following is an example:

Flap setting	Maximum speed (m. p. h.)	Maximum power
Take-off	----------	Take-off.
Approach	----------	Continuous.
	----------	Take-off.
Landing	----------	Idling.
	----------	Take-off.

(A note should be added to indicate which of the values is to be marked on the airspeed indicator.)

(v) Landing gear operating speed. V_{LO}, plus a statement that this is the maximum speed at which the landing gear may be lowered or raised.

(vi) Landing gear extended speed. V_{LE}, plus a statement that this is the maximum speed with landing gear extended and locked.

(vii) Compressibility effects. When a speed limitation (e. g., never exceed speed) results from compressibility effects, the manual should include a statement to this effect and information concerning warning symptoms, probable behavior of the airplane and suggested recovery procedure.

(viii) Airspeed-indicator markings. An explanation of the airspeed-indicator markings should be included. A typical example follows: "Airspeed-Indicator markings (See definitions of speeds in subdivisions (i) through (vi) of this subparagraph). Red radial line—never exceed speed, V_{NE}. Yellow arc—caution range, extending from V_{NO} to V_{NE}. White arc—flaps extended range, extending from stalling speed (V_{S_0}) with flaps in landing position at maximum landing weight to the flaps extended speed (§4b.714). Green arc—normal operating range; i. e., from stalling speed with flaps retracted at maximum take-off weight to V_{NO}."

(5) Demonstrated crosswind. The statement on this item should indicate the maximum cross component of wind velocity at which it has been demonstrated to be safe to take-off or land. If the value established during the tests is considered the maximum up to which it is considered safe to operate the airplane on the ground, including take-offs and landings, it should be entered under this item; i. e., as a limitation. However, if the value established is not considered limiting it should be included as performance information, as outlined in paragraph (d) of this section, instead of a limitation. In the case of flying boats and additional maximum cross component of wind velocity for taxiing may be appropriate material. Crosswind should be based on reported wind velocities measured at 50 feet above the ground.

(6) Flight load acceleration limits. Flaps up ------ (at take-off weight). Flaps down ------ (at landing weight).

(7) Type of airplane operation. A typical example would be as follows:
(i) Transport category.
(ii) Instrument night flying (when required equipment is installed).
(iii) Atmospheric icing conditions—should stipulate "none, trace, light, moderate or heavy."

(8) Minimum crew. Information should be given in this item for all operations specified under subparagraph (7) of this paragraph and any additional conditions if desired or considered pertinent. The number and identity of members of minimum crew necessary to safe operation should be stated.

(9) Miscellaneous. This item should include any information not given under the preceding headings that is restrictive and considered necessary for the safe operation of the airplane. Some typical examples are as follows:
(i) The wing and tail anti-icing heaters should not be operated in flight when the outside air temperature is above 50° F.
(ii) Pressurized cabin differential pressure limits, etc.
(iii) A notation should be included to warn flight personnel against jettisoning fuel while the flaps are lowered unless it has been demonstrated that flap position does not adversely affect fuel jettisoning. (See § 4b.437 (b).)
(iv) Propeller reversing to be used for taxiing only.

(c) Operating procedures; general. This section of the manual should contain information peculiar to the airplane, concerning normal and emergency procedures, knowledge of which might enhance the safety of operation of the airplane. The manual should state that these procedures are not made mandatory by this part. However, they may be made mandatory by other parts of the regulations such as Parts 40, 41, 42, 61, etc. of this chapter.

(1) Normal procedures. This section should contain information and instructions regarding peculiarities of: Starting and warming engines, taxiing, operation of wing flaps, landing gear, automatic pilot, etc. Outline normal procedures for each, noting any special precautions in the interests of safety. Describe or refer to procedure in any emergency likely to occur in each. Also included in this section should be instructions for the operation of any equipment that is considered new in the aeronautical field or comparatively complicated.

(i) A typical example of the former would be: "Wing flaps should be exercised through three complete cycles prior to all initial take-offs. This operation accomplishes the automatic bleeding and the equalization of pressure to the eight separate hydraulic flap actuating cylinders."

(ii) Typical examples of the latter are: "Recommended operating procedures for thermal ice prevention system, recommended operating procedures for reversible pitch propellers, and cabin pressurization."

(2) Emergency procedures—(i) Engine failure. This section should include the procedure to be used in the event of an engine failure, including recommended minimum speeds, trim, operation of remaining engine(s), etc. A typical example would be as follows: "Engine Failure on Take-Off. The minimum speed (V_1) at which the airplane can be controlled directionally on the runway with an outboard engine inoperative and its propeller windmilling, and with take-off power on the remaining engines, is 60 m. p. h. TIAS. The minimum speed at which the airplane is controllable in flight with the sudden failure of an outboard engine, with take-off power on the remaining engines, is 96 m. p. h. TIAS. If an engine fails during the ground roll below speed V_1, cut the throttles on all engines and apply brakes. If ground contact has already been broken, land straight ahead if sufficient runway remains. If not, retract landing gear, maintain full power on live engines, and continue take-off. Feather the dead engine as outlined in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph. Use minimum cowl flap setting on live engines to maintain cylinder temperatures within limits. Retrim airplane as necessary. Speed for best climb under these conditions is 115 m. p. h. TIAS. See paragraph (d) Performance information, of this section, for criterion and V_1 speeds used in determining the runway lengths."

(ii) Propeller feathering. This section of the manual should outline the procedure to be followed in stopping the rotation of propellers in flight. A typical procedure is outlined below:
(a) Throttle—"Closed."
(b) Push feathering switch button. When propeller blades are fully feathered the button will kick out automatically.
(c) Mixture control—Idle cut-off."
(d) Fuel and oil fire wall shut-off switches—"Off" (closed).
(e) Cowl flaps—"Closed."
(f) Fuel booster pump—"Off."
(g) Tank selector for engine being feathered—"Off." (Do not shut tank selector "Off" if crossfeed is being used.)
(h) Ignition for dead engine—"Off."
(i) Propeller pitch control—"Full decrease r. p. m."
(iii) Automatic propeller feathering.
(iv) Unusual procedures. Information on any emergency procedures that are considered unusual or in which a specific sequence of events are required to accomplish the operation satisfactorily should be specified. Some typical examples are as follows:
(a) All-engine go-around when it is recommended practice to retract the flap prior to retracting the gear resulting from a design condition in which the flap creates more drag than the landing gear.
(b) Fire control procedures.
(c) Emergency cabin depressurization.
(d) Emergency landing gear extension.
(e) Emergency brake operation.
(f) Fuel dumping.
(g) Electrical: In addition to other electrical items, the manual should specify the circuits in which overriding breakers, if any, are used and contain instructions concerning operation of both overriding and non-over-riding types. The following is a typical example: "All circuit breakers are of the non-over-riding type except the fuel booster pumps and propeller feathering circuits. In an emergency, the breakers in these two circuits may be held closed with the possible risk of fire hazard due to short circuits, etc. Discretion should also be used in repeatedly resetting non-overriding breakers due to the fact that resetting may reestablish an arc and increase the fire hazard."
(h) Emergency by day and/or night.
(i) Flare release procedure.
(j) Wheels up landing procedure.
(k) Ditching procedure.

(3) Other special operating procedures (if any).

(4) Alternate operating procedures. After gaining a large amount of experience with a particular model airplane, some operators may develop various operating procedures that they consider equivalent or better than some of those originally described in the manual. If an operator wants to incorporate new procedures in the Airplane Flight Manual, the operator should apply to the CAA office in the region where he is located for approval of the alternate procedures in the same manner that he would normally use in the case of a structural change or alteration. The local CAA regional office will coordinate the application with the CAA regional office containing the airplane technical data file if the proposed change in procedure is considered to be of sufficient importance.

(i) For scheduled air carrier operators only. For greater flexibility and to avoid duplication of instructions to pilots when operators desire to incorporate Airplane Flight Manual Operating Procedures in their operations manuals or devise their own operating procedures, the CAA will permit the removal of the Operating Procedures Section from the Airplane Flight Manual by scheduled air carrier operators provided the operators include the same or equivalent material in their operations manual and at the same time assume full responsibility of proving the equivalency of any new or altered procedures if called upon to do so by the CAA in connection with airplane accident investigations, etc. When the Operating Procedure Section is removed from the Airplane Flight Manual by an operator, an appropriate notation to this effect should be added to the Airplane Flight Maual of each airplane affected.

In accordance with the foregoing, the following statement should be included under the Operating Procedure Section of the Airplane Flight Manual when the Operating Procedure Section is transferred verbatim from the Airplane Flight Manual to the air carrier operations manual:

> The airplane operating procedures prescribed by § 4b.742 Operating procedures are included in ------ (show reference to appropriate section of the air carrier operations manual) ------.

If an air carrier operator desires to reword or restate the CAA approved operating procedures or establish new or alternate operating procedures without obtaining prior approval of these procedures from the CAA, the following additional statement should be included with the above statement:

> Where the procedures in the air carrier operations manual differ from those contained in the CAA Approved Airplane Flight Manual for this airplane, (------name of air carrier operator------) has determined that equivalent safety is provided by such alternate procedures and assumes full responsibility for this determination.

If for any reason the alternate operating procedures become inapplicable or inappropriate to the operation of the airplanes affected, the original CAA Approved Operating Procedures Section should be reinserted in the Airplane Flight Manual in order that the contents of the manual will revert to the same text as originally approved by the CAA.

(d) Performance information. This section should contain all the performance information necessary to implement the operating requirements of § 61.213 of this chapter, etc., and to operate the airplane safely.

(1) Introductory information. This should include any general information or any pertinent descriptions of the conditions under which the performance data were determined. The following examples are considered typical and appropriate:

(i) All climb data are for standard atmospheric conditions.

(ii) The minimum effective take-off runway lengths given in this section are defined as the longer "accelerate-stop distance" and the distance required to take off and clear a 50-foot obstacle with one engine becoming inoperative at speed V_1.

(a) The accelerate-stop distance is the distance required to accelerate the airplane from a standing start to the speed V_1, and assuming an engine to fail at this point, to stop.

(b) The take-off distance is defined as the sum of the following: Distance to accelerate to speed V_1 with all engines operating, distance to accelerate from speed V_1 to speed V_2 with one engine inoperative and propeller windmilling in low pitch. (It is assumed that gear retraction is initiated at the end of this segment), and the horizontal distance traveled in climbing to a height of 50 feet at speed V_2 with one engine inoperative. (It is assumed that propeller feathering is not commenced prior to the end of this segment.)

(c) Speed V_1 is defined as the critical engine failure speed and is a speed at which the controllability has been demonstrated to be adequate to permit proceeding safely with the take-off when the critical engine is suddenly made inoperative. The minimum V_1 speed for this airplane is 60 m. p. h. TIAS (airspeed calibration should include ground effect); however, as explained below, speeds in excess of this value were used in determining the runway lengths.

(d) Speed V_2 is defined as the minimum take-off climb speed and is the greater of the following: 1.15 times the power-off stalling speed with the flaps in the take-off position (assuming a four-engine airplane), 1.10 times the minimum control speed, V_{mc}.

(e) The minimum control speed, V_{mc}, is defined as the minimum speed at which the airplane is controllable in flight with the sudden failure of an outboard engine with take-off power on the remaining engines.

(f) All runway lengths given in this manual are based upon optimum V_1 speeds; i. e., the speed selected for V_1 is such that the accelerate-stop distance is equal to the distance to clear a fifty foot obstacle with one engine becoming inoperative at this speed. Consequently, V_1 varies with weight, altitude, wind, gradient, temperature, etc. Values for V_1 for the various conditions are given under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(g) All take-off and landing distances are given for dry, concrete runways.

(h) If the maximum cross component wind velocity in which landings and take-offs were demonstrated was not considered limiting, it should be included in this section of the manual. A typical example would be as follows: "The maximum crosswind component in which this airplane has been tested in 20 m. p. h. measured at a height of 50 feet above the ground. Consequently, in determining the effective take-off and landing runway lengths, a crosswind component greater than this value may not be used."

(2) Performance data. These data may be given in either graphical or tabular form and should cover the weight range and all airport and terrain altitudes at which the airplane is intended to be operated. The scale of the charts should permit accurate reading within approximately 0.25 of one percent. The following should be included:

(i) Airspeed calibration. This should be given for the normal and alternate static sources. Ground effect should be included for V_1 speed range. (A plot of CAS vs. IAS @ various flap positions, preferably on one page.)

(ii) Altimeter calibration. This should be given for the normal and alternate static source.

(iii) Stalling speeds. A table or diagram of calibrated stalling speeds at various weights at all authorized flap settings, power-off should be given.

(iv) Gross weight summary. A summary of permissible operating landing and take-off gross weights as limited by the climb or structural requirements should be provided.

(v) Minimum take-off runway length. Unless optimum values of V_1 are selected, establishing equal distances to accelerate to speed V_1 and stop or to make a take-off over a 50-foot obstacle with the critical engine becoming inoperative at speed V_1, inclusion of both the accelerate-stop distance and runway length required to take-off and clear a 50-foot obstacle will be necessary. It is recommended that these data be given for a range of temperatures (see § 4b.117) and runway gradients sufficient to permit proper dispatching under the rules of § 61.213 of this chapter, etc., in addition to the standard day temperature data.

(vi) Take-off information. Take-off flight paths through the final climb segment, flight path slope or data supplementary to that obtained in subdivision (v) of this subparagraph that may be used for dispatching purposes should be included. These should be for the same range of temperatures (see § 4b.117) and runway gradients as subdivision (v) of this subparagraph.

(vii) Minimum take-off climb speed, V_2. This speed should be listed for the range of weights, altitudes and conditions covered in subdivisions (v) and (vi) of this subparagraph. The distance to accelerate to these speeds should also be included to provide data necessary for gradient problems involving runways with variable gradients of sufficient magnitude that average gradients cannot be assumed.

(viii) Critical engine failure speed, V_1. This speed or speeds V_1 for the range of weights, altitudes and conditions covered in subdivisions (v) and (vi) of this subparagraph if applicable should be given. The distances to accelerate to these speeds should also be included to provide data necessary for gradient problems involving runways with variable gradients of sufficient magnitude that average gradients cannot be assumed.

(ix) Minimum runway length required for landing. With respect to this item, the following data would be considered appropriate: Landing distance from height of 50 feet. Minimum effective landing runway length—scheduled stops. (See § 61.213 of this chapter.) Minimum effective landing runway length—alternate stops. (See § 61.213 of this chapter.)

(x) Wind effect in landing and take-off. If it is desired to take advantage of wind in determining landing and take-off distances all data should be based upon wind velocities reported at a height of 50 feet above the runway; i. e., the runway length would be calculated for one half of the reported headwind velocity, or one and one-half times the reported tailwind velocity, measured at a height of 50 feet corrected for wind gradient to the height of the center of aerodynamic drag of the airplane. A note clearly stating the above stipulations should be included in the manual.

(xi) Rates of climb and climbing speeds. These rates and speeds should be specified for the desired range of weights and altitudes, together with the corresponding airplane configuration (flap position, gear position, etc.), and should be given for the following when applicable:

(a) First segment take-off climb (§4b.120 (a)).

(b) Second segment take-off climb (§4b.120 (b)).

(c) Third segment take-off climb (§4b.116 (d)).

(d) Final segment take-off climb §4b.116 (e)).

(e) One-engine inoperative en route climb (§4b.120 (c)).

(f) All engine en route climb (§ 4b.119 (b)).

(g) Two-engine inoperative en route climb (§ 4b.121).

(h) Approach climb (§ 4b.120 (d)).

(i) Landing climb (§4b.119 c)).

(xii) Engine power curve. A copy of the CAA approved power chart of BHP vs. MP @ RPM and BHP vs. altitude @ RPM and @ MP should be included.

(xiii) Performance charts. Any instructions or examples for use of the performance charts should be included.

(xiv) Removal of performance data. The Performance Section of the Airplane Flight Manual should not be removed from the Airplane Flight Manual. However, any tables, charts etc., that an air carrier operator prepares which are based on airplane flight manual performance material for convenience in determination of load limitation data need not be carried in the Airplane Flight Manual even though approved by the CAA if the operator does not care to do so.

(e) Weight and balance data—(1) General. Inasmuch as it is desired to eliminate the necessity of submitting revisions of the Airplane Flight Manual to the CAA for approval whenever an item of equipment is altered or added, this section of the manual will not be included in the formally "approved" portion of the document. However, a note to the effect that the airplane should be operated in accordance with the approved loading schedule should be included in the Limitations Section. (See paragraph (b) (1).)

(2) Responsibility for control of weight and balance. It is the intention of the Civil Aeronautics Administration to place the responsibility for the control of weight and balance with the manufacturer and operator. The manufacturer will furnish a weight and balance report for each new airplane which may be included in the manual but not in the "approved" portion. The Civil Aeronautics Administration's representative will not approve each individual report but will make only occasional spot checks to ascertain that the manufacturer's weight control procedure is adequate. The manufacturer will be expected to furnish complete information with the airplane not only regarding its actual weight and balance, but also to include sketches, samples and other data that will assist the operator in checking the balance after alterations.

(3) Conventional airplanes. The following material is believed to be complete and adequate for a conventional airplane.

(i) Weight limits. A list and explanation (where necessary) of the various weight limits should be given.

(ii) C. G. Limits. The approved operating C. G. range should be specified.

(iii) Empty weight and empty weight C. G. location.

(iv) Equipment list. All equipment included in the empty weight should be listed.

(v) Weight computations. The computations necessary to determine the empty weight C. G. location, including identification of balance datum should be shown.

(vi) Loading schedule.

(vii) Loading schedule instructions. Complete instructions in the use of the loading schedule should be provided.

(4) Unconventional airplanes. In the case of unconventional airplanes or airplanes with special features, the information specified in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph should be modified or amplified as necessary to cover the case.

(f) Supplements. As a general rule, when major alterations are made by an operator (or owner) to an airplane involving appreciable changes to the Airplane Flight Manual it is advisable for the operator to prepare a separate supplement to the original manual under his own name covering the items that are different from the original manual. Then subsequent revisions to the manual by the manufacturer or operator will pertain only to their respective portions of the manual and should eliminate possible confusion.

(g) Submittal. Three copies of the above material, less the Weight and Balance Data Section, should be submitted to the appropriate Civil Aeronautics Administration regional office by the applicant for an original approval. The three copies will be signed by the regional Chief, Aircraft Division; one copy will be returned to the applicant, one will be forwarded to the Washington office and the other retained by the regional office. A single copy of the title page to be used for Chief's signature may be substituted for the applicant's copy if desired. In cases where the revisions to the manual are of primary importance to safety in flight, the pertinent Aircraft Specification will contain a description of the change to ensure that all manuals are revised. A revision of this type would usually be the subject of an Airworthiness Directive note. One copy of the Weight and Balance Section should be included in the manual by the applicant for each airplane at the time of certification.

These policies shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

HAND FIRE EXTINGUISHERS; NUMBER AND INSTALLATION

The following policies are hereby adopted:

§ 4b.641–1 Portable water-solution-type extinguishers (CAA policies which apply to § 4b.641). (a) General: It has been established that water-solution-type hand fire extinguishers are more suitable for controlling and extinguishing Class A fires (fires in seat upholstery, curtains, floor coverings, clothing, paper, etc.) than are other types designed primarily for extinguishing Class B fires (fires in inflammable liquids, greases, etc.) or Class C fires (electrical fires, which require non-conducting extinguishing agents).

(b) Installation: Water-solution-type portable fire extinguishers which comply with the provisions of Technical Standard Order TSO–C19 (a), the performance requirements for which are based on SAE Aeronautical Standard AS 245, dated November 1, 1948, may be used to meet the minimum requirements of this part for fuselage fire protection in civil aircraft on the following basis:

(1) The portable fire extinguisher required for use by the pilot or copilot in the cockpit should continue to be of the carbon dioxide, carbon tetrachloride, dry chemical, or an equivalent type, since Class B and Class C fires are considered to be the primary hazard in pilot compartments. Such an extinguisher should have a minimum capacity, if carbon tetrachloride, of 1 quart, or, if carbon dioxide, of 2 pounds.

(2) Other portable fire extinguishers may be of the water-solution-type, unless the primary hazard is considered to require Class B or Class C extinguishing equipment, e. g., possible grease fires in the galley (Class B fires), fires in the electrical or radio installations, etc. (Class C fires).

(3) When substitution of portable water-solution-type fire extinguishers for other types of extinguishers is contemplated in the design of new aircraft or as a replacement in aircraft already in service, it should be on a minimum basis of one 1⅜-quart water-solution-type fire extinguisher conforming to SAE Aeronautical Standard AS 245 for each 1-quart-capacity carbon tetrachloride unit, each 2-pound-capacity carbon dioxide extinguisher, or for each 2 pounds of dry-chemical extinguishing agent.

(c) There is no objection to installation of portable water-solution-type fire extinguishers in addition to those required in this part.

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 425. Interprets or applies sec. 603, 52 Stat. 1009, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 552)

PART 61—SCHEDULED AIR CARRIER RULES

WEATHER MINIMUMS; VISUAL-CONTACT CLEARANCE

The following rules concerning Part 61 are hereby adopted. They do not impose additional burdens upon interested persons. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be unnecessary and therefore is not required.

TITLE 16—COMMERCIAL PRACTICES

Chapter I—Federal Trade Commission

[File No. 21-424]

PART 197—RELATING TO THE INSTALLMENT SALE AND FINANCING OF MOTOR VEHICLES

PROMULGATION OF TRADE PRACTICE RULES

Due proceedings having been held under the trade practice conference procedure in pursuance of the act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, as amended (Federal Trade Commission Act), and other provisions of law administered by the Commission;

It is now ordered, That the trade practice rules of Group I, as hereinafter set forth, which have been approved by the Commission in this proceeding, be promulgated as of February 6, 1951.

Statement by the Commission. Trade practice rules relating to the sale and financing in commerce of motor vehicles on installment or deferred payment contracts, as hereinafter set forth, are promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission under its trade practice conference procedure.

The rules are designed to eliminate and prevent certain unfair or deceptive acts or practices in such installment sale of motor vehicles, and in the financing of such sales, which are considered by the Commission to be violative of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act as amended. The rules are applicable to all persons, partnerships, or corporations coming within the jurisdiction[1] of the Commission and will be applied to the elimination of the particular acts or practices therein specified which the Commission believes tend to suppress competition or restrain trade. Subject to commerce and other jurisdictional requirements, appropriate proceedings in the public interest will be taken by the Commission to prevent automobile dealers and financing institutions from engaging in any of the practices defined and proscribed by the rules.

The recent stabilization of prices of motor vehicles by the Government, made necessary by the inflationary trend, makes it more important that such opportunities as may exist for fair competition in the retail marketing of motor vehicles, including sales on the installment plan, be not impaired. The present promulgation of the rules having such objective is especially timely.

Proceedings leading to the establishment of rules were instituted by the Commission on its own motion. A general industry conference was held in Washington, D. C., at which suggestions and objections by interested parties and proposals for rules regarding the matter were presented and given consideration. Thereafter a draft of proposed rules in appropriate form was made available by the Commission and public notice given whereby all interested or affected parties were afforded opportunity to present their views, including such pertinent information, suggestions, or objections as they desired to offer, and to be heard in the premises. Hearing was accordingly held on February 2, 1950, in Washington, D. C., and additional hearings were held before the Commission on April 10, May 5, and May 8, 1950. Following such hearings, all matters presented or otherwise received in the proceedings were duly considered.

Thereafter, and in consideration of the entire matter, final action was taken by the Commission whereby it approved the trade practice rules hereinafter appearing. Such rules become operative thirty (30) days after date of promulgation.

In view of the exemplary objective of these rules, the Commission is hopeful of their approval by all who are engaged in such financing.

General statement. The practices proscribed in Group I rules are such as are considered to be prohibited by laws administered by the Federal Trade Commission. Appropriate proceedings in the public interest will be taken by the Commission to prevent the employment of any such practices in commerce[2] by any person, partnership, corporation, or other organization subject to its jurisdiction.

Sec.
197.1 Misrepresentation as to insurance coverage or rates, financing costs, etc.
197.2 Furnishing the purchaser with itemization of his costs in the installment sale of motor vehicles.
197.3 Installment sales contract containing blank spaces to be filled in after its execution.
197.4 False, misleading, or deceptive use of rate charts in connection with the installment sale and financing of motor vehicles.
197.5 Requiring the placing of insurance by the seller or financing institution as a condition to the sale or financing of a motor vehicle.

AUTHORITY: §§ 197.1 to 197.5 issued under sec. 6, 38 Stat. 721; 15 U. S. C. 46.

§ 197.1 Misrepresentation as to insurance coverage or rates, financing costs, etc. It is an unfair trade practice for any seller or financing institution, acting individually or in agreement, combination, conspiracy, or collusion with one another, to make any false, misleading, or deceptive statements or representations concerning insurance coverage or rates, plans respecting methods of financing, or financing costs or rates, in connection with the sale at retail of motor vehicles on installment or deferred payment contracts. [Rule 1.]

§ 197.2 Furnishing the purchaser with itemization of his costs in the installment sale of motor vehicles. (a) In the installment sale of motor vehicles it is an unfair trade practice for the seller to fail, before the consummation of the sale, to furnish the buyer an itemization in writing signed by the seller separately disclosing to the purchaser the finance charge, insurance costs, and other charges which are paid or to be paid by the purchaser, such failure to separately disclose such items having the capacity and tendency or effect of deceiving the purchaser as to the nature of his costs in the transaction or rendering competition with respect to the cost of financing and cost of the insurance involved ineffective from the standpoint of the purchaser.

[1] The Commission is empowered and directed to prevent persons, partnerships, or corporations, except banks, common carriers subject to the acts to regulate commerce, air carriers and foreign air carriers subject to the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, and persons, partnerships, or corporations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, except as provided in section 406 (b) of said act, from using unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair or deceptive acts or practices in commerce.

[2] As here used the word "commerce" means commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, or in any Territory of the United States or in the District of Columbia, or between any such Territory and another, or between any such Territory and any State or foreign nation, or between the District of Columbia and any State or Territory or foreign nation.

(b) The seller shall be deemed to have fully complied with the requirements of this section when he has furnished the purchaser, before consummation of the sale, an itemization in writing which clearly discloses:

(1) The delivered price of the motor vehicle, including accessories or extras, if any; and

(2) The amounts to be credited as down payment and trade-in, if any; and

(3) The time balance owed by the buyer to seller, the amount of each installment payment to be made by the buyer, and the number of such installment payments, and the due dates thereof; and

(4) The cost of insurance,[1] the coverage provided, and the party or parties to whom the insurance is payable; and

(5) The finance charge; and

(6) Other charges making up the total consideration paid or to be paid by the purchaser, included in the time balance, the amounts and nature of each to be separately stated; or when all said required information is clearly set forth in the installment sales contract, chattel mortgage, or other instrument evidencing the purchase transaction, and a true copy of such instrument is furnished to the purchaser before or at the time of the execution thereof.

Provided, however, That subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) of this paragraph need not be stated in the sequence or order above set forth, and that additional items may be included which serve to explain the calculations involved in determining the stated time balance to be paid by the purchaser: And provided further, That when all the said required information is clearly set forth in an installment sales contract, chattel mortgage, or other instrument evidencing the purchase transaction, and a true copy of such instrument is furnished to the purchaser before or at the time of his execution thereof, no additional itemization need be furnished to the purchaser.

(c) In connection with the installment sale of motor vehicles, it is an unfair trade practice for any financing institution to aid or abet a seller in effecting concealment or nondisclosure to the purchaser of the information required to be furnished to the purchaser under the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section. [Rule 2].

§ 197.3 Installment sales contract containing blank spaces to be filled in after its execution. In the execution of an installment sales contract, it is an unfair trade practice for the seller to utilize the device of having the purchaser sign a contract or receipt in blank, to be filled in subsequently by the seller or financing institution with the purpose or effect of deceiving the purchaser.

NOTE: Nothing in this section shall be construed as prohibiting unfilled blanks for insertion of identifying serial numbers and identifying marks when knowledge concerning such numbers or marks is not available to the dealer at the time of the execution of the contract; Provided, That there is a clear and sufficient description of the motor vehicle which shall be fully adequate to identify it readily; And provided further, That such identifying numbers and identifying marks are subsequently inserted in the contract upon the delivery of the motor vehicle.

§ 197.4 False, misleading, or deceptive use of rate charts in connection with the installment sale and financing of motor vehicles. It is an unfair trade practice for any seller or financing institution, either individually, or in agreement, combination, conspiracy or collusion with each other, through the misuse of a rate or rate charts, or any other device or in any other manner, to make a false, misleading, or deceptive representation to the purchaser of a motor vehicle as to the finance charge required by a financing institution to finance the amount of the unpaid balance of the contract. [Rule 4]

§ 197.5 Requiring the placing of insurance by the seller or financing institution as a condition to the sale or financing of a motor vehicle. It is an unfair trade practice for any seller or financing institution, either individually or in agreement or collusion with each other, to condition the installment sale or financing of a motor vehicle on the purchase of an insurance policy from a particular insurance company when equivalent or better coverage by another insurance company is available and the purchaser desires to purchase the policy of such other company, where the effect of such conditioning may be to substantially lessen, stifle, or suppress competition. This section shall not prevent the exercise by the financing institution of the right to approve or disapprove for good cause the insurance company selected to underwrite the insurance. [Rule 5]

Promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission February 6, 1951.

[SEAL] D. C. DANIEL, Secretary.

[F. R. Doc. 51-1787; Filed, Feb. 5, 1951; 8:45 a. m.]

[1] If at the time of the sale the seller does not know the precise cost of the insurance and cannot ascertain same without unreasonable delay, he may state an estimate of such cost when such estimate is based upon the applicable rate or rates specified in a current rate manual of a recognized standard insurance rating bureau, or upon the applicable rate or rates specified in a rate chart approved by a state insurance administrator of the state in which the motor vehicle is to be kept: Provided, however, That when the cost of the insurance is so estimated the itemization to be furnished to the purchaser shall so state, and in conjunction it shall be stated in said itemization that the difference between the estimated cost and the actual cost, and the portion of the finance charge which is based on any overcharge, will be adjusted at the time of the payment of the final installment.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[GCPR, Supp. Reg. 2]

RETAIL COAL DEALERS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 2 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

Statement of Considerations

The retail coal industry is highly competitive and its product has been in surplus supply. Its prices have not been influenced by conditions developing since the Korean outbreak.

Prices for retail solid fuels reflect the cost of the product at the mine or preparation plant, transportation charges to the retail yard, handling at the yard and delivery to customers. Ceiling prices at the mine, one of the principal components in retail prices, had advances authorized effective February 1, 1951, under Ceiling Price Regulations Nos. 3 and 4, which will have the effect of shrinking the retailer's margin unless provision for adjustment is made. Retail solid fuel prices are subject to General Ceiling Price Regulation of January 26, 1951.

In order that there will be no disruption in the retail solid fuels industry, especially since a good part of the heating season remains, it is imperative that provision be made that a mine price increase may be added to retail prices. Otherwise many of the retail dealers will undergo serious financial hardship. The immediate relief contemplated is based upon actual advances in mine prices and does not change the retailer's margin.

Increases in ceiling mine prices averaged 25 cents per ton on bituminous and other soft coal and 90 cents per ton on anthracite. These increases will differ between mines in the soft coal industry and between sizes in the anthracite industry.

This supplementary regulation is an interim measure until a permanent industry regulation can be prepared and put into effect.

Findings of the Director of Price Stabilization

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of Supplementary Regulation 2 to General Ceiling Price Regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

(b) "Retail coal dealer" means any person (including the retail outlet, branch or department, of one who is also a producer or wholesaler) to the extent that he sells, delivers, or disposes of coal in a transaction involving the disposal of coal physically handled in a truck, wagon or other less-than-carload facility, without regard to quantity or frequency of delivery.

(c) "Producer" means a person engaged in the business of mining or preparing coal at a preparation plant, and any person acting as an agent of a producer in the sale of coal.

(d) "Coal" means (1) bituminous coal, including all bituminous, semi-bituminous and sub-bituminous coal; (2) lignite coal; (3) Virginia anthracite; and (4) Pennsylvania anthracite.

(e) "Ton" means a short or net ton of 2,000 pounds.

(f) "Distributor" means a person who purchases coal f. o. b. transportation facilities at a mine or preparation plant for resale, and resells the same in not less than cargo or railroad carload lots, or the equivalent thereof, without physically handling such coal, and any person acting as an agent of a distributor.

(g) "F. o. b. mine" means free on board transportation facilities at a mine, a preparation plant or other loading facilities (not including ground storage facilities).

SEC. 3. Authority to increase ceiling prices. (a) On and after the 3d day of February 1951, each retail coal dealer may increase the ceiling prices of each size and kind of coal he sells and delivers, determined under the provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation issued by the Director of the Office of Price Stabilization on January 26, 1951, by the actual dollar-and-cents per ton amount of increase in the f. o. b. mine price on each such size or grade charged by the retail coal dealer's supplier, either producer or distributor, under the authority of Ceiling Price Regulation No. 3 (Coal, except Pennsylvania Anthracite, delivered from mine or preparation plant) and Ceiling Price Regulation No. 4 (Anthracite delivered from mine or preparation plant), both issued by the Director on February 1, 1951.

(b) The authority to increase base period ceiling prices shall be effective only upon receipt by the retail dealer of an acknowledgment of an order for coal, the shipping notice, and a written statement of the price increase required of the producers under Ceiling Price Regulations Nos. 3 and 4, respectively, showing the exact dollars-and-cents amount of increase the producer has added to the price of his coal under the authority of the aforesaid regulations.

(c) Where purchases of coal are made by a retail coal dealer from suppliers from which no purchases were made during the base period, the retail coal dealer's ceiling price on such coal shall be determined by adding his base period dollar-and-cents margin on a sale of a comparable coal customarily handled which is most nearly like the sale he will make of the new coal.

(d) An unequipped dealer, who is a retail coal dealer without yard facilities or scales, may increase his base period ceiling prices for each size and kind of coal by the exact dollar-and-cents amount of the increase in price charged to him by the retail coal dealer. On sales to unequipped dealers the retail coal dealer shall certify on the sales slip or invoice the exact amount of the increase in price he is hereunder allowed to charge on each such size or grade of coal.

SEC. 4. Miscellaneous. The retail coal dealer subject to this supplementary regulation shall be subject to all other provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation which are not inconsistent with the provisions hereof, including, but not limited to, the enforcement and penalty provisions thereof, and the requirement of keeping on file for inspection a statement of his ceiling prices.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation to the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall become effective on the 3d day of February 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this supplementary regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

(2) The prices established for Grade 26 (No. 1 chemical borings) and Grade 27 (No. 2 chemical borings) may be charged only when such grades are sold for use for chemical or annealing purposes; otherwise the ceiling prices for such grades shall not exceed the price established for Grade 10 (cast iron borings).

(3) The price established for Grade 28 (wrought iron) may be charged only when sold to a producer of wrought iron; otherwise the ceiling price for such grade shall not exceed the ceiling price established for the corresponding grade of basic open hearth.

(c) Special pricing provisions. (1) Sellers of Grade 26 (No. 1 chemical borings) and Grade 27 (No. 2 chemical borings) may make an extra charge of $1.50 per gross ton for loading in boxcars or 75 cents per gross ton for covering gondola cars with a weather-resistent covering.

(2) The ceiling price of pit scrap, ladle scrap, salamander scrap, skulls, skimmings or scrap recovered from slag dumps and prepared to charging box size, shall be computed by deducting from the price of No. 1 heavy melting steel of dealer and industrial origin, the following amounts:

Where the iron content is 85 percent and over	−$4.00
Where the iron content is 75 percent and over	−6.00
Where the iron content is less than 75 percent	−10.00

(3) The ceiling price of any inferior grade of iron or steel scrap not listed in section 3 (a) (2) hereof shall not exceed the price of No. 1 heavy melting steel less $15.00.

SEC. 4. Ceiling shipping point prices for steel scrap of dealer and industrial origin. (a) For shipping points located within a basing point named in section 3 hereof, the ceiling shipping point price for any grade of steel scrap shall be the price established at such basing point, minus the applicable switching charge deduction set forth in section 5 hereof.

(b) For shipping points located outside the basing points named in section 3 hereof, the ceiling shipping point price of any grade of iron or steel scrap shall be the price established for the scrap at the most favorable basing point, minus the lowest established charge for transporting scrap from the shipping point to such basing point by rail or water carrier, or combination thereof. (The most favorable basing point is the basing point named in section 3 hereof which will yield the highest shipping point price.)

(c) Where water rates are involved in the computations under paragraph (b) of this section the following additional deductions must be made. A flat charge of $1.25 per gross ton for dock charges, except, however, that at Memphis, Tennessee, the deduction shall be 95 cents per gross ton; at Great Lakes ports, $1.50 per gross ton; and at New England ports, $1.75 per gross ton.

Where the shipping point is located outside of the switching district of the city from which the water rate is applicable, the lowest established charge for transporting scrap by rail from the shipping point to the f. a. s. vessel point must be deducted. No deduction for switching charges need be made where the shipping point is located within the switching district of the city from which the water rate is applicable. If there is no established charge for transporting scrap by rail from the shipping point to the f. a. s. vessel point, water rates may not be used in computing shipping point prices.

(d) The ceiling shipping point price for No. 1 heavy melting steel (with differentials established in section 3 hereof for all other grades) at all shipping points in New York City (or Brooklyn, New York) shall be $36.99 per gross ton.

(e) Ceiling shipping point prices at all shipping points in Hudson and Bergen Counties, New Jersey, shall be computed from the Bethlehem, Pa., basing point.

(f) Ceiling shipping point prices at all shipping points in the State of New Jersey shall be computed by the use of all rail transportation charges.

(g) The ceiling shipping point price for No. 1 heavy melting steel (with differentials established in section 3 hereof for all other grades) need not fall below $32.00 per gross ton.

SEC. 5. Switching charge deductions. The switching charges to be deducted from the basing point price of dealer and industrial scrap as set forth in section 3 hereof, or the basing point price of non-operating railroad scrap, as set forth in section 7 hereof, in order to determine the ceiling shipping point prices for such scrap originating in basing points, are as follows:

(The term "rerolling rails" includes any rails which are sold to be used for rerolling, irrespective of whether or not such rails are usable for relaying).

(2) The price established for grade 30 (Wrought Iron) may be charged only when sold to a producer of Wrought Iron; otherwise, the ceiling price for such grade shall not exceed the ceiling price established for the base grade, No. 1 railroad heavy melting steel.

SEC. 8. Ceiling on-line prices for steel scrap of railroad origin. The term "on-line prices" means the ceiling prices that the originating railroad may charge for scrap delivered to a consumer located on the line of the railroad.

(a) On-line prices for operating railroads operating in a basing point. The ceiling on-line price of any grade of steel scrap originating from an operating railroad operating in a basing point named in section 7 hereof shall be the price established in that section for the scrap at the highest priced basing point in which the railroad operates.

(b) On-line prices for operating railroads not operating in a basing point. The ceiling on-line price of any grade of steel scrap originating from an operating railroad not operating in a basing point named in section 7 hereof shall be the price established for the scrap at the most favorable basing point named in that section minus the foreign line proportion of the lowest established charge for transporting scrap by rail from the scrap accumulation point of the railroad to such basing point. (The "scrap accumulation point" shall be that point from which the greatest tonnage of scrap was shipped in the calendar year 1950.) The ceiling on-line prices of No. 1 railroad heavy melting steel need not fall below $34.00 per gross ton (with differentials established in section 7 hereof for all other grades).

The "most favorable basing point" is the basing point named in section 7 hereof which will yield the highest ceiling on-line price.

On and after the effective date of this regulation, no operating railroad not operating in a basing point named in section 7 hereof may sell or offer to sell iron and steel scrap to a consumer or his broker (without obtaining prior written approval from the Office of Price Stabilization) unless it has filed with the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., a statement in writing setting forth its ceiling on-line price for No. 1 railroad heavy melting steel and describing the method by which the said ceiling on-line price was calculated and such statement has been approved in writing by the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington, D. C. The statement shall include: the most favorable basing point selected, the price at such basing point, the location of the scrap accumulation point, the lowest established charge for transporting scrap by rail from such accumulation point to the named basing point, and the foreign line proportion of such lowest established charge.

(c) Non-operating railroad. (1) The ceiling on-line (or shipping point) price of any grade of steel scrap originating from a non-operating railroad shall be the price established for the scrap at the most favorable basing point named in section 7 hereof minus the lowest established charge for transporting scrap by rail from the scrap accumulation point of the railroad to such basing point. (The "scrap accumulation point" shall be that point from which the greatest tonnage of scrap was shipped in the calendar year 1950; except, that the non-operating railroad may be permitted to use more than one accumulation point upon filing with the Office of Price Stabilization notice thereof showing the tonnage shipped from such additional point during 1950). The ceiling on-line price of No. 1 railroad heavy melting steel need not fall below $34.00 per gross ton (with differentials established in section 7 hereof for all other grades). The "most favorable basing point" is the basing point named in section 7 hereof which will yield the highest ceiling on-line or shipping point price.

(2) Where the non-operating railroad is located within a basing point set forth in section 7 hereof, the switching charge deductions established in section 5 hereof shall be applicable.

SEC. 9. Ceiling delivered prices for shipment by rail, vessel, or combination thereof, for steel scrap of railroad origin—(a) When delivered to a consumer located on the line of a railroad. The ceiling delivered price of any grade of steel scrap originating from an operating railroad and delivered to a consumer's plant located on the line of that railroad shall be the ceiling on-line price established in section 8 hereof.

(b) When delivered to a consumer located off the line of the originating railroad. The ceiling delivered price of any grade of steel scrap originating from an operating railroad and delivered to a consumer located off the line of that railroad, by rail, vessel or combination thereof, shall be the ceiling on-line price established in section 8 hereof, plus the foreign line proportion of the through rate from the point of shipment to the consumer's plant via the junction nearest such plant in terms of transportation charges, or the commercial rate from such nearest junction to the consumer's plant (unless off-line routing at another point is directed by order of a government agency). In no case may a railroad seller participate in the transportation charges incurred in off-line delivery of scrap unless the ceiling on-line price for the scrap is reduced by the amount of the participation in the off-line charges.

(c) When delivered to a consumer from a non-operating railroad. The ceiling delivered price of any grade of steel scrap originating from a non-operating railroad shall be the ceiling price established in section 8 (c) hereof, plus transportation charges to the point of delivery. Such transportation charges shall be computed in the same manner as charges allowable under section 6 or 15 hereof for dealer or industrial scrap.

SEC. 10. Ceiling prices for railroad steel scrap sold by sellers other than railroads. (a) Railroad steel scrap prepared by a dealer or moving through a dealer's yard (except for unprepared scrap prepared in-transit pursuant to section 15 hereof) or sold by any other person than a railroad as defined in this regulation, shall be classified and priced under sections 3 and 4 hereof except that for Grades Nos. 3, 4, 8, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27 of steel scrap set forth in section 7 (a) (2) hereof, the ceiling shipping point prices shall be the same as those established for non-operating railroads in section 8 (c) hereof, and the ceiling delivered prices shall be the same as those established for non-operating railroads in section 9 (c) hereof.

(b) Where a dealer or contractor demolishes railroad equipment on the property of, or in a yard provided exclusively for that purpose by the railroad awarding the contract, the resultant railroad scrap may be sold at prices not in excess of the ceiling prices established in section 8 (c) hereof for non-operating railroads; Provided, That in each case the dealer or contractor awarded such contract by a railroad reports to the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., within 7 days after the award of the contract the name of the selling railroad, the type of equipment involved, the location at which demolition will take place, and the estimated tonnage of each grade of scrap resulting; also such other relevant information as he considers necessary or advisable to explain the transaction.

SEC. 11. Ceiling shipping point and ceiling on-line prices for all cast iron scrap. (a) The ceiling price per gross ton for any of the following grades of cast iron scrap shall be the price shown in the following table, f. o. b. the shipping point:

(2) The ceiling shipping point or on-line price which any foundry consumer other than a malleable iron producer may pay for Grade 10 (malleable) shall be the ceiling price established for cast iron No. 1 (cupola cast).

SEC. 12. Ceiling delivered prices for shipment by rail, vessel, or combination thereof, for all cast-iron scrap. (a) The ceiling delivered price for shipment by rail, vessel, or combination thereof of any grade of cast iron scrap of dealer or industrial origin shall be the shipping point price as determined in section 11 hereof plus the actual charge for transporting the scrap from the shipping point to the point of delivery by the means of transportation employed. If delivery to the consumer involves water movement the actual charges incurred at a public dock may be added to the actual transportation charges. Where the dock facilities are owned or controlled by the shipper of the cast-iron scrap, the following maximum dock charges may be added to the actual transportation charges: At Memphis, Tenn., 95 cents per gross ton; at any Great Lakes port, $1.50 per gross ton; at all New England ports, $1.75 per gross ton; and at all other ports, $1.25 per gross ton.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 14. Unlisted grades. If the seller is unable to determine a ceiling price for any grade of iron or steel scrap under the applicable provisions hereof (which, in the opinion of the Director of Price Stabilization, provide adequate pricing instructions for all recognized grades), he shall file an application for approval of a ceiling price with the Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C. The application shall set forth: (a) A complete description of the material, and (b) the ceiling price being requested.

The seller may not deliver or sell at his requested price until he has received written approval of the price from the Office of Price Stabilization.

SEC. 15. Intransit preparation. (a) A consumer may designate a dealer or dealers to prepare steel scrap of dealer and industrial origin intransit on a preparation fee basis under one of the following circumstances:

(c) A consumer may designate a dealer or dealers to prepare cast iron scrap intransit on a preparation fee basis where such consumer is without adequate preparation facilities.

(d) No fee may be paid to the person preparing scrap intransit pursuant to the provisions of this section if the scrap originates in the preparer's yard or if title to the scrap resides in the preparer at any time after the scrap leaves its shipping point, unless such scrap is allocated by the National Production Authority.

(e) The maximum preparation fee for preparing any grade of iron or steel scrap intransit shall be the applicable fee established in section 16 hereof.

(f) Whenever intransit preparation of iron or steel scrap is permissible pursuant to the provisions of this section, the ceiling delivered price shall be the ceiling shipping point price or ceiling on-line price for unprepared scrap plus the rail transportation charges incurred in moving the scrap to the point of preparation, plus the applicable ceiling preparation fee as established in section 16 hereof, plus the transportation charges from the preparation yard to the point of delivery as established and restricted in section 6, 9, 12 or 13 hereof, whichever is applicable.

The manganese premiums provided in this paragraph are only applicable if the scrap is sold for electric furnace use except on allocation by the National Production Authority.

(d) Silicon. The adjustments established under section 4 hereof for electric furnace, and foundry grades shall not be applicable if the scrap contains silicon between 0.5 percent and 1.75 percent.

(e) Chromium. Steel scrap conforming to SAE 52100 may command a premium of $1.00 per gross ton in addition to the applicable ceiling price for the corresponding grade when sold for electric furnace use only, but in no event shall the ceiling price plus the premium provided herein exceed the ceiling price for No. 1 heavy melting steel plus $1.00.

(f) Multiple alloys. Where any grade of scrap contains two alloy elements for which premiums have been established in this section, the total premium may not exceed the ceiling premium for any one contained alloy.

SEC. 18. Mixed shipments. When grades of scrap commanding different ceiling prices under the provisions of this regulation are included in one vehicle, the ceiling price shall be the applicable ceiling price in section 4, 8, 10 or 11 hereof for the lowest grade contained in the vehicle, except when the grades are invoiced as separate grades and the grades are so loaded in the vehicle that they can readily be distinguished and separately weighed.

SEC. 19. Commissions. (a) No commission shall be payable on sales made under this regulation except by a consumer to a broker for brokerage services rendered to the consumer. Where scrap is allocated by the National Production Authority other than from a government agency, the seller may designate a broker. Where scrap is allocated by the National Production Authority from a governmental agency, the consumer may designate a broker. In the event that a broker purchases iron or steel scrap for sale to a consumer, such consumer may pay such broker a commission not exceeding $1.00 per gross ton. No commission shall be payable unless

(1) The broker is regularly and primarily engaged in the business of buying and selling iron and steel scrap;

(2) The broker guarantees the quality and delivery of an agreed tonnage of scrap;

(3) The scrap is purchased by the consumer at a price no higher than the ceiling prices established in this regulation;

(4) The broker sells the scrap to the consumer at the same price, with the same discounts and allowances, at which he purchased it, and does not include in the shipping point price any cost, fee, or charge incurred in placing the scrap at its shipping point;

(5) The broker does not split or divide the commission in whole or in part, with the seller or sellers of the scrap, or with another broker, or sub-broker, or with the consumer;

(6) The commission is shown as a separate item on the invoice.

(b) No commission shall be payable to a person for scrap which he prepares.

(c) No commission shall be payable to a person controlling, or holding directly or indirectly a substantial financial interest in the person preparing the scrap, or to a person employed or controlled by the person preparing the scrap, or to a person in whom the person preparing the scrap holds directly or indirectly a substantial financial interest or control.

SEC. 20. Unprepared scrap. (a) The term "unprepared scrap" shall have its customary trade meaning and shall not include such demolition projects as bridges, box cars or automobiles, which must be so priced that the prepared scrap will be delivered to the consumer within the ceiling delivered prices established by this regulation.

(b) For unprepared steel scrap other than materials suitable for hydraulic compression, the ceiling basing point prices shall be $8.00 per gross ton beneath the price of the prepared base grades, No. 1 heavy melting steel or No. 1 railroad heavy melting steel, as established in section 3 or 7.

(c) For unprepared material which when compressed constitutes No. 1 bundles the ceiling basing point price shall be $6.00 per gross ton beneath the ceiling basing point price for No. 1 bundles or when compressed constitutes No. 2 bundles the ceiling basing point price shall be $3.00 per gross ton beneath the ceiling basing point price for No. 2 bundles, as established in section 3 hereof.

(d) Any iron casting which cannot be broken with an ordinary drop into Grade No. 2 (cast iron No. 2) or Grade No. 1 (cast iron No. 1) as established in section 11 hereof may not be classified as Grade No. 3 (cast iron No. 3). Where such iron casting requiring blasting or other special preparation is sold to a consumer of scrap, the shipping point price for Grade No. 3 (cast iron No. 3) as established in section 11 hereof must be reduced by the amount of the additional charges required for preparation.

SEC. 21. Transportation charges. (a) The rail or vessel charges, or combination rail-vessel charges, used in computing ceiling shipping point or ceiling on-line prices in section 4 or 8 hereof need not reflect any increase in rates which became effective after January 1, 1951, nor need such charges reflect any transportation tax.

(b) Any tax imposed upon the transportation charges from the shipping point to the point of delivery, may be included in the ceiling delivery price.

(c) No vessel charge shall be deemed an established charge within the provisions of this regulation unless regular vessel movement of scrap, except for seasonal restrictions, is being made to the most favorable basing point as of the effective date of this regulation, as a customary business practice.

(d) Where rail or vessel charges vary because of seasonal factors, the lowest established charge shall be the lowest charge in effect at any time during the year.

SEC. 22. Weights to govern. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this section, settlement for all scrap shall be made on the basis of weights at the point of delivery.

(b) Rail shipments. If the consumer is a member of a weighing association, settlement shall be on the basis of mill weights. If the consumer does not have weighing facilities, settlement shall be made on the basis of railroad weights at the point of delivery.

No adjustment need be made for shortages of 500 pounds or less per car between shipping point weights and weights at the point of delivery. If the shortage exceeds 500 pounds per car, adjustment must be made for the full shortage.

(c) Vessel shipment. When shipment is wholly or partially by vessel, weights at the dock prior to vessel movement shall govern. If the scrap moves from the shipping point to the dock by rail and weights at the shipping point have been determined, no adjustment need be made for differences of 500 pounds or less per car between shipping point weights and weights at the dock. If the difference exceeds 500 pounds per car, adjustment must be made for the full shortage in the car.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

APPENDIX A—STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

1. Introduction. Technological advances in the manufacture of steel late in the nineteenth century, particularly in the perfection of the open hearth process, made possible the use of ferrous materials, which were otherwise discarded and lost, and created the distributive mechanism by which this material is transmitted from its source to the consuming steel mills and foundries. No one deliberately sets out to make scrap but it is produced whenever iron or steel in one form or another is melted, tooled, machined, stamped, rolled or cut. It is also created when finished products reach the end of their usefulness and are discarded.

Together, scrap and pig iron make up approximately 98 percent of the total weight of raw materials used by steel mills, with the balance being accounted for by fuels and miscellaneous alloying metals. Of this 98 percent, approximately 50 percent is scrap and the balance pig iron.

2. The need for price controls. From June 24, 1950, to the end of the calendar year 1950, the general level of prices of iron and steel scrap increased approximately twenty percent. The pressures exerted by the growing disparity between demand and supply during this period caused the upward price movement.

From the period of June 24, 1950, to the end of the calendar year 1950, the rated capacity of the steel industry increased by approximately four million ingot tons to an estimated total of 104,500,000 ingot tons. During this period these facilities were operated at or above rated capacity. There are further indications that the rated capacity of the steel industry will continue to increase and these facilities will probably be fully utilized so as to further accentuate the deficit between demand and supply which will exert still further pressures on the pricing levels.

In fact, these pressures were reflected during the first half of January 1951, when, for example, the price of No. 1 heavy melting steel, the base grade, which had heretofore been relatively stable during December 1950 at about $44.00 per gross ton delivered Pittsburgh suddenly rose to approximately $52.00 per gross ton delivered Pittsburgh. This increase occurred despite the fact that numerous discussions had already been held by representatives of the Economic Stabilization Agency with consumers and producers of iron and steel scrap for the express purpose of stabilizing prices in this area.

Upon the basis of these facts and circumstances and other economic data, the Director of Price Stabilization finds that: (1) the prices for iron and steel scrap have risen unreasonably above the level of prices prevailing during the period from May 24 to June 24, 1950 and the ceiling prices established in the General Ceiling Price Regulation embody these inflationary price increases; (2) such price increases will materially affect the cost of living or the national defense; (3) the reduction of ceiling prices from the ceiling prices established in the General Ceiling Price Regulation is necessary to effectuate the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950; (4) it is practicable and feasible to impose such ceilings; and (5) such ceilings will be generally fair and equitable to sellers and buyers of such material or service subject to this regulation and to sellers and buyers of related or competitive materials and services.

This regulation, to the extent of its applicability, supersedes the General Ceiling Price Regulation issued by this Office. It applies generally only to sales and deliveries to the ultimate consumer. All sales not specifically covered by this Regulation remain subject to the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

In making these findings and issuing the regulation the Director has, so far as was practicable under the circumstances, advised and consulted with representative persons of the iron and steel scrap producing and consuming industries who would be substantially affected by this regulation. Due consideration has been given to their recommendations.

The provisions of this regulation and their effect upon business practices, cost practices, or methods, or means or aids to distribution in the industry have been carefully considered. It is believed that no changes in such practices or methods have been effected. To the extent, however, that the provisions of this regulation may operate to compel changes in such practices or methods, such provisions are necessary to prevent circumvention or evasion of the regulation and to effectuate the policies of the act.

3. Method of pricing. In establishing ceiling prices for iron and steel scrap, two methods of pricing are used. The first is for steel making scrap and the second is for cast iron scrap.

The method of pricing for steel making scrap follows that utilized by the Office of Price Administration during World War II in its regulation of this scrap and has been designated by such agency as a basing point method. As such, it is designed to conform as nearly as possible to trade practices existing under free market conditions, and the Director has been urged by both buyers and sellers in this industry to perpetuate the use of this system. The promulgated regulation adopts this pricing method.

The basing point prices set out in this regulation represent the usual market relationships and thereby preserve the fluidity of scrap.

While the shipping point price for the seller is maintained, the consumer wherever located has an equal opportunity to obtain the scrap providing the consumer is willing to absorb the transportation costs.

The f. o. b. shipping point method of pricing has been adopted for cast iron scrap. In the distribution of cast iron scrap, the situation is not comparable to that existing in steel making scrap. Gray iron foundries, the major users of cast iron scrap, are widely scattered throughout the United States. They do not have the same geographical centralization as is the case in the producers of steel ingots. Experience has shown that attempts made by the Office of Price Administration to establish prices for cast iron scrap on a delivered basis were failures, because of the multiplicity of consumers and their wide geographical dispersal. After considering this experience, it has been determined that the disruptive effects of attempting to impose a delivered price formula upon cast iron scrap would result in a dangerous disruption of the free flow of material. The representatives of the scrap-producing and consuming industries consulting with this Agency recommended that the f. o. b. shipping point method be used for cast iron scrap.

These representatives further recommended that the f. o. b. shipping point price for cast iron scrap be the same regardless of the geographic location. Examination of this recommendation, in the light of the experience of the Office of Price Administration in which three broad zones of pricing were used, indicates that the uniform shipping point price is simpler to administer, will be more clearly understood throughout the industry and will conform to the pattern of demand which has been established in the post-World War II period.

4. The general level of prices. Iron and steel scrap is essentially a by-product of our industrial economy. It is generated from three major sources; namely, industrial scrap, railroad scrap, and dealer's scrap, that is, scrap from miscellaneous sources. Of these, the flow of dealer's scrap which represents less than a majority of the total scrap is more susceptible to price influences. Industrial scrap will be produced and will normally flow. Railroad scrap will likewise be produced and normally flow. Experience has demonstrated that when a reasonable and stable level of prices has been established, such stability will encourage the flow of scrap, as for example during World War II, when price controls were in effect, record-high production of scrap was maintained for a four and one half year period. While there were other factors, such as the stimulii of patriotism and Government salvage drives at work during that period, the fact that prices remained stable was of great importance in supporting the then record production. This stability permitted the adjustment of operations on a long-term basis by eliminating the possibilities of speculation on price fluctuations.

The price level established in this regulation takes cognizance of the present labor costs, present costs of processing materials, equipment costs, and transportation charges. The price level established in this regulation should at this time, make available all of the material which will move by ordinary pricing methods.

Despite the rollback occasioned by this regulation in certain grades of iron and steel scrap, the prices established for these grades are at levels which representative, well informed members of the scrap-producing and consuming industries believe are adequate to encourage the collection, preparation, and to maintain the flow of this scrap. In order to encourage the further flow of this scrap from remote areas, minimum ceiling prices have been established in this regulation.

5. Establishment of new basing points. Houston, Texas, Kansas City, Missouri, and Portland, Oreg., have been added to the basing points established in the former Office of Price Administration regulation, because it has been determined that substantial increases in steelmaking capacities have developed in these areas since World War II, plus the fact that important scrap collection and processing facilities have been established in these areas.

Consideration was given to the suggested inclusion of Fontana, California and Provo, Utah as basing points, but these two locations were not so included because, while they represent important scrap producing and consuming centers, they are nevertheless located in areas which are generally isolated from the metropolitan areas in which scrap collecting and processing facilities are customarily located, and the establishment of these locations as basing points would only tend to raise the general level of prices in the vicinity above the level which is necessary to encourage a flow of scrap.

6. West Coast prices. After specific consultation with representative producers and consumers of iron and steel scrap from the West Coast and producers and consumers from all other areas affected by this regulation, it was generally acknowledged that entirely different marketing conditions exist on the West Coast as distinguished from other geographical areas covered by this regulation. A generally lower level of basing point prices for scrap has historically prevailed on the West Coast.

The recommendations of the West Coast representatives, together with those of the rest of the industry, have been duly weighed and consideration has been given to other available data. The level of the prices established in this regulation for the West Coast area is necessary in order to maintain the flow of this material and to prevent the diversion of this material to other areas. Furthermore this level of prices is consistent with the general level of the prices established by this regulation.

7. Basing point price differentials. The differentials in basing point prices established in this regulation has been made after due consideration of the relevant factors which include the supply and demand situation at the particular location, the transportation charges from the point of origin to the consuming areas, as well as the relationship of competing consumer areas for the available scrap. Representative suppliers and consumers have generally agreed to the soundness and adequacy of the differentials.

8. Grade differentials. It has been customary in the scrap industry for consumers to pay different prices for different grades of scrap. Under free market conditions, the most important factors in determining the differentials in price which a consumer would pay are quality and size. This is particularly true for those consumers whose facilities, such as electric furnaces or cupolas, require a very heavy proportion of purchased scrap. While the major factors of quality and size are of importance in determining the differentials for the various grades of scrap, the factor of cost of preparation also is normally considered.

In addition to the aforegoing factors which are normally taken into consideration in determining differentials, consideration was also given to the historical price relationship amongst the grades. Representative sellers and consumers approve the fairness and reasonableness of the differentials adopted.

9. Railroad prices. The regulation adopts a differential in price between #1 heavy melting steel scrap of railroad origin and #1 heavy melting steel scrap of dealer or industrial origin. Historically, scrap of railroad origin has usually commanded a differential over scrap of dealer and industrial origin because it is generally of better quality, heavier, and of more uniform size than scrap of nonrailroad origin. In addition, it is ordinarily offered in larger quantities and flows to the consumer at more regular intervals. Furthermore, railroads absorb the cost of delivery to the consumer of that portion of the haul which is on the line of the selling railroad.

10. Trucking charges. Minimum and maximum charges for the transporting of iron or steel scrap in a truck owned or controlled by the shipper has been established in the regulation. After consultations with representative members of the industry, the Director of Price Stabilization found it to be the general opinion of those consulted that a trucker could not afford to ship and handle scrap for a fee below that established as the minimum and that any schedule which resulted in a lower return on these short hauls would discourage this essential segment of scrap collection and distribution.

The ceiling represents the maximum haul which the Director finds to be consistent with normal economical distribution and which will discourage long hauls, cross hauls and resulting dislocation of scrap. In addition it has been found that such a ceiling is necessary in order to prevent circumvention or evasion of the regulation and to effectuate the policies of the act.

11. Restrictions on use. Provisions prohibiting certain consumers from buying certain grades of iron and steel scrap at the premium prices provided in this regulation have been incorporated upon the express recommendation of the National Production Authority in order to assist it in allocating such scrap to those consumers whose melting facilities require these grades.

12. Grade specifications. The grade specifications as defined and limited in this Regulation represent general trade practice over the past several years and the recommendations of the industry. Insofar as this grading represents a departure in any respect from current business practice, it has been found by the Director to be necessary to prevent circumvention or evasion of this regulation.

It also calls for reports on the number of such hides or skins put into the tanning process during the calendar year 1950. This order supplements NPA Regulation 2 but only those provisions of Regulation 2 which are inconsistent with this order are superseded and all other provisions of Regulation 2 continue to apply to the cattlehide, calfskin and kip industry.

In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing, shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought, and the justification therefor.

SEC. 8. Communications. All communications or reports concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref.: Order M–35.

TITLE 46—SHIPPING

Chapter I—Coast Guard, Department of the Treasury

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS TO CHAPTER

A notice regarding proposed changes in the regulations for use in transportation of solidified carbon dioxide (dry ice); marine engineering regulations and material specifications; bulkheads, subdivision, and watertight integrity of passenger vessels; and specifications for lifeboat bilge pumps and watertight sliding doors, was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, dated August 25, 1950, 15 F. R. 5706 et seq., as Items VIII, XVI, XVII, and XXIV on the agenda to be considered by the Merchant Marine Council, and a public hearing was held by the Merchant Marine Council on September 20, 1950, at Washington, D. C. All the comments submitted were considered and where possible were incorporated into the regulations as revised.

The purpose of the amendments to 46 CFR 46.30, 46.32, 46.38, 46.42, 59.64, 60.57, 76.57, 80.2, 94.56, 98.2, 113.50, and 117.2, regarding bulkheads, subdivision and watertight integrity of passenger vessels or ferry vessels, is to improve the standard of safety and to eliminate inconsistencies between the various regulations and to adequately describe the requirements concerning bulkheads, subdivision, permeability, margin lines, damaged stability, port lights, and openings in watertight bulkheads. In connection with vessels engaged in foreign trade the revised regulations are consistent with the requirements contained in the Safety of Life at Sea Convention of 1948. The purpose of the miscellaneous amendments to 46 CFR Parts 51 to 57, inclusive, is to bring the marine engineering regulations and material specifications up to date with current practices followed by industry and to have the regulations in agreement with the latest revisions of the codes or rules of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Standards Association, and the American Bureau of Shipping. Due to the occurrence of several accidents resulting in loss of life from the use of solidified carbon dioxide on board vessels, the purpose of the new requirements regarding the use and transportation of solidified carbon dioxide (dry ice) in 46 CFR 146.04–5, 146.07–7, 146.08–6, 146.27–100, and 147.05–100 is to promote safety of life at sea. The purpose of the new specification in 46 CFR 160.044, regarding lifeboat bilge pumps, is to provide for a uniform standard and to describe the procedures for obtaining approval. The purpose of the new specification covering the construction of watertight sliding doors in 46 CFR 163.001 is to establish standards of construction and design found to be necessary in the manufacture of such equipment and to describe the procedures for obtaining approval.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by Treasury Department Order No. 120, dated July 31, 1950 (15 F. 2. Section 55.07–5 Design pressures and thickness of pipes is amended by canceling paragraph (g).

3. Part 55 is amended by adding a new § 55.07–6 reading as follows:

§ 55.07–6 Expansion and flexibility. (a) Piping systems shall be designed to have sufficient flexibility to prevent thermal expansion or contraction from causing excessive stresses in the piping material, excessive bending moments at the joints, or excessive forces or moments at points of connection to equipment or at anchorage and guide points.

(b) Provision shall be made for expansion and contraction by changes in direction of pipe runs or by the use of expansion bends, loops, offsets, or slip joints.

(c) Piping shall be installed to avoid excessive strains and shall be adequately supported by hangers or guides, so that the weight of the piping is not transmitted to valves and fittings, and the effects of vibrations, pitching and rolling of the vessel are minimized. Pipe supports shall be designed and arranged so as not to interfere with expansion and contraction of the piping. Anchors, pivots and restraints shall be fabricated and installed to secure the desired points of piping in relatively fixed positions and freely permit expansion and contraction in opposite directions. Main junction points of piping subject to temperatures exceeding 450° F., which are not balance points shall be fitted with fixed anchors. If considered as a balance point the junction point may be free to move in all directions, or may be guided to limit the movement in one or more directions if computations indicate excessive strain may occur in any of the branch pipes.

(d) The combined stresses due to bending and pressure for the normal operating conditions shall not exceed two-thirds of the sum of the "S" value given in table 52.55–10 (a1) in Part 52 of this subchapter and table 55.07–5 (a) for the tubing and piping material at 650° F. and the "S" value at the design temperature.

(e) In order to modify the effect of expansion and contraction, runs of pipe should be cut short and sprung into place. Piping may be cold sprung any amount up to 100% of the total expansion. When it is desired to take credit for cold spring, the piping shall be cold sprung at least half of its computed expansion. In computing stress calculations for the hot condition, the total expansion movement may be reduced by one-third of the actual cold spring applied: Provided, That, in the opinion of the Commandant, satisfactory provision is made to obtain the design amount of cold spring. The full amount of cold spring shall be taken into account in considering the forces, moments, and stresses acting in the cold condition.

(f) A summary of the results of pipe stress calculations for the main and auxiliary steam piping where the design temperature exceeds 800° F., together with the arrangement piping drawings shall be submitted for approval. Calculations shall be made in accordance with one of the recognized methods of stress analysis acceptable to the Commandant. Under no conditions shall the calculated value of the combined stress be taken as less than the total longitudinal stress (the sum of the longitudinal bending stress and the longitudinal pressure stress).

(g) The stress calculations and piping arrangement plans shall indicate all piping runs, connections, materials, sizes, design pressure and temperature, anchorages, guides or junction points, total thermal expansion between anchor points, and design cold spring. The moment of inertia of the pipe shall be based upon the minimum thickness of the pipe or tubing.

(h) Stress calculations shall be made to determine the magnitude and direction of the forces (reactions) and moments at all terminal connections, anchor, guide and junction points, as well as the longitudinal bending and pressure stress, hoop stress, shear stress, and combined stress at all such points. The location of the maximum combined stress shall be indicated in each run of pipe between anchor or junction points. Where deemed necessary by the Commandant, and conditions are such as to warrant it, calculations for the cold conditions shall be made.

(i) Where it is desired to employ alloy steel pipe materials of better heat resistant properties than those specified in Part 51 of this subchapter, special consideration may be given by the Commandant for an increase in the maximum combined stress, if satisfactory evidence is furnished to establish the suitability of the material for the design temperature.

4. Section 55.07–10 (b) is amended to read as follows:

§ 55.07–10 Valves and fittings. • • •

(b) Valves of class I piping having diameters exceeding 2 inches shall have bolted, pressure seal, or breech lock bonnets and flanged or welding ends, except that socket type welding ends, shall not be used where the diameter exceeds 2 inches. For diameters not exceeding 2 inches, screwed union bonnet valves or a type which will positively prevent the stem from screwing out of the body may be employed. Cast iron valves with screwed-in or screwed-over bonnets are prohibited. Union bonnet type cast iron valves shall have the bonnet ring made of steel, bronze or malleable iron.

PART 56—ARC WELDING, GAS WELDING, AND BRAZING

SUBPART 56.05—TESTS AND INSPECTIONS

Section 56.05–10 is amended to read as follows:

§ 56.05–10 Hydrostatic and hammer tests. (a) Arc or gas welded vessels which have been both stress-relieved and radiographed need not be subjected to the hammer test but shall be hydrostatically tested to not less than 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure for a sufficient time to permit an inspection of all joints and connections. Welded pressure vessels, 12 feet or less in diameter and/or 20 feet or less in vertical height, the welded joints of which are not stress-relieved and radiographed, shall be subjected to a hydrostatic test pressure of at least 1¼ times but not more than 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure, and while subject to this pressure all welded joints shall be given a thorough hammer or impact test. This impact test shall consist of striking the plate at 6-inch intervals on both sides of the welded joint and for the full length of all welded joints. The weight of the hammer in pounds shall approximately equal the thickness of the shell in tenths of an inch, but not to exceed 10 pounds, and the plates shall be struck with a sharp swinging blow. The edges of the hammer shall be rounded so as to prevent defacing the plate. This hammer test shall be applied to vessels over 12 feet in diameter and/or 20 feet or more in vertical height while they are empty prior to the hydrostatic test.

(b) Following the hammer test, the vessels shall be hydrostatically tested to not less than 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure for a sufficient length of time to permit an inspection of all joints and connections.

(c) On all other pressure parts the hydrostatic pressure shall be maintained at not less than 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure for a sufficient length of time to permit complete inspection.

(d) The maximum allowable pressure used in determining the hydrostatic tests shall be that for which an unfired pressure vessel is suitable at normal atmospheric temperature based on the actual dimensions and material thicknesses of the vessel.

(e) Pinholes, cracks, or other defects shall be repaired only by chipping, machining, or burning out the defect and rewelding. For gas welding, the metal around the defects shall be preheated to a dull red for a distance of at least 4 inches all around. Any preheating means may be used, such as a flange fire, gas or oil burner, or a welding torch. The preheating shall be done slowly, so the heat will soak into the plate and expand it thoroughly. After welding, the vessel shall be reheated in the vicinity of each weld until the heat has equalized in the dull-red spot, and then slowly cooled. For arc welding, preheating or reheating is not required.

(f) Vessels requiring stress relieving shall be stress-relieved after any welding repairs have been made.

(g) After repairs have been made the vessel shall again be tested in the regular way, and if it passes the test, the inspector shall accept it. If it does not pass the test, the inspector can order supplementary repairs, or, if in his judgment the vessel is not suitable for service, he may permanently reject it.

PART 57—INSTALLATIONS, TESTS, INSPECTION, REPAIRS, AND MISCELLANEOUS REQUIREMENTS

SUBPART 57.10—TESTS AND INSPECTIONS

1. Section 57.10–15 is amended to read as follows:

§ 57.10–15 Tests and inspection of boilers and main steam pipes in service. (a) The boilers of all vessels subject to inspection, and other equipment as stipulated in this subpart, shall be subjected to periodic tests and inspections. Annually, at the inspection period, all boilers, superheaters, and economizers shall be examined internally and externally; and safety valves shall be set under steam at the maximum allowable pressure as prescribed in § 57.10–20. Hydrostatic tests shall be applied to all boilers as provided in table 57.10–15 (a) at the regular inspection period.

TABLE 57.10-15 (a)—HYDROSTATIC TESTS

Boiler (type)	Passenger vessels	Cargo, tank, and miscellaneous vessels
Fire tube	Annual	Annual.
Water tube	do	Quadrennial.

(b) Fire tube boilers which can be satisfactorily examined internally, except as indicated in paragraph (c) of this section, and all water tube boilers, shall be subjected to a hydrostatic test equal to 1¼ times the maximum allowable pressure at the regular inspection period, as provided in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Fire tube boilers which cannot be entered or which cannot be satisfactorily examined internally, and all boilers of lap-seam construction, shall be subjected to a hydrostatic test equal to 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure at the regular inspection period, as provided in paragraph (a) of this section.

(d) Main steam piping shall be subjected to a hydrostatic test equal to 1¼ times the maximum allowable pressure at the same periods prescribed for boilers in paragraph (a) of this section. The hydrostatic test shall be applied from the boiler drum to the throttle valve. If the covering of the piping is not removed, the test pressure shall be maintained on the piping for a period of ten minutes, and, if any evidence of moisture or leakage is detected, the covering shall be removed and the piping thoroughly examined.

(e) Boilers to which extensive repairs have been made, or the strength of which the inspector has any reason to doubt, shall be subjected to a hydrostatic test equal to 1½ times the maximum allowable pressure. The inspector, whenever he deems it necessary, or whenever evidence of moisture or leakage appears, shall have part or all of the boiler covering, refractory and internal fittings removed so that a complete internal and external examination of the boiler may be made. If the inspector has reason to believe that the boiler has deteriorated to any appreciable extent at the bottom where it rests on saddles or foundations, he shall have the boiler lifted so that it can be thoroughly examined if the examination cannot be made otherwise.

(f) At the annual inspection the inspector shall subject such parts as stays, flues, furnaces, and such other parts of the boiler as found necessary to a hammer or drill test or both.

(g) The inspector shall carefully examine the ligaments between rivets and between tube holes to ascertain if any cracks have started. The inspector shall also examine the edges of manholes or other openings and the edges of riveted joints to ascertain if cracks have started in the plate.

(h) The inspector shall examine the casing, brickwork, refractory and baffles. If any part is found in bad condition, he shall require such repairs or renewals as may be necessary.

(i) In applying hydrostatic pressure to boilers, arrangements shall be made to prevent main and auxiliary stop valves from being subjected at the same time to hydrostatic pressure on one side and steam pressure on the opposite side. Vessels laid up when undergoing annual inspection may have the hydrostatic pressure applied to boilers at any time preceding the date of the final inspection. However, in no instance will a passenger vessel be allowed to navigate for a period to exceed 12 months from the date of issue of the certificate of inspection, nor will a cargo, tank, or miscellaneous vessel be allowed to navigate for a period to exceed 1 or 4 years as provided in paragraph (a) of this section from the date of issue of the certificate of inspection, without the application of the hydrostatic pressure, except as provided in R. S. 4421, as amended (46 U. S. C. 399).

(j) The inspector may require any boiler to be drilled to determine the actual thickness at any time if doubt exists as to its safety. However, after a Scotch, western river, or other fire tube or flue boiler has been installed for 10 years, the inspector, at the first annual inspection thereafter, and at such subsequent periods as may be deemed necessary, shall cause the boiler to be drilled at or near the water line and bottom, and at such other places as he may deem necessary, for the purpose of gauging the shell to determine the extent of deterioration. If the thickness found by actual measurement is less than the original thickness, the maximum allowable pressure shall be recalculated using the thinnest portion of the shell plate as the thickness of the shell, and shall not exceed the maximum pressure permitted by the applicable boiler design formulas. For the purpose of such recalculation the formulas found in Parts 50 to 57, inclusive, of this subchapter shall be used for boilers made or contracted for on or after July 1, 1935. The design formulas specified in Part 58 of this subchapter may be used for boilers made or contracted for prior to July 1, 1935, or alternatively the design formulas set forth in Parts 50 to 57, inclusive, of this subchapter may be used for such boilers.

2. Section 57.10–20 (a) is amended to read as follows:

§ 57.10–20 Inspection of mountings and attachments—(a) Boiler stop valves and mountings. The Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, shall require all valves on boilers to be opened up every 4 years at the time of annual inspection or at the next regular overhaul period thereafter. All flanged valves shall be removed from the boiler at least once in every 8 years to determine the condition of the studs or bolts connecting the valves to the boiler and to permit examination of those parts of the valves which are not susceptible to examination by simply opening up the valves. When, as in the case of some of the older boilers, the valves are connected to nozzles or stools which are secured to the boiler by studs or bolts, the nozzle itself should also be removed from the boiler at 8-year intervals to permit examination of the studs or bolts connecting it to the boiler. When valves are bolted to nozzles or stools which are riveted or welded to the boiler, these riveted or welded joints should not be broken unless there is evidence of leakage or the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, is of the opinion that examination of such joints is necessary. These examinations may be made at intermediate periods if there is any evidence to indicate that defects have started or excessive corrosion exists. Where one or more flanged joints intervene between a stop valve and the boiler drum such flanged joints need not be opened up at the time the valve is removed from its flanged joint but may be opened up at any time the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, is of the opinion that examination of such joints is necessary. A record of the inspection of the valves will be made on Form CG 840–B and a notation made on the certificate of inspection. This notation will be carried on each certificate until the next period of examination arrives.

SUBPART 57.15—REPAIRS

3. Section 57.15–1 is amended to read as follows:

§ 57.15–1 Welding repairs to existing boilers and unfired pressure vessels. (a) Repairs to boilers or unfired pressure vessels fabricated of carbon steel may be performed by welding provided the welding meets the applicable requirements of Part 56 of this subchapter. No repairs by welding shall be made, except temporary emergency repairs, without the approval of the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection. Emergency repairs shall be replaced with permanent repairs meeting the requirements of this subchapter when the vessel returns to a port in which an Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, is located, except in the case of minor repairs which in the opinion of the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, do not materially affect the safety of the boiler or pressure vessel.

(b) Repair welding of power boilers not meeting requirements for class I welding is prohibited unless the stress is carried by such other type(s) of construction complying with the requirements of this subchapter, and where the adequacy of the boiler design is not solely dependent upon the strength of the welds.

(c) Welding repairs are permitted in stay-bolted areas or areas adequately stayed by other means so that should failure of the welds occur the stress will be carried by stays. The welds shall be located entirely within stay-bolted areas which prohibit welds passing through the outer row of stays.

(d) Cracks extending from the calking edge of plates to the rivet holes of circumferential joints may be welded provided the cracks are veed out so that complete penetration of the weld metal is secured.

(e) Circumferential cracks from rivet hole to rivet hole in girth joints may be welded provided there are not more than three consecutive cracked ligaments nor more than a total of six cracked ligaments in any one girth joint.

(f) Cracks in staybolted plates may be welded provided they are located entirely within staybolted areas and the total length of any crack or series of consecutive cracks does not exceed two staybolt pitches.

(g) Cracks in plain, circular or Adamson ring or similar type furnaces may be welded provided any one crack does not exceed 12 inches in length and after completion the weld is stress-relieved as required by § 56.01–70 of this subchapter. Cracks in corrugated furnaces may be repaired by welding provided any one crack does not exceed 20 inches in length.

(h) Fire cracks may be welded at riveted door openings extending from the edge of the plate, but not more than 2 inches beyond the centerline of the rivet holes.

(i) Cracks may be welded between tube holes in the shell of water-tube boiler drums, provided there are not more than two cracks in any one row in any direction, nor more than a total of four cracks in a drum, and further provided the welding meets the requirements of this subchapter for class I welding and is approved by the Commandant.

(j) All cracks permitted to be repaired under this subpart shall be excavated to sound metal by grinding, flame gouging or chipping out the defective metal to form a clean welding groove. Either a vee groove or "U" groove wherein complete penetration of the weld metal is secured may be used. The first two methods of excavation are preferable. After excavation is completed and prior to welding, the excavated area shall be examined by magnetic particle testing to insure that the entire crack was excavated. When the reverse side of the weld is accessible the root of the weld shall be chipped or ground out to insure a clean surface of the originally deposited metal and the resultant groove welded to obtain a sound weld having complete penetration. During welding a preheat of 200 degrees plus or minus 50 degrees F. shall be maintained by controlled temperature. For thicknesses exceeding ¾ inch, suitable "U" grooves should be employed. A welding sequence shall be used so as to equalize welding stresses. Each complete bead of welding except the last shall be peened before depositing the succeeding bead.

(k) After cracks originating in tube or rivet holes are repaired by welding the holes shall be properly reamed and the weld reinforcing ground flush with the plate in way of rivet heads.

(l) The welding of cracks or the repairs to drums of power boilers, except as otherwise permitted in this subpart is prohibited.

(m) The edge preparation and preheat of butt-welded joints employed in the renewal of defective or corroded boiler plates shall comply with the requirements of paragraph (j) of this section.

(n) It is not permitted to reinforce or build up by welding the heads of rivets or staybolts that have deteriorated. Such rivets or staybolts shall be replaced. The seal welding of rivet heads to secure tightness is prohibited.

(o) Corroded surfaces in the calking edges of circumferential seams may be built up by welding to the original thickness under the following conditions:

(1) The thickness of the original metal to be built up between rivet holes and calking edge shall not be less than one-fourth of the diameter of the rivet hole, and the portion of the calking edge to be thus reinforced shall not exceed 30 inches in length in a circumferential direction.

(2) In all repairs to circumferential seams by welding, the rivets shall be removed over the portions to be welded for a distance of at least 6 inches beyond the repaired portion.

(3) After repairs are made the rivet holes shall be reamed before the rivets are re-driven.

(p) Where leaks occur in riveted joints or connections, they shall be carefully investigated to determine the cause. Such leaks may be made tight by seal welding the edge, if, in the opinion of the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, this will make a satisfactory repair.

(q) It is not permissible to build up or reinforce a grooved or corroded area of unstayed internal surfaces by means of welding, except that widely scattered pit holes may be built up by welding.

(r) Where external corrosion has reduced the thickness of flat plates around hand holes to an extent of not more than 40 percent of the original thickness and for a distance not exceeding 2 inches from the edge of the hole, the plate may be built up by welding.

(s) Where stayed sheets have corroded to a depth not exceeding 40 percent of their original thickness, they may be reinforced or built up by welding. Where the staybolts are fitted with riveted heads, the staybolts in the reinforced area shall be renewed in accordance with the provisions of Subparts 52.30 and 52.35 of this subchapter, but where the staybolts are fitted with nuts, the nuts may be removed and after reinforcing has been applied, collars may be welded around the staybolts in lieu of the nuts. Such reinforced areas shall not exceed 400 square inches nor more than 30 inches in one direction. Two such areas in any one plate may be reinforced: Provided, That the distance between the reinforced surfaces is not less than 30 inches.

(t) When the corroded portion of a staybolted surface exceeds 400 square inches, it is permissible to repair the same by cutting out the defective portion and replacing it with a new plate, the edges of the new plate to be welded in position. In such cases, new staybolts shall be fitted in accordance with the requirements of Subparts 52.30 and 52.35 of this subchapter and where welding is performed through a line of staybolts, welded collars as required by figure 52.35–1 of this subchapter shall be used to attach the staybolts.

(u) Flat tube sheets in fire-tube boilers which have corroded or where cracks exist in the ligaments may be repaired by welding.

(v) Unreinforced openings in the shells or drums of boilers or pressure vessels, the diameter of which does not exceed the maximum diameter of an unreinforced opening in accordance with figures 52.25–15 (b1) and 52.25–15 (b2) of this subchapter, may be closed by the use of a patch or plate inside the drum or shell and sealed against leakage by welding. Such plates shall have a diameter of at least 2 inches larger than the diameter of the hole and shall have a thickness equal to the thickness of the plate to which it is attached. It is not permissible to insert such patches in the shell or head flush with the surrounding plate unless the requirements of this subchapter for Class I welding are met.

(w) Portions of tube sheets which have deteriorated may be renewed by replacing the wasted portion with a new section. The ligaments between the tube holes may be joined by means of welding and staytubes, or other acceptable means of lowering the stress on the repaired section may be installed if in the judgment of the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, it is necessary.

(x) Where leaks develop around staybolts which are otherwise in good condition, the nuts may be replaced with a beveled collar formed around the end of the stay by means of welding. In such cases, the depth of the collar measured on the stay and the width measured on the plate, shall be equal to one-half the diameter of the staybolt. (See figure 52.35–1 (l) of this subchapter.)

(y) Only welded repairs as specified in this subchapter are permitted on boilers and unfired pressure vessels. Such method of repairs by means of welding not covered by regulations in this subchapter shall be referred to the Commandant and may be authorized by him if, in his opinion, it meets the intent of the regulations in this subchapter. Welding repairs to boilers and unfired pressure vessels fabricated of alloy steel will be given special consideration by the Commandant.

4. Section 57.15–25 is amended to read as follows:

§ 57.15–25 Repair of wrapper plates and back heads. Wrapper plates and back heads may be renewed in whole or repaired as follows:

(a) Wrapper plates or back heads shall be cut between two rows of staybolts or on a line of staybolts where the thickness is approximately the same as the original construction. If welding is employed on a line of staybolts, the staybolts shall be fitted with a welded collar as required in figure 52.35–1 of this subchapter.

(b) The edges of wrapper plates riveted to tube sheets and back heads shall be removed by cutting out the rivets.

(c) The edges of existing plates and new plates shall be beveled by chipping, flame cutting, or grinding so as to form a suitable groove whereby complete penetration of the weld metal will be obtained. The edge preparation and preheat shall comply with the requirements of § 57.15–1 (j).

(d) The edges of the new plate shall be butt-welded and the plate shall be riveted to the flanges of the tube sheet and back heads and the staybolts renewed.

(e) Sections of wrapper plates of combustion chambers outside of stayed areas may be repaired by welding provided the welded joints are stress-relieved by means of controlled heat and the joints are nondestructively tested.

Subchapter G—Ocean and Coastwise: General Rules and Regulations

PART 59—BOATS, RAFTS, BULKHEADS, AND LIFESAVING APPLIANCES (OCEAN)

Section 59.64 is amended to read as follows:

§ 59.64 Subdivision and watertight integrity of passenger vessels of less than 150 gross tons. (a) Every mechanically propelled vessel of less than 150 gross tons, whether or not specifically required by paragraph (b) of this section to meet a one-compartment standard of subdivision, shall be fitted with not less than 3 transverse watertight bulkheads.

(b) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 49 passengers, or of more than 75 gross tons and less than 150 gross tons, shall be subdivided so as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded.

(c) To be considered effective, watertight bulkheads abaft the collision bulkhead shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load waterline length. The collision bulkhead shall be fitted not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load waterline length abaft the bow at the load waterline and not less than 5 percent of the load waterline length (5-foot minimum for steam vessels) abaft the bow at the load waterline. Bulkheads in vessels of wood construction (except steam vessels) may be of wood.

(d) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the center line at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (c) of this section, the step or recess will be acceptable.

(e) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except as follows:

(1) Tanks, chain lockers, and spaces normally filled with cargo, stores, mail, or baggage in the full load condition may be taken at a permeability of 60 percent.

(2) For purposes of calculating stability in the damaged condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirement.

(f) In making subdivision calculations, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the ends of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(g) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(h) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure inclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freeing arrangements shall be provided.

(i) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(j) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkheads and as far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors are not permitted in forepeak bulkheads. Watertight doors between cargo spaces or between cargo and working spaces will not ordinarily be permitted. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces shall in no case exceed five in number and shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. On vessels which do not proceed more than 20 miles from the nearest land, approved hinged watertight doors may be substituted for sliding doors providing such doors can be kept normally closed, except when actually being used for transit. Every space used by passengers or crew during the voyage shall have a vertical means of access independent of watertight doors. Sluice valves are not permitted in watertight bulkheads.

(k) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this section when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(l) Any passenger vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to a passenger vessel before April 15, 1951, while normally required to essentially comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision, is not subject to compliance with this standard or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this section to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

(R. S. 4405, 4417, 4426, 4490, 49 Stat. 1384, 54 Stat. 346, and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended; 46 U. S. C. 369, 375, 391, 404, 482, 483, 1333, and 50 U. S. C. 1275)

PART 60—BOATS, RAFTS, BULKHEADS, AND LIFESAVING APPLIANCES (COASTWISE)

Section 60.57 is amended to read as follows:

§ 60.57 Subdivision and watertight integrity of passenger vessels of less than 150 gross tons. (a) Every mechanically propelled vessel of less than 150 gross tons, whether or not specifically required by paragraph (b) of this section to meet a one-compartment standard of subdivision, shall be fitted with not less than 3 transverse watertight bulkheads. On such a vessel operating not more than 15 miles from the mouth of bays or harbors, air tankage or other internal buoyancy sufficient to float the vessel when completely flooded may be substituted for the after two of the three required bulkheads, but a collision bulkhead extending to the weather deck shall be fitted on each vessel. The use of internal buoyancy shall not permit omission of bulkheads required by other regulations in this chapter dealing with machinery installations, etc.

(b) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 49 passengers or of more than 75 gross tons and less than 150 gross tons shall be subdivided so as to be capable of remaining afloat with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded.

(c) To be considered effective watertight bulkheads abaft the collision bulkhead shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load water line length. The collision bulkhead shall be fitted not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load water line length abaft the bow at the load water line and not less than 5 percent of the load water line length (5-foot minimum for steam vessels) abaft the bow at the load water line. Bulkheads in vessels of wood construction (except steam vessels) may be of wood.

(d) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the center line at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (c) of this section, the step or recess will be acceptable.

(e) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except as follows:

(1) Tanks, chain lockers, and spaces normally filled with cargo, stores, mail, or baggage in the full load condition may be taken at a permeability of 60 percent.

(2) For purposes of calculating stability in the damaged condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirement.

(f) In making subdivision calculations, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the ends of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(g) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(h) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure inclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freeing arrangements shall be provided. On vessels having internal buoyancy, as permitted under paragraph (a) of this section, a bulkhead deck is not required.

(i) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(j) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkheads and as far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors are not permitted in forepeak bulkheads. Watertight doors between cargo spaces or between cargo and working spaces will not ordinarily be permitted. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces shall in no case exceed five in number and shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. (k) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this section when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(l) Any passenger vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to a passenger vessel before April 15, 1951, while normally required to essentially comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision, is not subject to compliance with this standard or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this section to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

Subchapter H—Great Lakes: General Rules and Regulations

PART 76—BOATS, RAFTS, BULKHEADS, AND LIFESAVING APPLIANCES

Section 76.57 is amended to read as follows:

§ 76.57 Subdivision and watertight integrity of passenger vessels. (a) Every mechanically propelled vessel, whether or not specifically required by this section to meet a one-compartment or better standard of subdivision, shall be fitted with not less than 3 transverse watertight bulkheads. On such a vessel operating not more than 15 miles from the mouth of bays or harbors, air tankage or other internal buoyancy sufficient to float the vessel when completely flooded may be substituted for the after two of the three required bulkheads, but a collision bulkhead extending to the weather deck shall be fitted on each vessel. The use of internal buoyancy shall not permit omission of bulkheads required by other regulations in this chapter dealing with machinery installations, etc.

(b) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 49 passengers or of more than 75 gross tons shall be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded.

(c) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 400 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with the forepeak and the adjacent main compartment both flooded.

(d) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 600 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments within at least the forward 40 percent of the vessel's length from the forward perpendicular flooded.

(e) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 800 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments within at least 60 percent of the vessel's length from the forward perpendicular flooded.

(f) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 1,000 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided by main transverse watertight bulkheads as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments flooded.

(g) To be considered effective, watertight bulkheads abaft the collision bulkhead shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load waterline length. The collision bulkhead shall be fitted not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load waterline length abaft the bow at the load waterline and not less than 5 percent of the load waterline length (5-foot minimum for steam vessels) abaft the bow at the load waterline. Bulkheads in vessels of wood construction (except steam vessels) may be of wood. On vessels of 150 gross tons or over, stern tubes shall be enclosed in watertight spaces. The stern glands shall be situated within a watertight shaft tunnel or other space of such volume that if flooded by leakage through the stern gland the margin line will not be submerged.

(h) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the centerline at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the maximum molded beam at the deck and at the load waterline differ appreciably the inboard damage penetration may be assumed at a mean position between that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the deck measured inboard at the deck, and that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the load waterline measured inboard at the load waterline. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (g) of this section the step or recess will be acceptable.

(i) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except as follows:

(1) Tanks, chain lockers, and spaces normally filled with cargo, stores, mail, or baggage in the full load condition may be taken at a permeability of 60 percent.

(2) For purposes of calculating stability in the damage condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirement.

(j) In making subdivision calculation, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the ends of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(k) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(l) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure inclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freeing arrangements shall be provided. On vessels having internal buoyancy, as permitted under paragraph (a) of this section, a bulkhead deck is not required.

(m) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(n) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkheads and as far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors are not permitted in forepeak bulkheads. Watertight doors between cargo spaces or between cargo and working spaces will not ordinarily be permitted. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces, and having their sills below the subdivision waterline, shall not exceed 5 in number and shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. Where it can be shown that more than 5 such watertight doors are required they shall be of approved power operated sliding type. On vessels which do not proceed more than 20 miles from the nearest land, approved hinged watertight doors may be substituted for hand-operated sliding doors providing such doors can be kept normally closed except when actually being used for transit. Where watertight doors are required above a deck which, at its lowest point at side, is at least 7 feet above the subdivision waterline, such doors may be of approved hinged type. Every space used by passengers or crew during the voyage shall have a vertical means of access independent of watertight doors. Sluice valves are not permitted in watertight bulkheads.

(o) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this section when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(p) Any passenger vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to a passenger vessel before April 15, 1951, if of more than 75 gross tons, is normally required to comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision. Such a vessel, however, is not subject to compliance with a one-compartment standard, or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this section to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

PART 80—FERRYBOATS

Section 80.2 is amended to read as follows:

§ 80.2 Subdivision and watertight integrity of ferry vessels. (a) Every passenger ferry vessel shall be so subdivided by main transverse watertight bulkheads as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded, unless provided with air tankage or other internal buoyancy sufficient to float the flooded vessel. The use of internal buoyancy shall not permit omission of bulkheads required by other regulations of this chapter dealing with machinery installation, etc.

(b) Every passenger ferry vessel above 150 feet in waterline length shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with either of the peak compartments and its adjacent main compartment both flooded.

(c) Every passenger ferry vessel above 230 feet in waterline length shall, in addition, be so subdivided by main transverse bulkheads as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments flooded.

(d) (1) To be considered effective, watertight bulkheads between the peak bulkheads shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load waterline length. The peak bulkheads shall be fitted not less than 5 percent of the load waterline length and not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load waterline length from the ends of the vessel at the load waterline.

(2) On ferryboats of 150 gross tons or over, shaft tubes shall be enclosed in watertight spaces. The glands shall be situated within watertight shaft tunnels or other spaces of such volume that the flooding by leakage through either gland will not submerge the margin line.

(e) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the center line at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the maximum molded beam at the deck and at the load waterline differ appreciably the inboard damage penetration may be assumed at a mean position between that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the deck measured inboard at the deck, and that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the load waterline measured inboard at the load waterline. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (d) of this section, the step or recess will be acceptable.

(f) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except for purposes of calculating stability in the damaged condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirement.

(g) In making subdivision calculations, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the end of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(h) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(i) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure enclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freeing arrangements shall be provided. On vessels having internal buoyancy, as permitted under paragraph (a) of this section, a bulkhead deck is not required.

(j) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(k) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkhead and so far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors are not permitted in peak bulkheads. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. However, doors which can be kept normally closed except when actually being used for transit, may be hinged doors of approved type. Every space used by passengers or crew during the voyage shall have a vertical means of access independent of watertight doors. Sluice valves are not permitted in watertight bulkheads.

(l) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this part when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(m) Any passenger ferry vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to passenger ferry service before April 15, 1951, while normally required to essentially comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision, is not subject to compliance with this standard or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this part to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

Section 94.56 is amended to read as follows:

§ 94.56 Subdivision and watertight integrity of passenger vessels. (a) Every mechanically propelled vessel carrying passengers for hire shall have not less than three transverse watertight bulkheads, unless provided with air tankage or other internal buoyancy sufficient to float the flooded vessel. The use of internal buoyancy shall not permit omission of bulkheads required by other regulations in this chapter dealing with machinery installations, etc.

(b) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 49 passengers or of more than 75 gross tons shall be subdivided so as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded.

(c) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 400 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with the forepeak and the adjacent main compartment both flooded.

(d) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 600 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments within at least the forward 40 percent of the vessel's length from the forward perpendicular flooded.

(e) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 800 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments within at least 60 percent of the vessel's length from the forward perpendicular flooded.

(f) Every passenger vessel carrying more than 1,000 passengers shall, in addition, be so subdivided by main transverse watertight bulkheads so as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments flooded.

(g) To be considered effective, watertight bulkheads abaft the forepeak bulkhead shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load waterline length. The forepeak bulkhead shall be fitted not less than 5 percent of the load waterline length and not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load waterline length abaft the bow of the vessel at the load waterline.

(h) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the center line at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the maximum molded beam at the deck and at the load waterline differ appreciably the inboard damage penetration may be assumed at a mean position between that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the deck measured inboard at the deck, and that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the load waterline measured inboard at the load waterline. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (g) of this section, the step or recess will be acceptable.

(i) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except as follows:

(1) Tanks, chain lockers, and spaces normally filled with cargo, stores, mail, or baggage in the full load condition may be taken at a permeability of 60 percent.

(2) For purposes of calculating stability in the damaged condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirements.

(j) In making subdivision calculations, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the ends of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(k) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(l) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure inclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freeing arrangements shall be provided. On vessels having internal buoyancy, as permitted under paragraph (a) of this section, a bulkhead deck is not required.

(m) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(n) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkheads and as far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors between cargo spaces or between cargo and working spaces will not ordinarily be permitted. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces shall in no case exceed five in number and shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. Approved hinged watertight doors may be substituted for sliding doors providing such doors can be kept normally closed except when actually being used for transit. Every space used by passengers or crew during the voyage shall have a vertical means of access independent of watertight doors. Sluice valves are not permitted in watertight bulkheads.

(o) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this section when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(p) Any passenger vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to a passenger vessel before April 15, 1951, if of more than 75 gross tons, is normally required to comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision. Such vessel, however, is not subject to compliance with a one-compartment standard, or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this section to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

PART 98—FERRYBOATS

§ 98.2 Subdivision and watertight integrity of ferry vessels. (a) Every passenger ferry vessel shall be subdivided by main transverse watertight bulkheads so as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any one main compartment flooded, unless provided with air tankage or other internal buoyancy sufficient to float the flooded vessel. The use of internal buoyancy shall not permit omission of bulkheads required by other regulations in this chapter dealing with machinery installations, etc.

(b) Every passenger ferry vessel above 150 feet in waterline length shall, in addition be so subdivided as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with either of the peak compartments and its adjacent main compartment both flooded.

(c) Every passenger ferry vessel above 200 feet in waterline length shall, in addition, be so subdivided by main transverse bulkheads as to be capable of remaining afloat and with positive stability with any two adjacent main compartments flooded.

(d) To be considered effective, watertight bulkheads between the peak bulkheads shall be spaced not less than 10 feet plus 3 percent of the load waterline length. The peak bulkheads shall be fitted not less than 5 percent of the load waterline length and not more than 10 feet plus 5 percent of the load waterline length from the ends of the vessel at the load waterline.

(e) Watertight bulkheads shall not be stepped unless additional subdivision is provided in way of the step to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. If watertight bulkheads are recessed, either the recess shall be inboard from the vessel's side by at least one-fifth the beam amidships measured at right angles to the center line at the level of the load waterline, or additional subdivision shall be provided in way of the recess to maintain the same measure of safety as that secured by a plane bulkhead. Where the maximum molded beam at the deck measured inboard, at the deck, and that corresponding to one-fifth the maximum molded beam at the load waterline measured inboard at the load waterline. Where the vessel can withstand the flooding of the two adjacent compartments separated by a stepped or recessed bulkhead and no part of such bulkhead is nearer to either of the other bulkheads bounding the adjacent compartments than is permitted by paragraph (d) of this section, the step or recess will be acceptable.

(f) Permeability of machinery spaces shall be taken at 85 percent and of all other spaces at 95 percent, except for purposes of calculating stability in the damaged condition, tanks or tight voids shall be taken either at 95 percent permeability or at zero permeability whichever results in the more severe requirement.

(g) In making subdivision calculations, the undamaged vessel is to be assumed floating at the maximum service draft and at a trim consistent therewith. Sinkage, trim, and heel after damage shall not be permitted beyond a margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at side. In the case of vessels, where the mean of the maximum sheer forward and aft is less than 12 inches, a modified margin line 3 inches below the top of the bulkhead deck at the ends of the vessel but lowered throughout its length so as to have a mean parabolic sheer of 12 inches is to be used. Where the bulkhead deck is not continuous the margin line shall be such as to give at least a standard of safety equivalent to the foregoing.

(h) Heel due to final unsymmetrical flooding shall be limited to fifteen degrees, except that under circumstances where such heel after damage may be deemed to constitute an undue hazard, the Commandant may require a lesser angle of heel. Equalizing arrangements, where required, shall not be dependent either upon manual or automatic operation of valves. Temporary heel prior to full equalization shall not be excessive.

(i) The bulkhead deck, or superstructure inclosing any portion thereof, shall be effectively weathertight. Adequate freezing arrangements shall be provided. On vessels having internal buoyancy, as permitted under paragraph (a) of this section, a bulkhead deck is not required.

(j) Portlights shall not be fitted below the margin line.

(k) Openings in watertight bulkheads shall be the minimum consistent with proper operation of the vessel and shall be located as high in the bulkheads and as far inboard as practicable. Watertight doors are not permitted in peak bulkheads. Watertight doors within accommodation and working spaces shall in no case exceed five in number and shall be of approved hand-operated sliding type. Approved hinged watertight doors may be substituted for sliding doors providing such doors can be kept normally closed except when actually being used for transit. Every space used by passengers or crew during the voyage shall have a vertical means of access independent of watertight doors. Sluice valves are not permitted in watertight bulkheads.

(l) Special consideration will be given to departures from the specific requirements of the regulations in this section when it can be shown that the special circumstances or arrangements warrant such departures.

(m) Any passenger ferry vessel whose keel was laid before April 15, 1951, or any vessel converted to passenger ferry service before April 15, 1951, while normally required to essentially comply with a one-compartment standard of subdivision, is not subject to compliance with this standard or to the detail requirements of the regulations in this section to a greater extent than is found reasonable and practicable.

C. regulations, or hazardous articles packed, marked and labeled in accordance with the regulations in this part, shall when taken on board a cargo vessel be stowed in accordance with the following provisions:

(1) Explosives. Vehicles loaded with permitted explosives are not required to be given magazine stowage. Such vehicles may be stowed "Under deck" and away from all sources of heat. Inflammable placarded vehicles (other than explosives), corrosive placarded vehicles, dangerous placarded vehicles and poison placarded vehicles shall not be stowed adjacent to vehicles loaded with explosives nor within a distance of two car lengths of vehicles loaded with explosives. In "anchoring" vehicles loaded with explosives securing means shall be fitted over the top of the car so as to completely secure the entire vehicle to prevent any movement of the body of the car.

(2) Other dangerous articles. Vehicles loaded with any other permitted dangerous articles shall be stowed on board the vessel in accordance with the stowages required in the tables for the substances within the vehicle. Such stowages are not feasible in each instance for railroad freight vehicles stowed below deck on cargo vessels; and, for the purpose of adopting these stowages to the conditions incident to transportation of railroad freight vehicles in this method of transportation, a conversion table is shown in this paragraph. Permitted stowages as shown in the tables for the substance loaded within the vehicle may be converted in accordance with the table and when so converted the stowage in column 2 of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph may be utilized in lieu of the stowage indicated under column 1 of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(3) Conversion table of stowage.

(1)	(2)
Substances required by the tables forming part of these regulations to be stowed as follows:	May be stowed in the following locations when contained in railroad vehicles:
On deck in open.	Weather deck.
On deck protected.	Weather deck or 1st deck below.
On deck under cover.	Weather deck or 1st deck below.
Tween decks.	Weather deck or 1st deck below.

NOTE: When carbon dioxide, solid, is used as a refrigerant for other dangerous articles, the packing and stowage must comply with requirements for carbon dioxide, solid, and also with the requirements for the refrigerated material. Carbon dioxide, solid when used as a refrigerant for nonregulated commodities must comply with all the regulations for carbon dioxide, solid.

At temperatures above −109° F. (−78.5° C.) it passes from the solid to the gaseous state directly, evolving large quantities of a colorless, odorless, tasteless, noninflammable gas about 1½ times as heavy as air, which will cause suffocation if breathed in excessive quantities. Avoid breathing of concentrated vapors.*

Do not handle with bare hands.

Do not stow below decks.

Stow in a well-ventilated place where gas cannot accumulate, and away from open ventilation and direct openings.

Do not stow with sodium cyanide, potassium cyanide, or other materials which may develop hydrocyanic acid or similar poisonous gases.

Outside containers must be marked "Carbon dioxide, solid—Do not stow below decks".

Railroad cars and motor vehicles containing carbon dioxide, solid, when accepted for transportation on board vessels shall display suitable warnings on the outside of the vehicle, such as "Warning—CO_2, Solid (Dry Ice)."

(In column 3 add): No label required.

(In column 4 add): Stowage:

"On deck in open."

"On deck protected."

Outside containers: Strong outside containers capable of withstanding all shocks ordinarily incident to handling and stowage in transit. Containers must be provided with suitable means for the escape of the generated gas.

Motor vehicles.

Railroad cars.

(In column 5 add): Stowage:

"On deck in open."

"On deck protected."

Outside containers: Strong outside containers capable of withstanding all shocks ordinarily incident to handling and stowage in transit. Containers must be provided with suitable means for the escape of the generated gas.

(In column 6 add): Ferry stowage (AA).

Outside containers: Strong outside containers capable of withstanding all shocks ordinarily incident to handling and stowage in transit. Containers must be provided with suitable means for the escape of the generated gas.

(In column 7 add): Ferry stowage (BB).

Outside containers: Strong outside containers capable of withstanding all shocks ordinarily incident to handling and stowage in transit. Containers must be provided with suitable means for the escape of the generated gas.

Motor vehicles.

Railroad cars.

(In columns 4, 5, 6 and 7 add): The officer in charge of loading the vessel shall satisfy himself that the outside containers are sufficient in all respects for the purpose intended. He shall refuse any containers showing damage, or inability to properly contain the substance.

(R. S. 4405, 4472, as amended; 46 U. S. C. 170, 375)

160.044-3 General requirements.
160.044-4 Inspection and tests.
160.044-5 Marking.
160.044-6 Procedure for approval.

AUTHORITY: §§ 160.044-1 to 160.044-6 issued under R. S. 4405, 4417a, 4488, 4491, 49 Stat. 1544, 54 Stat. 346, and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended; 46 U. S. C. 367, 375, 391a, 481, 489, 1333, and 50 U. S. C. 1275.

SUBPART 160.044—PUMPS, BILGE, LIFEBOAT, FOR MERCHANT VESSELS

§ 160.044-1 Applicable specifications. (a) There are no other specifications applicable to this subpart.

§ 160.044-2 Types and sizes—(a) Type. Bilge pumps covered by this subpart shall be manually operated, either oscillating, wing type, or full rotary type, with mountings so arranged as to permit attachment to a thwart or other part of the lifeboat structure without interference with the seating arrangement. Alternate types, arrangements or materials, which meet the performance requirements of this subpart will be given special consideration.

(b) Sizes. Bilge pumps covered by this subpart shall be of three sizes, having capacities as follows:

(1) Size No. 1. 5 gallons per minute at 65 double strokes,[1] for lifeboats up to 330 cubic feet capacity.[2]

(2) Size No. 2. 6 gallons per minute at 50 double strokes, for lifeboats from 330 cubic feet up to 700 cubic feet capacity.

(3) Size No. 3. 15 gallons per minute at 50 double strokes, for lifeboats of 700 cubic feet or more capacity.

§ 160.044-3 General requirements. (a) Bilge pumps shall be of rugged construction, of first class workmanship in every respect, and free from any defects affecting serviceability. Where a choice of materials is permitted, the materials used shall be of good quality and suitable for the purpose intended, and shall be corrosion-resistant or protected against corrosion by acceptable means, except that parts subject to wear shall not depend upon coatings for corrosion resistance.

(b) Bilge pumps covered by this subpart shall be capable of operating against a head pressure of 20 pounds per square inch when tested in accordance with § 160.044-4 (c).

(c) The bilge pump body shall be of bronze and shall be provided with a cover plate or plates, attached by means of wing nuts at least 1¼ inches long, on not more than 6 studs, or by means of a suitable bayonet type joint, so as to be readily removable for inspection or cleaning.

(d) The operating lever shall have a steel or bronze core through its entire length, but for comfort may have a gripping surface of wood or other suitable material. The lever shall be removable and shall be attached to the pump shaft which is to be square ended, by means of a set screw with 1¼-inch wings, and further shall be connected to the pump body or shaft end by a retaining chain to prevent loss.

(e) The suction line shall be fitted with an intake check valve and a suitable strainer. The strainer shall be removable for cleaning without the use of tools. The suction line shall contain no hose or fittings subject to collapsing when the pump is in service.

(f) Suction and discharge outlets shall be not less than 1 inch inside diameter for pump sizes Nos. 1 and 2, and not less than 1¼ inches inside diameter for pump size No. 3. Discharge outlets shall be provided with a tee of cast bronze or other corrosion-resistant material, with a removable plug at the top for priming, the plug to have a wing arrangement for removal by hand, and be secured to the tee by a retaining chain. The bottom of the tee shall have pipe threads to fit the discharge outlet of the pump, and the discharge portion of the tee shall be a plain clamp type male hose connection, with inside diameter not less than that of the pump discharge opening.

§ 160.044-4 Inspection and tests—(a) General. Bilge pumps specified by this subpart are not inspected at regularly scheduled factory inspections, but the Commander of the Coast Guard District in which approved pumps are manufactured may detail an inspector at any time to check the facilities, materials and methods, and to conduct such tests as are necessary to satisfy himself that the pumps are being manufactured in compliance with this subpart, and in accordance with the manufacturers' plans and specifications as approved by the Commandant. The manufacturer shall provide a suitable place and the apparatus necessary for the use of the inspector in conducting tests.

(b) Capacity. The pump being tested shall be set up over a source of water for operation with all the required fittings and connections, the set-up to simulate an installation in a lifeboat. The pump shall be operated at the standard speed specified for its size, and the flow of water measured. The amount of water discharged shall not be less than that required by § 160.044-2 (b).

(c) Head pressure. After the successful completion of the test outlined in paragraph (b) of this section, a pressure gage capable of registering 20 pounds per square inch, and a variable restriction, such as a nozzle, valve, etc., shall be fitted in the discharge line. The pump shall be put in operation with the discharge line open, and then the restriction shall be gradually closed until the pressure builds up to at least 20 pounds per square inch. This pressure shall be maintained for at least 15 seconds, after which the pump shall be disassembled and inspected. No destruction or deformation of parts sufficient to affect the serviceability of the pump shall be permitted as a result of this test.

(d) Operating lever. With the pump firmly secured in such a position that both the shaft and operating lever are in a horizontal position, apply a downward load of 200 pounds for a period of 5 minutes at the free end of the operating lever and perpendicular to its axis and the axis of the shaft. There shall be no slippage of the lever around the shaft, nor any evidence of permanent set or undue stress in any part of the pump. In cases where the design of the pump is such that this test may not be applicable to the complete pump, the pump shall be disassembled and the 200-pound load applied to the shaft and operating lever while the free end of the shaft is held in a vise or chuck so that both the shaft and the operating lever are in a horizontal position.

§ 160.044-5 Marking. (a) Each pump shall be permanently and legibly marked, in letters not less than ¼ inch high, either cast or stamped on the body, with the name of the manufacturer, the size for which approved (USCG No. 1, 2 or 3), and the Coast Guard approval number. The tee required by § 160.044-3 (f) shall be permanently and legibly marked with the words "PRIME HERE".

§ 160.044-6 Procedure for approval—(a) General. Bilge pumps for lifeboats on board merchant vessels are approved only by the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C. Correspondence relating to the subject matter of this specification shall be addressed to the Commander of the Coast Guard District in which the pumps are manufactured.

(b) Manufacturer's plans. In order to obtain approval, submit detailed plans and specifications, including a complete bill of material, assembly drawing, and parts drawings descriptive of the arrangement and construction of the pump and fittings, to the Commander of the Coast Guard District in which the factory is located. Each drawing shall have an identifying number, date, and an identification of the item; and the general arrangement or assembly drawing shall include a list of all drawings applicable, together with drawing numbers and alteration numbers. At the time of selection of the pre-approval sample, the manufacturer shall furnish the inspector four copies of all plans and specifications, corrected as may have been required, for forwarding to the Commandant. A copy of the approved plans and the certificate of approval shall be kept on file by the manufacturer.

[1] A double stroke is a complete cycle from one extreme to the other and back again to the original starting point, or, for rotary type, one complete revolution.

[2] The capacity of a lifeboat for determining the size of the bilge pump shall be 0.6 times the product of the length, breadth, and depth of the lifeboat, in feet.

(c) Pre-approval sample. After the first drawings and specifications have been examined and found to appear satisfactory, a marine inspector will be detailed to the factory to observe the production facilities and manufacturing methods and to obtain a pre-approval sample, which will be forwarded, prepaid by the manufacturer, to the Commandant for the necessary inspections and tests to determine compliance with this subpart for qualification for type or brand approval for use in lifeboats on board merchant vessels.

§ 163.001–2 General requirements for sliding watertight doors—(a) Applicability. The requirements of this subpart apply to all new sliding watertight doors to be installed on merchant vessels. Sliding watertight doors approved and in use prior to these specifications may be continued in service as long as in good and serviceable condition.

(b) Types. Sliding watertight doors may be either the horizontal sliding type or the vertical sliding type, classed as follows:

(1) Class 2. Sliding doors operated both locally and remotely by hand gear.

(2) Class 3. Sliding doors operated both locally and remotely by hand and by power.

(c) Location. The permitted locations of the several types of watertight doors are contained in Subchapter E—Load Lines of this chapter.

(d) Basic requirements. Sliding watertight doors shall be efficiently designed to maintain watertightness within the limits set forth in these specifications. They shall be designed to open and close with ease when operated with the required operating gear.

(e) Alternatives. The requirements of this subpart shall be complied with unless other arrangements in matters of construction details, design, strength, equivalent in safety and efficiency are approved by the Commandant.

§ 163.001–3 Construction of sliding watertight doors—(a) Material. The door panel and the door frame shall be made of cast steel and/or fabricated steel unless otherwise specifically approved by the Commandant. Cast doors and frames and welded doors and frames shall be stress relieved before final machine work is done.

(b) Contact strips. Brass strips or other acceptable material shall be firmly screwed on the door to form the contact watertight surface of the door and frame. The contact watertight surface of the frame may be the machined parent metal of the frame. Special consideration will be given to other methods of attaching the strips to the door.

(c) Rigidity. The door and frame shall be of substantial and rigid construction to insure that the door can be closed under a 10 foot head of water. In locations where hinged doors are permitted, this requirement will not apply.

(d) Adjustment. The door shall be so designed that as the watertight joint wears through usage sufficient allowance or adjustment is provided to maintain the original watertight integrity of the door.

(e) Alignment. Retaining grooves or aligning strips shall be provided at the top and bottom of horizontal sliding doors and at the sides of vertical sliding doors to maintain the door in alignment when the door is not in the closed position. They should have sufficient strength to hold the door when being closed against a head of water as required in paragraph (c) of this section. Horizontal doors shall be supported on lubricated rollers to maintain alignment and to minimize friction.

(f) Watertight workmanship. The contact surfaces of the door and frame shall be finished as necessary to provide a plane surface and a satisfactory joint.

(g) Door sill design. The bottom of the door frame shall be so designed that the door is not likely to be prevented from closing properly by lodgements of dirt, coal, etc. A sill plate of $\frac{5}{16}$ inch minimum thickness may be employed to cover the bottom trackway provided it is designed to automatically retract when the door closes. Sill plate hinges shall be designed and located to prevent clogging with dirt.

(h) Door positions. The door shall be so designed that, when in the open position, the brass strips required by paragraph (b) of this section will not be exposed. Door stops shall be provided to prevent the door from leaving the track.

(i) Door frame design. (1) The door frame shall be continuous on all four sides and shall be designed to have a section moment of inertia (in.^{4}) on each side of not less than the value given by the formula:

$$I = .002\ Hwh^4$$

Where:

"H" equals the head of water in feet from the margin line to the bottom of the door opening, but not less than 20 feet unless the door is to be installed where a hinged door is permissible in which case "H" may be not less than 10 feet.
"w" equals the shorter dimension of the opening in feet, and
"h" equals the longer dimension of the opening in feet.

(2) If the door frame is to be mounted on the bulkhead on a reinforcing member, which acts as a secondary frame and which is continuous around the door opening, the "I" of that member may be included to obtain the required frame "I" value.

(j) Door frame attachment. The door frame may be either bolted or welded watertight to the bulkhead. If bolted, a suitable thin heat and fire resistant gasket or suitable compound shall be used between the bulkhead and the frame for watertightness, and the bulkhead plating shall be worked to a plane surface in way of the frame to prevent distortion of the frame when mounting. If welded, precaution shall be exercised in the welding process in order that the door frame is not distorted.

(k) Door frame extension. The frame extension for sliding watertight doors shall be made in one continuous piece, or suitable construction shall be employed to insure positive alignment.

(l) Lubrication. Means shall be provided for satisfactory lubrication of all parts as necessary for satisfactory operation.

§ 163.001–4 Manual operating controls for sliding watertight doors—(a) Manual control locations. All sliding watertight doors shall be provided with manual operating controls for opening and closing the door from both sides of the bulkhead adjacent to the door and also for closing the door from a position above the bulkhead deck. The controls adjacent to the door shall generally not be more than 10 feet from the door. The bulkhead deck, for door control purposes, is the first deck above the margin line.

(b) Basic requirement. Manual operating equipment shall be designed to close the door at an average rate of not less than 15 inches per minute with an applied manual force of not more than 50 pounds on the rim of handwheel or on hand crank.

(c) Shafting and gear controls. Where shafting and gears are used for manual control, the following conditions apply:

(1) Handwheels. Handwheels at least 18 inches in diameter shall be provided and permanently attached at each hand operating station in an accessible position for operation. In unusual circumstances, other arrangements will be considered by the Commandant. Shafting from the handwheels to the door pinions shall be as direct as possible with as few gears and universals as practicable.

(2) Gears and universals. Gears used in the operating controls shall be cut steel or other approved material. Standard forged steel universals and slip joint couplings shall be used to allow for working of the ship or deflection of structure. Universals shall not be used where there is more than 25° change in direction of the shafting. Universals, bearings, and gears shall have suitable provision for lubrication and should be enclosed to retain the lubricant and encased as necessary to prevent entry of foreign matter. Inaccessible bearings, and those in long leads of control shafting, shall be preferably of the antifriction "grease sealed" type, for which no additional means of lubrication will be required. No clutch devices shall be employed in the hand gear mechanism.

(3) Keys and pins. All parts transmitting torque shall be keyed or splined. Taper pins may be used only to prevent axial movement.

(4) Door securing device. If frictional damping is found insufficient to prevent movement of the door in a seaway or from other external forces, provision shall be made in the design of door or operating gear for the attachment of a spring latch or other approved device for securing the door in the open position. This device shall be released or forced out of engagement automatically, without hampering the closing operation.

(5) Factor of safety. In general, the manual control shafting, gears, universals, etc., shall be designed with a factor of safety of 5 based on the ultimate strength of the material in conjunction with a torque of 2,000 pounds-inches at the handwheels. While short shafts, such as gear box stub shafts, may be proportioned in accordance with the foregoing, the longer runs of shafting between the remote manual station and the door shall not be less than $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches diameter.

(d) Hydraulic manual controls. Where a hydraulic system is used for manual control, the following conditions apply:

(1) Hand pumps. Hand pumps operated by an all round crank motion shall be provided at each hand operating station in an accessible position for operation. A single hand pump may be provided at the door location if it is arranged so that it can be operated from either side of the bulkhead. The pump or pumps at the door station shall be reversible. The pump at the remote control station may be arranged to close the door only, and the direction of rotation shall be marked. Cranks or handwheels for turning shall be permanently attached, although in unusual circumstances, other arrangements will be considered by the Commandant. No remote pump shall operate more than one door.

(2) Control valves. Unless otherwise approved, the action of valves selecting the hydraulic circuits between pumps and operating cylinders or hydraulic motors shall be automatic with the operation of any one or more pumps. The valves or pumps shall be so arranged as to prevent the overhauling of an idle pump as a hydraulic motor, and they shall be so arranged as to hydraulically block the door operator to prevent movement of the door in a seaway.

(3) Hydraulic systems. In general the requirements in Subchapter F—Marine Engineering of this chapter shall apply in the selection of materials and scantlings, submittal of plans and diagrams, and in the testing of components and the complete shipboard installation of hydraulic systems for the operation of sliding watertight doors.

(e) Direction of control rotation. The handwheels or cranks at the remote stations shall turn in a clockwise direction to close the door.

(f) Mechanical indicator. The manual operating station above the bulkhead deck shall be provided with a mechanical indicator to show whether the door is open or closed. This indicator shall be independent of the manual control shafting when the door is fitted with power controls.

(g) Guards. Adequate guards shall be provided over moving parts of the control equipment to prevent the possibility of damage or jamming.

§ 163.001–5 Power operating controls for sliding watertight doors—(a) Types of power. Sliding watertight doors that are required to be power operated in addition to manual operation shall be fitted with the necessary equipment to use electric power, hydraulic power, or any other power supply that is acceptable to the Coast Guard.

(b) Power control arrangement. Power operated sliding watertight doors shall be provided with power controls for opening and closing the door from both sides of the bulkhead adjacent to the door and also for closing from a central control station on the bridge. These controls shall be arranged as follows:

(1) Automatic reclosing. The door, when opened by the local control after being closed from the central control, shall automatically reclose when the local control is released.

(2) Prevention of remote operation. Where means are provided to open doors from the central control, each door shall be arranged so that it can be kept closed by means of local arrangements which shall prevent the door from being opened from the central control.

(3) Accessibility of local power controls. The local control handles at each side of the bulkhead shall be so located that they may be held in the open position when a person is passing through the doorway, and shall be at least 48 inches above the deck. The direction of movement of the handles to open and close the door shall be clearly marked.

(4) Operation. The sliding watertight doors under power operation shall close at an approximately uniform rate of speed within the limits of one to two inches per second, and the power operator shall be capable of closing horizontal sliding doors in a reasonable length of time against a list of 15 degrees when the potential at the supply source is reduced to 87.5 percent of normal. The capacity of the accumulators or storage batteries shall be sufficient to open all doors twice and close them three times without recharging.

(c) Central control panel. The central control panel shall be arranged as follows:

(1) Simultaneous closing. Means shall be provided for closing all doors simultaneously. However, when electrically operated doors are energized from the temporary emergency lighting and power system and a large number of doors are involved, means may be provided for operating the doors in sequence, preference in closing being given to doors in the lowest part of the vessel.

(2) Diagram. A diagram shall be provided showing the location of each door on the deck or decks with visual indicators for each door to show whether the door is open or closed. A red light shall indicate the door is open and a green light shall indicate that it is closed and both lights shall indicate that it is in an intermediate position.

(d) Warning sound signal. Provision shall be made at the door to give warning by sound signal when the door is about to be closed. A minimum time interval of 20 seconds shall be provided between the time of sounding of the warning signal and the time the door reaches the closed position, but in any case the sounding of the warning shall precede the movement of the door into the clear opening in the bulkhead by at least 1 second. The warning sound signal shall be of the electric horn or howler type.

(e) Hand gear operation with power controls. Provision shall be made to prevent the hand gear from turning when the door is operated by the power unit. The arrangement shall be such that failure of the power unit or power supply will not prevent the door from being operated manually.

(f) Construction of power components. The construction of electrical, hydraulic and pneumatic components used with power operators shall be in accordance with the general requirements of Subchapters D, F, G, H, I or J of this chapter. If the power and hand operating systems are hydraulic, each driving a hydraulic operator at the door common to both, the requirements of § 163.001–4 (d) shall extend, where applicable, to include the power pumping unit. The enclosures for electrical components of the door operators at the door position shall be waterproof. The power unit shall be protected from injury due to a jammed door, excessive electrical current or excessive hydraulic or pneumatic pressure. No clutch devices shall be employed.

(g) Protection against faults. Connections shall be such and circuits shall be so protected against overcurrent that a failure in a door circuit shall not be the cause of failure in any other door circuit and that a short circuit or other fault in the alarm and indicator circuit will not result in loss of power for door operation. The connections shall be such that leakage of salt water into the local controller shall not establish a circuit which will cause the door to open.

§ 163.001–6 Inspection and testing of doors and controls—(a) Shop tests and inspection—(1) Hydrostatic test. Each door upon completion shall be subjected to a hydrostatic shop test to determine the strength, rigidity, workmanship and watertightness of the door. Inspectors shall witness each such test; however, in cases where this is impractical and a sufficient number of identical door tests have been witnessed and approved, the manufacturer may conduct the tests on additional doors of that design and certify to the Coast Guard that the test results are in accord with these specifications. However, the inspectors shall make periodic examinations and tests as deemed necessary to insure specification standards.

(2) Examination. The inspector shall examine the door and frame for conformance with the approved plans and for the workmanship involved.

(3) Hydrostatic test set-up. The door frame shall be mounted in either a vertical or horizontally flat position on a reinforced test plate or slab. A gasket may be used between the door frame and the closing plate for watertightness. Means shall be provided to vent air from the enclosure formed by the door, frame and plate and to supply water, at the required test pressure, to this enclosure. Means shall also be provided for catching and measuring the amount of water which leaks between sealing surfaces of door panel and frame. Except in the case of double seated doors, it will only be necessary to apply pressure to that side of the door which will tend to separate the sealing surfaces.

(4) Hydrostatic test procedure. The contact surfaces of the door and frame shall be wiped to remove excess grease and oil. The door shall be closed by operating equipment restricting the amount of closing force to that available from the operating gear to be used in the shipboard installation. The enclosure shall then be completely filled with water, air shall be vented and the test pressure shall be held for at least ten minutes, during which time the leakage rate shall be determined. The test pressure shall not be less than that corresponding to a head of water from the proposed location of the door sill in the vessel to the margin line or 20 feet, whichever is greater, except that the test head may be 10 feet if the door is to be installed where a hinged door is permissible. The measured leakage rate shall not exceed that given by the following formula except that below a 20-foot head pressure 5 gallons per hour is acceptable.

h = test head (feet).
p = pressure (lbs./in.^{2}).

(5) Shop test of operating controls. One door and frame of each design together with its manual operating equipment and in addition its power control equipment if a class 3 door, shall be mounted on a structure in the shop in a vertical position. The set-up for horizontal sliding doors shall be such that it can be heeled to simulate 15° port and starboard lists. The door shall be listed 15° and the operating equipment tested to demonstrate that the manual controls can close the door against an adverse list and in addition for class 3 doors that electrical and hydraulic operators can close the door under reduced potential as specified in § 163.001–5 (c). The 15° opposite list shall demonstrate that the door will not overhaul and close itself and when closed can be opened manually and by power. These tests for class 3 doors shall also show that the door can be unseated manually after power closing. In lieu of a tilting arrangement, the door may be mounted vertically in a level position and the list may be simulated by leading lines alternately in the closing and in the opening directions, over efficient fairleads to counterweights.

(b) Installation tests and inspection—(1) Bulkhead reinforcement. Before the sliding watertight door is installed in a vessel, the bulkhead in the vicinity of the door opening shall be stiffened in accordance with plans previously submitted by the shipyard or naval architect and approved by the Coast Guard. Such bulkhead stiffeners shall not be less than 6 inches nor more than 12 inches from the door frame in order that an unstiffened diaphragm of bulkhead plating 6 to 12 inches wide is provided completely around the door frame. Where such limits cannot be maintained, special consideration will be given to the particular installation. In determining the scantlings of these bulkhead stiffeners, the door frame should not be considered as contributing to the strength of the bulkhead. Provision shall also be made to adequately support the thrust bearings and other equipment that may be mounted on the bulkhead or deck.

(2) Manual control installation test. After the door and controls have been installed, the door shall be closed and opened by means of the manual controls at the door and shall be closed by the manual remote control. The time and effort required to close the door shall be within the limitations prescribed in § 163.001–4 (b).

(3) Power control installation test. If power controls are provided, the door shall be operated by the power controls from each of the three control stations. The rate of closing shall be as prescribed in § 163.001–5 (b) (4). Manual controls shall also be operated to show that closure by power will not jam the door so as to prevent manual opening.

(4) Mechanical indicator operation. The door indicator at the remote manual control station shall correctly show the position of the door when either manual or power operation is employed.

(5) Test for tightness. The door sealing strips shall be examined insofar as possible without dismantling the door, and any surface blemishes shall be corrected by stoning or draw-filing. The door shall then be closed and the degree of contact between the door and frame shall be such as to reject the insertion of a 0.003 inch feeler gage, or its clear passage through and between the sealing surfaces, at any point around the sealing perimeter.

§ 163.001–7 Name plate and marking—(a) Watertight door name plate. A substantial corrosion resistant nameplate shall be permanently attached to each watertight door on which is stamped the name of the manufacturer, manufacturer's symbol and/or serial number, type designation, test head, together with the inspector's initials, the date and the letters "U. S. C. G."

(b) Markings. Shipboard markings for watertight doors and operating controls shall be in accordance with the applicable requirements of Subchapters G, H, I, or J of this chapter.

§ 163.001–8 Procedure for approval of doors and controls—(a) Plan submittal. Before action is taken on any design of sliding watertight doors and operating equipment, detailed plans covering fully the arrangement and construction of the door and construction of the control equipment shall be submitted to the Commandant through the Commander of the Coast Guard District in which the door and control equipment is to be manufactured.

(b Supervision of construction. If such drawings are satisfactory, the manufacturer shall advise the Commander of the Coast Guard District when fabrication is to commence. Supervision of the construction will then be made in accordance with the plans. The inspector will conduct the required tests and upon satisfactory completion will stamp the name plate as provided in § 163.001–7 (a).

(c) Corrected plans. When the tests required by § 163.001–6 (a) (1)–(5) are successfully completed, the manufacturer shall submit four corrected copies of the construction and arrangement plans including any corrections, changes, or additions which may have been found necessary during the construction or testing. If the manufacturer desires more than one set of approved plans, additional copies shall be submitted at that time. On subsequent doors and controls where plans covering the complete unit have previously been approved, it may not be necessary to resubmit the plans, although all tests required by the specifications shall be conducted.

(d) Installation plans. For each installation on shipboard, plans shall be submitted to the Coast Guard for approval showing specific location and arrangement of the door and controls in the vessel together with a complete bill of material. In addition, plans showing bulkhead reinforcement in way of watertight door openings shall be submitted.

§ 30.4 Communications. All communications about the regulations in this part or any authorization issued under them should be addressed to the United States Atomic Energy Commission, Post Office Box E, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, Attention: Isotopes Division.

EXEMPTIONS

§ 30.10 Persons operating Commission-owned facilities. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the regulations in this part do not apply to persons to the extent that such persons operate Commission-owned facilities in carrying out programs on behalf of the Commission. In such cases, the acquisition, transfer, use, and disposal of radioisotopes are governed by the contracts between such persons and the Commission, and internal bulletins, instructions and directives issued by the Commission.

(b) Radioisotopes received by any person pursuant to an authorization under § 30.30 may be transferred to persons operating Commission-owned facilities only in accordance with an authorization from the Commission or as otherwise permitted by the regulations in this part.

§ 30.11 Transfer to the Commission or a distributor. The actions of any person in transferring or delivering radioisotopes to the Commission or to a distributor are not subject to the regulations in this part. The exemption provided in this section does not, however, relieve any person from the obligation to comply with shipping requirements otherwise provided by law. (See § 30.41.)

§ 30.12 Carriers. Common and contract carriers transporting radioisotopes in the normal course of business are exempt from the regulations in this part.

§ 30.13 Items and quantities. Sections 30.20 through 30.61, inclusive, do not apply to any item listed in § 30.70 (Schedule A), nor to any quantity listed in § 30.71 (Schedule B): Provided, however, That no person shall, except as otherwise permitted by the regulations contained in this part, effect an increase in the radioactivity of such scheduled items or quantities by adding other radioactive material thereto, by combining the radioisotopes from two or more such items or quantities, or by altering them in any other manner so as to increase thereby the rate of radiation exposure of himself or others above the original rate therefrom.

APPLICATIONS

§ 30.20 Filing. (a) Any person, except the official representative of a foreign applicant, who desires to possess or use radioisotopes shall file "Application for Radioisotope Procurement," Form AEC-313, with the Isotopes Division of the Commission, or such other place as may be designated by the Commission, specifying the use to be made of the material and giving all other information called for by the form. Copies of the form will be furnished upon request to the United States Atomic Energy Commission, Post Office Box E, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, Attention: Isotopes Division.

(b) Applications for radioisotopes to be used in a foreign country shall be submitted through that country's official representative in charge of isotope procurement. Upon request, foreign representatives will be informed by the Commission of the desired form and content of applications and the terms and conditions upon which radioisotopes may be obtained.

§ 30.21 Conditions. The Commission will not approve a domestic application:

(a) Unless the radioisotope is requested for one or more of the following purposes: Research or development activity, medical therapy, industrial uses, processing or making of compounds, or such other useful applications as may be developed; or

(b) If it is determined by the Commission that the applicant is not equipped to observe the health and safety standards established by the Commission; or

(c) If it is determined by the Commission that the applicant is not qualified to use radioisotopes for the requested purpose.

§ 30.22 Service irradiations. Upon receipt of an application requesting that radioisotopes be produced through a service irradiation, the Commission may authorize such irradiation and subsequent possession and use of the irradiated materials in accordance with the regulations contained in this part.

AUTHORIZATIONS

§ 30.30 Issuance. Upon approval of an application, the Commission will issue an "Authorization for Radioisotope Procurement," Form AEC-374. The authorization shall be the only valid approval for procurement, and its issuance shall be based upon the representations in the application and shall be subject to and in accordance with the regulations in this part and the terms and conditions stated in the application.

§ 30.31 Nontransferability. The person to whom an authorization has been issued shall be deemed the holder thereof, and none of the rights or privileges conferred by the authorization shall be transferable.

§ 30.32 Expiration. An authorization shall be valid only for the period stated thereon; it shall expire at the end of such period without the necessity of notice or warning from the Commission. The holder shall not order radioisotopes after the period of validity stated on the authorization has run.

§ 30.33 Modification. Upon written request from the holder of an authorization for a modification of its terms, the Commission will usually consider the request without requiring a separate application, and it may modify the authorization by giving written notice to the holder or by issuing a supplemental authorization.

§ 30.34 Revocation. Any authorization may be annulled, suspended, or revoked at any time in the discretion of the Commission upon a determination by the Commission that the public health or safety requires such action, or that the holder has wilfully failed to comply with any term or condition to which his authorization may be subject. In the absence of such determination, no annulment, suspension, or revocation of any authorization will be made except upon request of the holder thereof, or unless conduct or other facts meriting such action shall have been called to the attention of the holder previously in writing, and unless he shall have been accorded opportunity to comply with all lawful requirements but shall have failed to do so.

POSSESSION, TRANSFER, USE

NOTE: Shipment and use of radioisotopes may also be subject to control by other authority; see, for example, (a) Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and the general regulations for its enforcement, (b) rules and regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, (c) Civil Air Regulations, (d) postal laws and regulations, and (e) laws and regulations of State or other local authority.

RECORDS, REPORTS, INSPECTIONS

§ 30.50 General records. Each person who possesses or uses radioisotopes shall keep permanent records showing the receipt, use, storage, delivery, and disposal of such radioisotopes, and the safety measures used to protect health. These records shall be accurate and complete and shall be made available to the Commission upon request.

§ 30.51 Overexposure records. No report of the overexposure of a person to radioisotopes need be forwarded to the Commission, but where an overexposure is believed to have occurred, the occurrence and its observed effect upon the overexposed person shall be recorded in detail and filed with the general records.

§ 30.52 Reports of use. Upon written request from the Commission, any person who uses radioisotopes shall report fully the use made, stating substantially those facts required by §§ 30.50 and 30.51 to be recorded.

§ 30.53 Reports of transfer. In the absence of written waiver by the Commission, any person who transfers radioisotopes to another person shall promptly report to the Commission each delivery made, indicating the name and location of the transferee, transferee's authorization number, type and amount of material transferred, and date of delivery.

§ 30.54 Inspections. Each person who possesses or uses radioisotopes shall permit the Commission, at all reasonable times, to make such inspections of the facilities wherein materials are stored or used as the Commission deems necessary, and shall make available to the Commission the records required by §§ 30.50 and 30.51.

VIOLATIONS

§ 30.60 Right to recall. The Commission may withhold or recall radioisotopes from any person when it is determined by the Commission that such person (a) is not equipped to observe the health and safety standards established by the Commission, or has failed to do so; or (b) has used the material in a manner other than as disclosed in the application therefor; or (c) has used the material in violation of any law or of any regulation of the Commission.

§ 30.61 Other action. Any person who violates any provision of the regulations in this part, or who, in connection with the regulations in this part, wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information to the Commission, may be prohibited by the Commission from making or obtaining further deliveries of radioisotopes or using, possessing, or storing them, and may be required to return to the Commission all radioisotopes remaining on hand. Violation of the regulations contained in this part or the furnishing of false information in connection with applications, statements and reports thereunder may also be a crime under the provision of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 or of 18 U. They should have sufficient copies thereof to supply opposing counsel, the representatives of the State Commissioners, the examiner on the bench, and the official reporter.

ARKANSAS NATURAL GAS CORP. ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING AND ORDER FOR HEARING AND CONSOLIDATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 31st day of January A. D. 1951.

In the matter of Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation, File No. 54-186; Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation and its subsidiaries, and Cities Service Company, respondents File Nos. 59-93, 70-1804.

I. The Commission on February 9, 1949, entered an order instituting proceedings under sections 11 (b) (2), 12 (f), 15 (a), 15 (f), and 20 (a) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 (File No. 59-93) directed to Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation ("Arkansas-Natural"), a registered holding company, and its subsidiaries and Cities Service Company ("Cities"), also a registered holding company and parent company of Arkansas-Natural. The proceedings instituted by said order raised issues, among others, with respect to the corporate structure of Arkansas-Natural and the distribution of voting power among its security holders and with respect to the organization and history of Arkansas-Natural and the relation of Cities thereto. No hearings have been held with respect to the above proceeding. The order instituting these proceedings consolidated them with declarations and applications filed with the Commission by Arkansas-Natural (File No. 70-1804), which have been the subject of limited hearings, in which it was proposed that Arkansas-Natural dispose of its interest in the gas distribution properties of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company ("Arkansas-Louisiana"), a subsidiary.

II. Notice is hereby given that Arkansas-Natural has filed with the Commission, pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, a plan stated to be for the simplification of its corporate structure, effectuation of compliance with the requirements of section 11 (b) of the act, and termination of its status as a holding company.

Arkansas-Natural, a Delaware corporation, is primarily a holding company owning, among other investments, all of the common stocks of Arkansas-Louisiana and Arkansas Fuel Oil Company ("Arkansas-Fuel"). Arkansas-Louisiana is engaged in the purchase, production, transmission, distribution, and sale of natural gas in the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, and Texas. Arkansas-Fuel, operating chiefly throughout the southern part of the United States, is engaged in the production, storage, and marketing of petroleum, and in the processing of natural gas.

As at December 31, 1949, Arkansas-Natural's outstanding securities consisted of 2,187,918 shares of 6 percent $10 par value Cumulative Preferred Stock with an aggregate par value of $21,879,180; 4,080,948 shares of no par value Common Stock with a stated value of $4,080,948; and 3,522,271¼ shares of no par value Class A Common Stock with a stated value of $3,522,271.25. Cities owns 870,812 shares (39.8 percent) of the Preferred Stock, 3,057,267 shares (74.96 percent) of the Common Stock, and 857,-112.25 shares (24.33 percent) of the Class A Stock.

All interested persons are referred to said Plan which is on file in the offices of the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which may be summarized as follows:

1. Arkansas-Louisiana will transfer to Arkansas-Fuel all of its interests in leases, gas wells and equipment and field gathering lines in the Carthage Acreage, at net book value ($4,114,270.16 as at December 31, 1949), and Arkansas-Fuel will transfer to Arkansas-Louisiana certain natural gasoline plants at net book value ($4,946,977.25 as at December 31, 1949). Any difference in the respective net book values at the time of transfer is to be adjusted in cash.

2. Arkansas-Natural will transfer to Arkansas-Louisiana its pipeline property, consisting of approximately 51 miles of pipeline, at net book value ($93,948.77 as at December 31, 1949).

3. Arkansas-Natural, which owns $6,-500,000 principal amount of Arkansas-Louisiana 4¼ per cent debentures, will surrender said debentures to Arkansas-Louisiana for cancellation, as a donation of capital.

4. Arkansas-Louisiana will issue and sell $27,500,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds and apply the proceeds thereof (a) to the retirement of its outstanding funded debt in the principal amount of $20,125,000, as at November 30, 1949 (b) to the retirement of $3,500,-000 principal amount of funded debt incurred and to be incurred in the year 1950, and (c) toward financing its construction program.

5. Arkansas-Fuel will merge into Arkansas-Natural, which will be the surviving corporation.

6. Arkansas-Natural will issue a new series of 3¾ per cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value $10, with an aggregate par value of $23,191,130, redeemable at par value, and will distribute said new Preferred Stock to the holders of its old $10 par value Preferred Stock on the basis of $10.60 par value of new Preferred Stock for each share of the old Preferred Stock held. The redemption value of the old Preferred Stock is $10.60 per share. Amounts receivable by holders in excess of multiples of $10 will be represented by the issuance of scrip, which, when combined in $10 amounts will be exchangeable, within a limited period, for shares of the new Preferred Stock. Unpaid dividends on the old Preferred Stock will accrue and will be paid by Arkansas-Natural to the date from which the new Preferred Stock bears dividends.

Holders of old Preferred Stock who notify Arkansas-Natural within the 30-day period immediately following the date fixed for exchange that they desire to dispose of the new Preferred Stock to which they are entitled at a price equal to the par value thereof, will receive $10.60 in cash per share of old Preferred Stock surrendered, together with any unpaid dividends. Arkansas-Natural will obtain funds necessary for this purpose from the sale of the new Preferred Stock to which such holders of the old Preferred Stock would be entitled and, to the extent required, from its other cash resources, and any excess of the net proceeds of such sale over the amount so paid to such holders will be retained by Arkansas-Natural.

7. Arkansas-Louisiana will reclassify its presently outstanding Common Stock into 7,603,219 shares of no par value Common Stock. The new shares will be distributed to the holders of Common and Class A stock of Arkansas-Natural as a dividend in partial liquidation on the basis of one share of common stock of Arkansas-Louisiana for each share of Common or Class A stock of Arkansas-Natural.

8. Arkansas-Natural will amend its charter so as to convert its Class A stock into Common Stock, resulting in a single class of Common Stock to be outstanding.

9. Arkansas-Natural will pay such fees and expenses for services rendered in connection with the plan (except in connection with the refinancing of Arkansas-Louisiana which will be paid by Arkansas-Louisiana) as may be allowed by the Commission.

Arkansas-Natural has requested the Commission, in the event it approves the Plan, to enter an order containing the recitals required by section 1808 (f) and Supplement R of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended, and to apply to an appropriate court to enforce and carry out the terms and provisions of the Plan.

III. The Commission being required by the provisions of section 11 (e) of the act before approving any Plan thereunder to find, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that the Plan as submitted or as modified is necessary to effectuate the provisions of subsection (b) of section 11 and is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby; and it appearing appropriate to the Commission that notice be given and a hearing be held upon the Plan filed by Arkansas-Natural to afford all interested persons an opportunity to be heard with respect thereto; and

It appearing to the Commission that common questions of law and fact are involved in the consolidated proceedings presently pending before the Commission (File Nos. 59-93 and 70-1804) and in the proceeding upon the application filed by Arkansas-Natural pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act (File No. 54-186); that evidence offered in respect of each of said proceedings may have a bearing on the others; and that substantial savings in time, effort, and expense will result if said proceedings are consolidated so that they may be heard as one matter and so that evidence adduced in each proceeding may be considered as evidence in the others for all purposes;

It is ordered, That the pending consolidated proceedings (File Nos. 59-93 and 70-1804), and the proceeding with respect to the instant plan (File No. 54-186) be, and they hereby are, consolidated, and that all of the evidence adduced in the pending consolidated proceedings shall be incorporated in and deemed part of the record in the proceeding on the instant plan, without prejudice, however, to the Commission's right, upon its own motion or the motion of any interested party, to strike such portions of the record in the pending consolidated proceedings as may be deemed irrelevant to the issues raised with respect to the proposed plan, or to the Commission's right to separate, either for hearing, in whole or in part, or for determination, in whole or in part, any issues or questions herein set forth or which may arise in these proceedings, to separate any of the proceedings consolidated herein, or to take such other action as may appear conducive to an orderly, prompt, and economical disposition of the matters involved.

It is further ordered, That a public hearing in the consolidated proceeding be held under the applicable provisions of the act and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington, D. C., on the 27th day of March 1951. On that date the hearing room clerk in Room 193 will advise as to the room in which the hearing will be held. In the event that amendments to the Plan are filed during the course of said proceedings, no notice of such amendments need be given unless specifically ordered by the Commission. Any person desiring to be heard in connection with this consolidated proceeding or proposing to intervene herein shall file with the Secretary of the Commission on or before March 20, 1951, his written request or application therefor as provided by Rule XVII of the rules of practice of the Commission.

It is further ordered, That Edward C. Johnson or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at the hearing. The officer so designated to preside at the hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of the act and to a Hearing Officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

The Division of Public Utilities of the Commission having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the Plan and that, on the basis thereof, the following matters and questions are presented for consideration by the Commission, in addition to those stated in the Commission's Notice and Order dated February 9, 1949, Holding Company Act Release No. 8842, without prejudice to the presentation of additional matters and questions upon further examination:

1. Whether the Plan, as submitted or as it may hereafter be modified, is necessary to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act and is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby.

2. Whether the Plan achieves the statutory requirements with respect to corporate simplification of the Arkansas-Natural system and with respect to fair and equitable distribution of voting power among the security holders of Arkansas-Natural.

3. Whether the proposal to treat Cities' security holdings in Arkansas-Natural on the same basis as the holdings of public security holders is fair and equitable, and whether facts or circumstances exist which would support the subordination of the interests of Cities or of any other stockholder or group of stockholders in Arkansas-Natural to the interests of other security holders of Arkansas-Natural.

4. Whether facts or circumstances exist which would support the assertion by Arkansas-Natural of claims against Cities or against any other stockholder or group of stockholders of Arkansas-Natural.

5. Whether it is appropriate for Cities to acquire and retain the new Preferred Stock of Arkansas-Natural which Cities would be entitled to receive under the Plan in view of the fact that, under the Plan, Cities would also be entitled to receive a substantial amount of the new Common Stock of Arkansas-Natural.

6. Whether the Plan is appropriate in the light of the Commission's Orders issued pursuant to section 11 (b) (1) of the act dated May 5, 1944, and October 12, 1944, and particularly whether the Plan should provide for the concurrent disposition by Cities of the Common Stock of Arkansas-Louisiana which it would be entitled to receive under the Plan.

7. Generally, whether the transactions proposed in the Plan are in all respects in the public interest and in the interests of investors and consumers and consistent with all applicable requirements of the act and of the rules and regulations thereunder, particularly with respect to the following proposals:

(a) The property transfers between Arkansas-Louisiana and Arkansas-Fuel,

(b) The issuance by Arkansas-Natural of new Preferred Stock and the terms and conditions under which said new Preferred Stock is to be issued and exchanged for its outstanding Preferred Stock,

(c) The terms and conditions with respect to the reclassification of the common stock of Arkansas-Louisiana and the Class A and Common Stocks of Arkansas-Natural,

(d) The issuance of First Mortgage Bonds by Arkansas-Louisiana.

8. Whether the proposed accounting entries are appropriate in the light of the requirements of the act, particularly section 15 (f) thereof, and whether such entries are in accordance with sound accounting principles and the requirements of the applicable systems of accounts.

9. Whether, and in what manner, the Plan should be modified or terms and conditions imposed to assure adequate protection to the public interest and the interests of investors and consumers and to assure compliance with all applicable provisions of the act and rules and regulations thereunder.

It is further ordered, That particular attention be directed at said hearing to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That notice of said hearing be given to Arkansas-Natural, to Cities and to all persons previously granted intervention or participation in the pending consolidated proceedings by registered mail, and to all other persons by publication of this notice and order in the FEDERAL REGISTER and by general release of this Commission, which shall be distributed to the press and mailed to the mailing list for releases under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

It is further ordered, That Arkansas-Natural shall give further notice of said hearing to all of its security holders (in so far as the identity of such security holders is known or available to it) by mailing to each of said persons, to his last known address, a copy of this Notice and Order at least 30 days prior to the date of said hearing.

TITLE 19—CUSTOMS DUTIES

Chapter I—Bureau of Customs, Department of the Treasury

[T. D. 52662]

PART 9—IMPORTATIONS BY MAIL

PART 18—TRANSPORTATION IN BOND AND MERCHANDISE IN TRANSIT

EXPORTATION BY MAIL

To insure compliance with export control requirements, §§ 9.11 (a) and 18.25 (a), Customs Regulations of 1943 (19 CFR 9.11 (a) and 18.25 (a)), as amended by T. D. 52570, are hereby further amended as follows:

Section 9.11 (a) is amended by deleting the third, fourth, and fifth sentences and substituting the following: "Export entries or withdrawals for exportation, as the case may be, shall be filed for such articles, if the articles were imported otherwise than by mail, or if they were imported in the mails and (1) the articles would be subject to formal entry if entered for consumption, or (2) they are readdressed to a new addressee in any foreign country except Canada. See §§ 8.41 and 8.49 of this chapter. If a mail shipment which would not be subject to formal entry if entered for consumption is returned to the sender or is readdressed to the original addressee at a foreign address, no export entry is required. These rules, of course, do not apply to mail matter which contains no merchandise."

(R. S. 161, 251, sec. 624, 46 Stat. 759; 5 U. S. C. 22, 19 U. S. C. 66, 1624.)

The first sentence of § 18.25 (a) is amended to read: "Except as otherwise provided for in § 9.11 (a), relating to exportation by mail, when no entry has been made or completed for merchandise in customs custody, or when the merchandise is covered by an unliquidated consumption entry, and such merchandise is to be exported directly without transportation to another port, an entry on customs Form 7512 shall be filed in quadruplicate."

(Sec. 624, 46 Stat. 759; 19 U. S. C. 1624.)

PART 372—PROVISIONS FOR INDIVIDUAL AND OTHER VALIDATED LICENSES

LICENSE APPLICATION

Section 372.3 How to file an application for export license is amended in the following particulars:

Paragraph (d) Data supplementing the license application is amended as follows: The present subparagraph (3) is re-numbered as subparagraph (4).

A new subparagraph (3) is added, and an explanatory statement and interpretations are inserted at the end thereof, to read as follows:

tation described in each application, the following procedure is authorized:

Exporters who have a continuing and regular relationship with an ultimate consignee (including but not limited to applicants having foreign branches or subsidiaries or distributors under franchise with the applicant) involving recurring orders for the same kind of commodities to the same destinations and for the same end uses, may submit to the Office of International Trade a single statement signed by the ultimate consignee covering all proposed exportations of such commodities for any part or all of the current calendar year. If this procedure is used, the exporter shall submit two copies of the statement, plus an additional copy for each OIT processing code to which the statement applies. When submitting such statements, the exporter must attach a list of the processing codes to which the statement applies. All applications for licences submitted on the basis of a single statement under this procedure must contain the following: "This application is supported by the statement dated _____ _____ from the named consignee to this applicant." The statement must be signed by the ultimate consignee, and must contain the following representations and information:

(i) That the statement shall be considered a part of every application for license filed by the named applicant for export of the commodity or commodities described in the statement;

(ii) That the ultimate consignee will promptly send a supplemental statement to the United States exporter of any change of facts or intentions set forth in the statement which occurs after the statement is made;

(iii) The nature of the ultimate consignee's business, including whether he is the user, seller, etc., of the commodities described in the application;

(iv) The nature of the consignee's relationship to the applicant, and the duration of the relationship in the past and for the future;

(v) The nature and scope or extent of the ultimate consignee's operations by country and type of customer, including the method of distribution and redistribution, if any, of the commodities covered by the statement or products therefrom;

(vi) The specific commodities regularly ordered by the ultimate consignee and the respective end-uses thereof. The end use information shall be set forth in as much detail as is known to the consignee in the course of his trade;

(vii) If the ultimate consignee regularly sells or distributes a commodity or commodities described in the statement to a particular end-user or type of end-user, the ultimate consignee shall also describe the kind of products to be produced from the commodity or commodities, and, to the extent known, the countries in which such products are produced and distributed.

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT AND INTERPRETATIONS

1. Q. What is the alternative procedure?

A. Many exporters have a continuing and regular relationship with certain of their foreign consignees involving recurring orders for the same kinds of commodities to the same ultimate destinations and for the same-end uses. Such cases include, but are not limited to, firms having foreign branches or subsidiaries or franchised distributors. With respect to such transactions, it is recognized that the requirement of individual "ultimate-consignee" statements with each application may be unnecessarily repetitious and possibly burdensome. To meet this problem, the alternative procedure has been established by which the Office of International Trade will accept a single statement from the ultimate consignee covering the information required by the regulation.

Under the alternative procedure, the single statement will be treated as a part of every application filed by the applicant for export of a commodity to the consignee until January 1, 1952, or any prior date specified in the statement. If there is any future change in the matters set forth in the statement, the consignee must promptly send the applicant a supplemental statement reflecting such change. The statement must be signed by a responsible official of the ultimate consignee who may be located either in the United States or abroad.

2. Q. What is the purpose of the Ultimate Consignee Statement Regulation as provided by CEB 599?

A. Applicants have always been required to submit on their applications information regarding the ultimate destination and end-use of the commodities to be exported. It has been OIT practice to rely largely upon the applicant's own representations in this regard, supplemented, in proper cases, by direct inquiries here and abroad to verify such representations. Many applicants have regularly been obtaining information of this character from their customers to provide assurance to themselves for the representations which they have been required to make in their applications. Moreover, such information has been readily made available to OIT by applicants and foreign consignees in specific instances.

The new regulation is intended simply to regularize these practices and, more specifically, to make more certain that foreign consignees are fully aware of their responsibility not only for the representations made to OIT but also for the proper disposition of the licensed commodities in the foreign country. In addition, it should facilitate the processing of applications and curtail the expensive and time-consuming supplementary inquiries now often necessary.

3. Q. To what cases does this requirement apply?

A. The statement is required only in connection with applications for validated licenses to ship commodities to Group R destinations (except project licenses, for which such information is already required).

4. Q. From whom is the statement required?

A. The statement must be furnished by the firm or individual that will be named as ultimate consignee on the application and also from the firm or individual that will be named as purchaser on the application, if not the same as the named ultimate consignee.

5. Q. Is any particular form of statement required by OIT?

A. Because of the variety of ways of doing business, no particular form is prescribed or suggested. The information shall be submitted in writing. However, it may be on the order form or in a separate letter or other form of statement. No form of notarial or other governmental certification is required on the statement.

6. Q. Must all the specified items of information be covered in the statement?

A. Yes, to the extent they are pertinent. This is an information-seeking-requirement and, therefore, is satisfied by the furnishing of all applicable information. Of course, if applicable information is unknown, that fact should also be disclosed.

7. Q. What is the liability of the ultimate consignee or purchaser for misrepresentations, failure to disclose facts or for disposition of commodities contrary to representations made in the required statement?

A. Depending upon the particular circumstances, such ultimate consignee or purchaser may be subject to administrative action by OIT, looking to suspension or revocation of licensing privileges and denial of other participation in U. S. exports.

8. Q. Will submission of the required information in a statement from the consignee assure the approval of a particular license application?

A. Favorable action is, of course, not assured by the submission of the end-use and destination statement from the consignee. While information regarding end-use and destination are essential, other criteria and policies will have to be considered in connection with the issuance of licenses.

9. Q. When the ultimate consignee is a foreign government does this regulation apply?

A. Where the ultimate consignee named in the application is a government or government agency, no statement by such consignee as to end-use and destination will be required. However, if a purchaser other than the foreign government or government agency is named on the application in such a transaction, a statement from the purchaser will be required.

10. Q. When exportations are financed by U. S. or International agencies, such as ECA, Export-Import Bank, International Bank, MDAP, etc., will the statement of end-use and destination be required?

A. Yes, because government financing generally is not made with reference to specific transactions.

11. Q. If the ultimate consignee is a reseller are statements required from his customers?

A. No, but the ultimate consignee must describe fully the nature of his sales; and he may require any information of his customers in connection with end-use and destination which he feels appropriate.

This amendment shall become effective as of March 1, 1951.

PART 384—GENERAL ORDERS

EXPORT CLEARANCE

The following note is added at the end of § 384.7:

NOTE: Note relating to §§ 384.5, 384.6 and 384.7: Export clearance of certain commodities by Collectors of Customs on posting of bond: Far East and intransit shipments.

(a) Background—(1) General license revocation order. General licenses GRO, GLR, GMC and GCC authorizing exportation from the U. S. of any commodity, whether or not included on the Positive List, were revoked as to mainland of China (including Manchuria), Hong Kong and Macao by order effective December 3, 1950 (12:01 a. m. eastern standard time). The order also applies to shipments through U. S. foreign trade zones to those destinations. (See § 384.5; Amdt. 28, 15 F. R. 8562; Current Export Bulletin 596.)

In addition, on December 5, 1950, Collectors of Customs were advised and instructed by the Office of International Trade that under this revocation order (§ 384.5) validated licenses were required for all shipments to the named destinations which were not laden aboard the exporting carrier prior to the effective date of the order, except that in the case of fresh perishable food (not including frozen food products) the effective date for Hong Kong and Macao was extended to January 2, 1951 (12:01 a. m. eastern standard time[1]). (See too Amdt. 29, 15 F. R. 8729; Current Export Bulletin 597)

Thereafter the revocation order (§ 384.5) was amended to make the order applicable to all shipments whether or not laden on the exporting carrier prior to December 3, 1950; to require validated export licenses for all commodities to destinations in mainland of China (including Manchuria), Hong Kong and Macao if the exporting carrier had not obtained clearance from the final port of departure in the U. S. for a foreign port, or after having received final clearance transits the Panama Canal Zone; and to require that shipments which had not been licensed must be off-loaded prior to final clearance or proceeding through the Canal Zone. (See Amdt. 29, 15 F. R. 8729; Current Export Bulletin 597)

(2) The intransit shipment revocation order. By order effective December 4, 1950 (12:01 a. m. eastern standard time), the export of shipments of Positive List commodities originating in any foreign country moving in transit through the U. S., or using the facilities of a foreign trade zone, or manifested to the U. S., were prohibited as to any destination in sub-group A (§ 371.3), Hong Kong or Macao, except under a validated export license (See § 384.6; Amdt. 28, 15 F. R. 8562). The order excepted from its provisions shipments covered by § 371.9 (b) (1).

Thereafter this intransit order (§ 384.6) was amended to prohibit, except under a validated license, intransit shipments to China, Manchuria, Hong Kong or Macao of all commodities whether or not on the Positive List; and the amendment was made applicable to such intransit shipments if the vessel had not obtained clearance from the final port of departure in the United States for a foreign port. (See Amdt. 30, 15 F. R. 8731; Current Export Bulletin 597)

The intransit order applies to shipments manifested to the U. S. whether or not off-loaded in the U. S.; It does not apply, however, to shipments not off-loaded in the U. S., including the Canal Zone, if manifested to a third country at the time of loading in the originating country.

On December 5, 1950, Collectors of Customs were advised and instructed by the Office of International Trade as follows: For the purposes of the revocation order (§ 384.5) shipments "via Hong Kong" are not regarded as shipments to Hong Kong where (1) goods are manifested to a destination other than Hong Kong at time of shipment, (2) vessel only calls at Hong Kong en route, and (3) shipment is not off-laden at Hong Kong. However, a validated license will be required if, because of letter of credit stipulations or for any other reason bill of lading names Hong Kong as port of discharge (even though exporter states that in actual fact there will be no off-loading at Hong Kong).[2]

(3) The validated license suspension order. By order effective December 9, 1950 (9:00 p. m. eastern standard time), all outstanding validated export licenses authorizing exportation of any commodity to Hong Kong or Macao were suspended. The order also applied to commodities which had been laden aboard the exporting carrier but had not departed from final United States port of call. (See § 384.7; Amdt. 32, 15 F. R. 9140.)

(4) Further determinations. The general effect of the foregoing orders was to require new validated export license or other specific authorization from the Office of International Trade to clear U. S. or other vessels (and aircraft) from final U. S. port of departure carrying U. S. or foreign cargo destined for China, Hong Kong or Macao.

Upon further consideration, it was determined that with respect to such goods laden aboard vessels which have not finally departed from the U. S., such vessels need not be required to unload such goods at U. S. ports prior to departure: Provided, They undertake not to unload such goods at Hong Kong or Macao (unless thereafter licensed or otherwise specifically authorized), and not to call with such goods at any China ports. Accordingly, Collectors of Customs were given authorization, as set forth in paragraph (b) below.

(b) Export clearance of certain commodities upon posting bond. (1) Effective December 8, 1950, Collectors of Customs were authorized to clear vessels carrying cargo originally consigned or destined for China, Hong Kong or Macao and not to require unloading of the cargo prior to departure of the vessel from U. S. ports, provided that (1) the cargo is covered by a new validated export license or other form of specific authorization from the Office of International Trade; or (2) bond is posted with the Collector in the amount of $50,000 (fifty thousand dollars), or double the value of such cargo, whichever is larger, to assure compliance with the conditions referred to above, namely, not to unload at Hong Kong or Macao unless licensed or otherwise authorized after December 8, 1950 by the Office of International Trade, and not to call at ports of mainland China or Manchuria.

(2) Effective December 15, 1950, the Office of International Trade amended its instructions of December 5, 1950 to Collectors of Customs as follows: On shipments manifested to Singapore or other ports outside subgroup A via Hong Kong, whether or not bill of lading issued in U. S. designates Hong Kong as port of discharge or another port via Hong Kong, shipment may proceed from U. S. to Singapore or such other port without further special clearance or license: Provided, Vessel is under bond not to call at any ports in China and not to discharge any cargo now requiring license from U. S. to Hong Kong in Hong Kong or Macao (unless licensed or otherwise specifically authorized after December 8, 1950).

(3) Thereafter, effective January 5, 1951, the Office of International Trade amended its instructions of December 15 (set forth in subparagraph (b) (2) above), to Collectors of Customs as follows: General and validated license shipments, which are manifested for Singapore or other ports outside sub-group A, Hong Kong, and Macao and which proceed through Hong Kong only for the purpose of exchanging bills of lading so as to obtain a bill of lading from Hong Kong to Singapore, etc., but which are not to be discharged, offloaded, or transshipped at Hong Kong, may proceed without the necessity of bonding such shipments against discharge in Hong Kong provided they are manifested to and the bill of lading calls for discharge at Singapore, etc. Bills of lading claused so as to permit discharge only at an unrestricted port by the use of a statement such as "Singapore via Hong Kong" may be cleared without bond. However, shipments which are either manifested or under bills of lading calling for "Hong Kong" as port of discharge or "Hong Kong intransit to Singapore", or any other similar designation indicating Hong Kong as port of discharge, may not be cleared without a validated export license specifically authorizing transshipment at Hong Kong.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

R. 1823.

EXPLANATORY PROVISIONS

SECTION 1. Purpose and effect. The purpose of this order is to conserve the supply of rubber for the needs of national defense and to provide for its equitable distribution. This order is a continuation, in expanded form, of the former allocation Order R-1 (15 CFR 338.71-338.85). It places over-all limits on the consumption of natural rubber, natural rubber latex, and total new rubber (including synthetic). It prohibits private importation of natural rubber and provides for allocation of Government-produced synthetic rubber. Provisions are also made for increasing production of camelback, for directing production of rubber products into standard lines, and for restricting the use of natural rubber in certain listed products.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Natural rubber" means all new RHC (rubber hydrocarbon) forms and types of tree, vine, or shrub rubber, including natural rubber latex, but excluding reclaimed natural rubber.

(b) "Synthetic rubber" means all new RHC products of chemical synthesis similar in general properties and applications to natural rubber and specifically capable of vulcanization, including synthetic rubber latex but excluding reclaimed synthetic rubber.

(c) "GR-S" means a general-purpose synthetic rubber of the butadienestyrene type produced in the United States generally suitable for use in the manufacture of transportation items such as tires or camelback, as well as any other type of synthetic rubber equally or better suited for use in the manufacture of transportation items such as tires or camelback, as determined from time to time by the NPA, not including reclaimed general-purpose synthetic rubber.

(d) "Butyl" or "GR-I" means a special-purpose synthetic rubber produced in the United States, suitable for use in the manufacture of transportation items such as pneumatic inner tubes, not including reclaimed special-purpose rubber.

(e) "Consume" means, in the case of natural rubber or synthetic rubber, to compound, expend, formulate or in any manner make any substantial change in the form, shape or chemical composition except where any of these materials are used in the preparation of masterbatches or compounds prepared for use in the manufacture of finished products.

(f) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(g) "New RHC" means total new rubber hydrocarbon. This is the total RHC content of natural rubber, synthetic rubber, uncured scrap rubber, uncured in-process materials, and the rubber hydrocarbon content of masterbatches or compounds of new RHC.

(h) "Reclaimed rubber" means any rubber derived from the processing or treatment of vulcanized rubber or cured scrap rubber.

(i) "Natural rubber latex" means the dry latex solids contained in natural rubber liquid latex.

(j) "NPA" means the National Production Authority in the Department of Commerce.

RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTATION AND CONSUMPTION

SEC. 3. Private importation of natural rubber prohibited. (a) On and after December 29, 1950, no person other than the Administrator of General Services shall import into the United States (including its territories and possessions) any natural rubber of the kinds specified in paragraph (b) of this section, except as specifically authorized in writing by the Administrator of General Services: Provided, however, That this prohibition shall not apply to any private importation required by a contract which was made prior to December 29, 1950, and which is registered with the Administrator of General Services on or before January 5, 1951, except as any such private importation may be disapproved by said Administrator. For purposes of this section, the term "import" includes any physical movement of rubber into the United States, whether placed in general order or in a foreign trade zone, or whether entered for consumption, bonded customs custody, transportation, exportation or otherwise.

(b) The prohibition in paragraph (a) of this section applies to all crude natural rubber and natural rubber latex, including the following grades of wild rubber (cut, uncut, washed or dried): upriver fine, acre fine, Bolivian fine, beni fine, island fine, and all other types of fine para which are of equivalent quality regardless of name or origin. Such prohibition does not apply, however, to any other South or Central American grades of wild rubber nor to rubber from guayule, balata or gutta-percha, but all such excepted grades and types shall be inspected by, and a certificate of import secured from, the Administrator of General Services prior to their importation.

SEC. 4. Limit on total new rubber consumption. (a) No person shall consume a total amount of new rubber (including all synthetic both dry and latex and all natural except latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) in excess of 72 percent in February 1951 and in excess of 76 percent in March 1951 of his base monthly new rubber consumption as computed under paragraph (b) of this section.

(b) Each person's base monthly new rubber consumption shall be one-twelfth of his actual new rubber consumption (including all synthetic both dry and latex and all natural except latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) during the year ending June 30, 1950, as adjusted by the NPA.

(c) Such quantities of new rubber as are used in making products to fill DO rated orders are hereby exempted from the limitation of this section and shall be excluded in computing consumption of new rubber in February and March 1951 for purposes of this section.

SEC. 5. Limit on natural rubber consumption. (a) No person shall consume natural rubber (exclusive of natural rubber latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) in February 1951 in excess of 43 percent, nor in March, 1951 in excess of 35 percent of his base monthly natural rubber consumption as computed under paragraph (b) of this section. Neither may any person consume natural rubber (exclusive of natural rubber latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) in either February or March, 1951, in excess of the difference between his total new rubber consumption as permitted for that month under section 4 and the total synthetic rubber acquired by him from all sources during that month.

(c) Such quantities of natural rubber as are used in making products to fill DO rated orders are hereby exempted from the limitation of this section and shall be excluded in computing consumption of natural rubber in February and March 1951 for purposes of this section.

(d) The limitations prescribed in this section shall not apply during February or March 1951, as the case may be, to any person whose consumption of natural rubber (exclusive of natural rubber latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) does not exceed 15,000 pounds during that month, but no such person may consume during that month more natural rubber (exclusive of natural rubber latex and those grades and types of rubber listed as exceptions in section 3 (b)) than his base monthly natural rubber consumption as computed under paragraph (b) of this section.

SEC. 6. Limit on natural rubber latex consumption. (a) No person shall consume during the months of February and March 1951, a total quantity of natural rubber latex in excess of one-sixth of his consumption during the year beginning July 1, 1949, and ending June 30, 1950.

(b) Any person who imports any natural rubber latex into the United States after October 1, 1950, shall offer at least 10 percent of his imports to the General Services Administration at his regularly established price.

(c) In the event that imports of natural rubber latex are of such volume that an excess remains available for consumption (including any amounts not accepted by General Services Administration), after deducting from total imports (1) the base-period consumption allowed by paragraph (a) of this section, (2) the stockpile set-aside provided by paragraph (b) of this section, and (3) a reasonable reserve for adjustments under section 19, such excess will be allocated quarterly to consumers by the NPA on the basis of their pro rata allocation of natural rubber latex during the fourth calendar quarter of 1950. Any allocations made under this paragraph may be consumed in addition to the amounts permitted by paragraph (a) of this section.

ALLOCATION OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER

SEC. 7. Limitation on acquisition of synthetic rubber. No person shall acquire more Government-produced GR–S or butyl (GR–I) than is allocated to him by the NPA. No person shall sell or transfer any synthetic rubber acquired from the Government to any person other than the Office of Rubber Reserve, Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

SEC. 8. Allocation procedure. The NPA will allocate quarterly, to each consumer of GR–S or butyl, the amounts of Government-produced GR–S and butyl that he may purchase during a specified calendar quarter. The NPA will notify the Office of Rubber Reserve, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of such allocations and the Office of Rubber Reserve will not issue purchase permits to anyone for more GR–S or butyl than is allocated to him. Persons desiring to purchase GR–S or butyl will submit purchase requests to the Office of Rubber Reserve in accordance with its established procedure.

SEC. 9. Basis of allocation. GR–S and butyl will be separately allocated by the NPA for each calendar quarter on the following basis:

(a) GR–S. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section, each consumer of GR–S will be allocated his pro rata share of total available Government-produced GR–S (after a reasonable amount has been reserved for DO rated orders, for such other programs as may be approved by the NPA, and for adjustments under section 19), based on the proportion which his total new rubber consumption (exclusive of butyl) during the year ending June 30, 1950, bears to the total new rubber consumption (exclusive of butyl) of the industry during that period as determined by the NPA.

(b) Butyl for tire tubes. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section, each manufacturer of tire tubes will be allocated his pro rata share of total available Government-produced butyl (after a reasonable amount has been reserved for DO rated orders, for such other programs as may be approved by the NPA, and for adjustments under section 19), based on the proportion which his total new rubber consumption for tire tubes during the year ending June 30, 1950, bears to the total new rubber consumption of the industry for tire tubes during that period, as determined by the NPA.

(c) Butyl for other uses. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section, each consumer of butyl for purposes other than the manufacture of tire tubes will be allocated for each calendar quarter, his average quarterly consumption of butyl for such other purposes during the year ending June 30, 1950, as determined by the NPA.

(d) Imports to be considered. In making the allocations described in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section, the NPA will ascertain the quantities of imported GR–S and butyl acquired by each consumer, and will reduce by the amounts of such imported rubber the allocations which would otherwise be made.

(e) Inventories to be considered. In making the allocations described in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section, the NPA will ascertain and take into account each consumer's inventory of GR–S and butyl, and will adjust the allocations insofar as practicable so that inventories (including rubber in warehouse and in transit) will not be increased beyond a 20-working-day supply.

RUBBER PRODUCT REQUIREMENTS AND LIMITATIONS

SEC. 10. Camelback production required. Every person who produced camelback during the year ending June 30, 1950 shall produce in each of the two months, February and March, 1951, an amount of camelback which by RHC weight is at least one and a half times as great in proportion to his total new rubber consumption used in the manufacture of transportation products during such months, respectively, as the proportion which his production of camelback during the year ending June 30, 1950 bore by weight on RHC basis to his total new rubber consumption in transportation products during that year. For example, if a person's production of camelback on RHC basis accounted for 5 percent of his new rubber RHC consumption in transportation products during the year specified, his production of camelback in February and March must account for at least 7½ percent of his new rubber RHC consumption in transportation products during each of those months.

SEC. 11. Simplification of rubber products. The use of any new RHC in the manufacture of any rubber product or component, for any one purpose, in more than one line, type, quality, style or color, will be prohibited by the NPA by amendment of this order as soon as satisfactory standards can be devised. It is anticipated that such prohibition will be put into effect for some segments of the industry by February 15, 1951, and for other segments shortly thereafter. The industry is therefore put on notice that it must be prepared to make prompt adjustment of its production by February 15, 1951, to eliminate multiplicity of line, type, quality, style and color in accordance with the standards to be established.

SEC. 12. Elimination of natural rubber from designated products. By March 1, 1951, or as soon as practicable thereafter, the NPA will establish, by amendment of this order, specifications determining the quantity of natural rubber, if any, which may be used in specified products. In order that the industry may be prepared to comply promptly with such specifications, notice is given that they will, in general, prohibit the use of any natural rubber (dry or latex) in the manufacture of any of the following products or component or replacement parts therefor:

Toys.
Non-functional household, industrial and automotive rubber goods which are not essential to the mechanical operation of the equipment involved.
Rubber sundries not essential to basic health needs.
Floor coverings, mats and matting.
Soles, heels and sole slabs (new or replacement).
Non-functional athletic and sports goods.
Inner tubes 8.25 cross-section and smaller.

SEC. 13. Required use of synthetic rubber—(a) Synthetic rubber specifications. No person shall manufacture any product described in this section in any specified type or size unless it conforms with the synthetic rubber specifications and such other terms and conditions as are prescribed below in this section. The synthetic rubber used to satisfy such specifications shall be that produced by the Government or for its account or purchased from others by the Government for resale by the Government or for its account.

(1) Tires. All pneumatic tires, in any type and size listed below, shall contain GR–S in at least the percentages designated in the following table:

Pneumatic tire groups, size and type	Percent GR–S of total natural rubber plus GR–S
	Minimum group average	Minimum individual tire
Group 1:
All 7.50 and down truck and bus tires, not including low platform trailer and wire tires	35	1
All 7.50 and down farm implement, garden implement and industrial tires	35	5
All passenger, and motorcycle, front farm tractor and garden tractor tires	35	5
Group 2: All rear farm tractor and all other farm implement tires, not including rice and cane spade grip tires	75	55

NOTE: The group averages for groups 1 and 2 may be reduced by not more than three (3) points, provided the aggregate GR–S consumption in these groups equals the total amount of GR–S which would have been consumed if calculated on the above minimum group averages for groups 1 and 2. The above group averages and permitted tolerances must be balanced out each calendar month.

(2) Tire tubes—(i) Reestablishment of DR–I specifications. No synthetic rubber specifications are presently prescribed for tire tubes (but see section 12 relating to the use of natural rubber in tubes 8.25 cross-section and smaller), but if the consumption of butyl (GR–I) by the entire industry indicates that the total annual consumption will be less than 15,000 long tons, specifications requiring the consumption of butyl (GR–I) in certain types and sizes of tire tubes will be reinstated in this order to the extent necessary.

(ii) Markings on tire tubes. Every tube containing butyl (GR–I) synthetic rubber shall be marked by the manufacturer with one or more circumferential light blue stripes, applied on the base section of the tube, any one of which stripes shall be 3/16" minimum width. No other tire tube shall be so marked.

(b) Exceptions to required use of synthetic rubber—(1) Defense orders. The provisions of paragraph (a) (1) of this section shall not apply to products manufactured to fill DO rated orders.

(2) Experimental purposes. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (a) (1) of this section, any person may use up to a total of 2,000 pounds of natural rubber during any calendar quarter for experimentation in the manufacture of those sizes and types of tires for which specifications are provided in paragraph (a) (1) of this section.

(c) Importation restrictions—(1) Certification required. No product for which synthetic rubber specifications are established in paragraph (a) (1) of this section may be entered for consumption in the United States or its territories or possessions unless the importer furnishes to the appropriate Collector of Customs a certificate reading substantially as follows:

The undersigned hereby certifies, subject to the criminal penalties for misrepresentation contained in Title 18, U. S. Code (Crimes), section 1001, that the products covered by the invoice to which this certificate is attached contain at least the same percentage of synthetic rubber (of any type and wherever produced) as required by NPA Order M–2 for similar products.

(Date) (Signature)

(2) Exceptions. No such certificate shall, however, be required for the importation (i) of any products by a diplomatic representative of a foreign government for his personal use or for the use of members of his staff or by a commercial representative of a foreign government for use in his official business and not for sale or (ii) of any tires or camelback for experimental and testing purposes and not for sale.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 14. Reports of rubber consumption and stocks—(a) Monthly reports. Every person who consumes or owns, at any time during any month, any type of rubber listed below in an amount equal to or in excess of the amounts specified below, shall file a monthly report on Form NPA–F3 (formerly IC–3410) with the NPA in accordance with the instructions accompanying the form. This report form covers consumption, stocks, receipts, production and shipments. No such report need be filed as to any listed type of rubber if the amount of it consumed and the amount of it owned during the month were each less than the amount specified below for such type of rubber.

[1] Includes all types whether obtained from Government or other source, including imports.

(b) Annual reports. Every person who, during any calendar year, consumes or owns any types of rubber listed in paragraph (a) of this section in excess of the amounts specified for such types, and who has not reported those types of rubber on Form NPA–F3 (formerly IC–3410) for all months of the calendar year, shall file an annual report covering consumption and stocks in accordance with the instructions accompanying the annual report form. This report shall be made on Form NPA–F4 (formerly IC–49–1) and shall be filed not later than January 31 following the year being reported.

SEC. 15. Reports by tire, tube and camelback manufacturers—(a) Monthly reports. Each manufacturer of tires, tubes, and camelback shall file a report of his production, shipments and inventory for each calendar month on Form NPA–F5 (formerly IC–3438) with the NPA in accordance with the instructions accompanying the form. Such report shall be filed by the 10th of the month following the month to which it relates.

(b) Weekly reports of cured tires. Each manufacturer of tires shall file a report of his production of cured tires for each week on Form NPA–F6 (formerly IC–4231) with the NPA in accordance with the instructions accompanying the form.

SEC. 16. Reports by latex importers. Every importer of natural rubber latex shall report by letter to the NPA by the 15th of each month in long tons of dry latex solids (a) his imports for the current month (actual receipts plus material due to arrive), (b) his scheduled imports for the next succeeding month, and (c) his estimate of his imports for the second and third succeeding months.

SEC. 17. Other records and reports. All persons subject to this order shall keep such records and file such other reports as may be required subject to approval by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 18. Inventory limitation. All of the materials subject to this order are also subject to NPA Regulation 1 which prohibits the accumulation of materials in excess of a practicable minimum working inventory.

SEC. 19. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 20. Communications. All applications, reports and other communications relating to this order should be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: Order M–2.

SEC. 21. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order, or furnishes false information or conceals any material fact in the course of operation under it, is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to compel necessary adjustment of his inventories or consumption or to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of, or from processing or using, materials subject to this order.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect as of February 1, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Acting Administrator.

[F. R. Doc. 51–1093; Filed, Feb. 5, 1951; 4:53 p. m.]

[NPA Order M–7, as Amended Feb. 1, 1951]

USE OF ALUMINUM

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendation. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order as amended, has been rendered impracticable by the fact that the order affects a very substantial number of different trades and industries.

This amendment affects NPA Order M–7 as amended Dec. 1, 1950, as follows: It redesignates §§ 26.21 to 26.32 as sections 1 to 12; adds a new section 6 and redesignates sections 6 to 12 to be sections 7 to 13; and amends sections 2, 3, 4 and 8. NPA Order M–7 as amended (including Directions 2 and 3, appearing herein as sections 22 and 23) reads as follows:

Directions

21. Base period: applications for adjustment; December 1950 use.
22. Base period: applications for adjustment; use during first calendar quarter of 1951.
23. Application for adjustment—component parts.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 23 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. Purpose and scope. The purpose of this order is to describe how the aluminum remaining after allowing for the requirements of national defense may be distributed and used in the civilian economy. It is the policy of the National Production Authority that aluminum and articles made of aluminum, not required to fill rated orders, shall be distributed equitably through normal channels of distribution, and that due regard shall be given by suppliers to the needs of new and small business.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the six months period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Manufacture" means to put into process, machine, fabricate, or otherwise alter materials by physical or chemical means: Provided, however, That as applied to "Castings (foundry products as shipped by the producer)" specified in section 3 the word "manufacture" will also mean the assembly of said items into components or end products.

(d) "Maintenance" means the minimum upkeep necessary to continue a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility in sound working condition, and "repair" means the restoration of a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility to sound working condition when the same has been rendered unsafe or unfit for service by wear and tear, damage, failure of parts or the like: Provided, however, Neither maintenance nor repair includes the improvement of any such item with material of a better kind, quality or design.

(e) "Operating supplies" means any aluminum forms or products listed in section 3 which are normally carried by a person as operating supplies according to established accounting practice and are not included in his finished product, except that materials included in such product which are normally chargeable to operating expense may be treated as operating supplies.

SEC. 3. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies. The word "aluminum" as used in this order means only the following aluminum forms and products:

Rod and bar.
Wire (under 3/8").
Cables (electrical transmission only).
Rivets.
Forgings and pressings (before machining).
Impact extrusions.
Castings (foundry products as shipped by the producer).
Rolled structural shapes (angles, channels, zees, tees, etc.).
Extruded shapes.
Sheet (coiled and flat), plate, circles and blanks.
Slugs.
Plain coil foil.
Tubing (extruded, drawn and roll formed).
Tube blooms.
Powder (including atomized, granular, flake, paste and pigments).
Ingot, pig, billets, slabs.
Purchased scrap.

SEC. 4. Application of order. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 8, this order applies to all persons who use any aluminum for purposes of manufacture or construction, or for maintenance, repair, or operating supplies. It does not apply to persons (a) who produce aluminum in or convert it to the forms and products listed in section 3; or (b) who use aluminum in the production of other metals (including aluminized steel), or of metal alloys, the chief constituent of which is not aluminum, or of chemical salts of aluminum and compositions of aluminum used as a catalyst.

SEC. 5. Use of aluminum. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 8, and unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, no person shall use in manufacture or construction:

(a) During December 1950, a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period.

(b) During the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period:

	Percent
January, 1951	80
February, 1951	75
March, 1951	65

SEC. 6. Prohibited uses of aluminum. (a) Commencing on April 1, 1951, aluminum may not be used in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List A except as indicated therein; Provided, however, That any such item may be completed if it was in the process of manufacture or assembly on or before March 31, 1951 and such completion is effected not later than May 31, 1951, and any item included in List A which is completed not later than May 31, 1951 may be sold after that date.

(b) During the following months no person may use in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List A a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum in the manufacture or assembly of such items during the base period:

	Percent
February 1951	75

(c) No person may use in construction any aluminum for any item included in attached List A after May 31, 1951; Provided, however, That this prohibition will not apply to such use of aluminum for any such item if it was manufactured within the time limits specified by this section.

(d) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person may use in the manufacture of any item, including components and parts therefor, a greater quantity or better grade of aluminum than is necessary for the functional operation of such item. Commencing on June 1, 1951, no person shall use any aluminum in the manufacture of any item to be used solely for decorative or ornamental purposes.

(e) The prohibitions of this section apply notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2 with respect to the filling of rated orders, and are not affected by the provisions of paragraphs (a) or (c) of section 8.

SEC. 7. Maintenance, repair, and operating supplies. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, during the six months period commencing on December 1, 1950 and each six months period thereafter, no person shall use for maintenance, repair, and operating supplies a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the quantity of aluminum that he used for such purposes during the base period.

SEC. 8. Exemptions. (a) The use of aluminum required by any person to fill an order that is rated under the priorities system established by NPA Reg. 2 (15 F. R. 6911, 7185), or to meet any other mandatory order of the National Production Authority, is permitted in addition to the use of aluminum authorized by the provisions of sections 5 or 7.

(b) Pending development of requirements for aluminum conductor (including transmission cable, wire, and bus bar) for the production, transmission, or distribution of electric energy, this subpart does not presently restrict the use of aluminum conductor, conductor accessories or pole hardware for such purposes, if these items are on hand or the suppliers have accepted orders for these items prior to November 13, 1950, for delivery prior to April 1, 1951. The use of other shapes and forms of aluminum listed in section 3 for the production, transmission, or distribution of electric energy remain subject to the restrictions of this order.

(c) The provisions of sections 5 and 7 do not apply to persons who use less than 1,000 pounds of aluminum during any period of twelve consecutive months: Provided, however, That persons who by reason of the provisions of section 5 would be permitted to use less than 1,000 pounds during any period of twelve consecutive months may use during such period a quantity up to 1,000 pounds.

(d) Commencing on February 1, 1951, the provisions of section 5 will not apply to the use of aluminum in the manufacture of collapsible tubes as defined in NPA Order M–27.

SEC. 9. Inventories. In addition to the provisions of NPA Reg. 1 (15 F. R. 6253), relating to Inventory Control, it is considered that a more exact requirement applying to users of aluminum is necessary. No person obtaining aluminum for use in manufacture or construction, or for maintenance, repair, or operating supplies, may receive or accept delivery of a quantity of aluminum if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this subpart during the succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less. For the purpose of this section, aluminum shapes and forms listed in section 3 in which only minor changes or alterations have been effected shall be included in inventory. NPA Reg. 1 will apply to aluminum except as modified by this section.

SEC. 10. Application for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 11. Records and reports. (a) Persons subject to this order shall preserve the records which they have maintained and will maintain of inventories, receipts, deliveries, and uses of aluminum forms and products commencing with January 1, 1950.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (P. L. 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139–F).

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref.: M–7.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who willfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or willfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

Directions

SEC. 21. Base period; applications for adjustment; December 1950 use. (a) Section 5 (a) of the regulation states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction "during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use during the base period."

(b) "Base period" is defined by § 2 (b) as the six months period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry [illegible]"

(d) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority upon the ground that the applicants' business operations were commenced during or after the base period, or that the application of the base period to the applicants' business operations otherwise caused undue hardship upon the applicants not suffered generally by others in the same trade or business. Since many of these applications present common problems, this direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (a) to the classes of cases described below, whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority under section 10. This determination is subject, however, to the conditions stated in paragraph (e) of this section.

(e) (1) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, is inapplicable because: (i) The applicants commenced new business operations during or after the base period; (ii) although the applicants' business operations were commenced prior to the base period, the applicants produced or manufactured a new product during or after the base period; or (iii) the applicants brought additional productive or manufacturing capacity into operation during or after the base period.

(i) Direction. In any such case the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during December 1950, his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. The X Company, a newly organized company, commenced its operations on March 15, 1950. This company will be permitted to use in manufacture or construction during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950.

(iii) Illustration 2. The Y Company had been engaged in the manufacture of several products incorporating aluminum. Subsequent to June 30, 1950, this company manufactured and marketed an additional line of products, requiring aluminum, not previously manufactured by it. The rule stated in Illustration 1 above applies to the use of aluminum during December 1950 in the manufacture of the new line of products. However, the limitation stated in section 5 (a) applies to the use of aluminum in manufacturing the company's other products.

(iv) Illustration 3. During August 1950, the A Company commenced operations for the first time in a new, additional plant. The A Company may use the months of October and November 1950 as the base period for the new plant whereas the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, will apply to the operation of its original manufacturing facilities.

(2) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because of changes made during or after the base period in the design, specifications or operating features of certain of its products, and where these changes required the use of substantially larger quantities of aluminum to maintain the same unit output than were required during the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive.

(i) Direction. In any such case, the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during December 1950, his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. During June 1950 the B Company redesigned a machine, its sole product, which it had manufactured and marketed for a number of years and its plant was retooled for its production. In order to conserve weight, aluminum was substituted for steel in various elements resulting in a 30 percent increase in the quantity of aluminum required for the manufacture of the machine. The B Company will be permitted to use in manufacture during December 1950 a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 100 percent of its average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950.

(3) Cases in which it is claimed that the applicants' operations were substantially interrupted during the base period.

(i) Direction. In any such case in which production or manufacturing operations were shut down or suspended for more than 15 consecutive calendar days, the applicant in determining his base period may exclude from the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, the month or months in which shut down or suspension existed.

(ii) Illustration 1. The C Company was shut down from February 16 through March 5, 1950. Its base period will comprise the months of January, April, May and June 1950.

(4) Cases in which it is claimed that operations during December 1950 cannot be fairly measured by the base period specified in sections 1 to 13, inclusive, because of seasonal fluctuations which will result in a substantially higher level of operations during December than the average rate of operations during the first six months of 1950.

(i) Direction. In any such case, in order to allow for the seasonal factor, the following formula may be applied: The ratio between the total quantity of aluminum used during December of the years 1947, 1948 and 1949, and the total quantity of aluminum used during the first six months of said years. Such ratio may be applied to the total quantity of aluminum used in the first six months of 1950 to determine the quantity that may be used during December 1950.

(ii) Illustration 1. By reason of a seasonal demand for its products, the E Company normally schedules its manufacturing operations during December at a rate substantially higher than the average monthly rate that prevailed during the first six months of the year, The ratio between the total quantity of aluminum used in the products manufactured by the E Company during December 1947, 1948 and 1949 and the total quantity of aluminum used during the first six months of these years is 20 percent. Accordingly, the company may use during December 1950 20 percent of the total quantity of aluminum used by it during the first six months of 1950.

(f) The above determinations of adjustment with respect to the classes of cases described are subject to the following conditions: (1) That every person relying on any such determination will promptly after December 1, 1950 prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations and preserve same; (2) that a copy of such record will be promptly transmitted to the National Production Authority upon its request; and (3) that such record and all other records relating to production or manufacture and the use of aluminum forms and products listed in section 3 during 1950, and 1947, 1948, and 1949 to the extent applicable, will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

SEC. 22. Base period; applications for adjustment; use during first calendar quarter of 1951. (a) (1) Section 5 (b) states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction "during the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75
March 1951	65

(2) "Base period" is defined by section 2 (b) as the 6 months period ending June 30, 1950.

(3) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry."

(4) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority upon the ground that the applicants' business operations were commenced during or after the base period, or that the application of the base period to the applicants' business operations otherwise caused undue hardship upon the applicants not suffered generally by others in the same trade or business. Since many of these applications present common problems, this direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (b) to the classes of cases described below, whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority under section 10. This determination is subject, however, to the conditions hereinafter stated.

(i) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because: (1) The applicants commenced new business operations during or after the base period; or (2) although the applicants' business operations were commenced prior to the base period, the applicants produced or manufactured a new product during or after the base period.

(a) Direction. In any such case the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during the first quarter of 1951 as specified in the percentage limitations stated in section 5 (b), his average monthly use during October and November 1950.

(b) Illustration 1. The X Company, a newly organized company, commenced its operations on March 15, 1950. This company will be permitted to use in manufacture or construction during the following months a total quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of the percentages specified with respect to each month of his average monthly use of aluminum during October and November 1950:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75

(c) Illustration 2. The Y Company had been engaged in the manufacture of several products incorporating aluminum. Subsequent to June 30, 1950, this company manufactured and marketed an additional line of products, requiring aluminum, not previously manufactured by it. The rule stated in Illustration 1 above applies to the use of aluminum during the first quarter of 1951 in the manufacture of the new line of products. However, the limitation stated in section 5 (b) as amended, applies to the use of aluminum in manufacturing the company's other products.

(ii) Cases in which it is claimed that the base period specified in the order is inapplicable because of changes made during or after the base period in the design, specifications or operating features of certain of its products, and where these changes required the use of substantially larger quantities of aluminum to maintain the same unit output than were required during the base period specified in the order.

(a) Direction. In any such case, the applicant may apply as a measure of his permitted use of aluminum during the following months a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of the following percentages specified with respect to each month of the quantity of aluminum that he would have used on an average monthly basis during the base period if during said period his products had been manufactured in accordance with the changed design, specifications or operating features:

	Percent
January 1951	80
February 1951	75
March 1951	65

(b) Illustration 1. During July 1950 the A Company redesigned a machine, its sole product, which it had manufactured and marketed for a number of years and its plant was retooled for its production. In order to conserve weight, aluminum was substituted for steel in various elements of the machine. In manufacturing this machine during the base period and prior to its redesign, 2 lbs. of aluminum had been required for each machine whereas each machine as redesigned required 3 lbs. of aluminum. The average monthly use of aluminum by A Company for this purpose during the base period was 1,000 lbs. During January 1951, the A Company will be permitted to use in manufacture a quantity by weight of aluminum not in excess of 80 percent of 1,500 lbs. of aluminum.

(iii) Cases in which it is claimed that the applicants' operations were substantially interrupted during the base period.

(a) Direction. In any such case in which production or manufacturing operations were shut down or suspended for more than 15 consecutive calendar days, the applicant in determining his base period may exclude from the base period specified in the order the month or months in which the shutdown or suspension existed.

(b) Illustration 1. The B Company was shut down from February 16 through March 5, 1950. Its base period will comprise the months of January, April, May, and June 1950.

(b) (1) The above determinations of adjustment with respect to the classes of cases described are subject to the following conditions: (i) That every person relying on any such determination will promptly after January 1, 1951, prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations which will be signed by such person or by an authorized officer or representative, and preserve same, such record to include (a) use permitted under the order as amended, of the aluminum forms and products listed in section 3 during the first quarter of 1951, (b) permitted use of such forms and products during said quarter under this section and (c) basis of computation; and (ii) that such record shall be retained for at least two years and will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(2) The National Production Authority reserves the right to modify or revoke adjustments made pursuant to this section. Any person affected by such a modification or revocation will be notified in writing of the nature of the action taken and the reasons therefor. Such actions will be effective upon such date or dates subsequent to the date of the notification as are specified therein.

SEC. 23. Application for adjustment—component parts. (a) (1) Section 5 (b) states, among other things, that no person shall use in manufacture (as defined) or construction during March 1951 a total quantity by weight of aluminum in excess of 65 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum during the base period. The base period is defined by section 2 (b) as the six months period ending on June 30, 1950.

(2) Section 10 states, in part, that "any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue and exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry."

(3) A number of requests for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority on the ground that the permitted use of aluminum in March 1951 for the manufacture of certain component parts requiring relatively small amounts of aluminum will unduly curtail the production of the end products for which these components are designed and would not be in the public interest. The following direction will constitute a determination of adjustment with respect to the limitation stated in section 5 (b) to the manufacture of component parts hereinafter described whether or not applications for adjustment have been filed with the National Production Authority.

(b) Direction: Any person who manufactures any component parts made wholly or partly of aluminum may use a total quantity by weight of aluminum in the manufacture of such component parts during March 1951 not in excess of 75 percent of his average monthly use of aluminum for this purpose during the base period: Provided, That (1) such component parts serve a functional purpose in the end product; (2) it is not practicable to substitute another material for aluminum before or during March 1951; (3) the total weight of the aluminum in such component parts in the end product is less than 1 percent of the total weight of the end product; and (4) the manufacturer of such component parts obtains a signed certification from the manufacturer or assembler of the end product evidencing the facts set forth in subparagraphs (1) (2) and (3) of this paragraph.

(c) (1) The above determination of adjustment is subject to the following conditions: (i) That every person relying on such determination shall on or before April 1, 1951, prepare a detailed written record of the facts relating to the application of the determination to his operations which will be signed by such person or by an authorized officer or representative; and (ii) that such record will be retained for at least two years and will be made available at his usual place of business for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(2) The National Production Authority reserves the right to modify or revoke adjustments made pursuant to this section. Any person affected by such a modification or revocation will be notified in writing of the nature of the action taken and the reasons therefor. Such action will be effective upon such date or dates subsequent to the date of notification as are specified therein.

NOTE: All reporting requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order, as amended, shall take effect, except as otherwise specifically stated, on Feb. 1, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Acting Administrator.

[NPA Order M-32 as Amended February 5, 1951]

CHEMICALS

LIMITATION FOR DO RATED ORDERS

This order is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all chemical industries and trade associations affected, in advance of the issuance of this order, has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity of immediate action and the fact that it affects a large number of different industries.

This amendment effects NPA Order M-32 by adding one item to Schedule A and redesignates §§ 37.1 to 37.13 to be sections 1 to 13. As amended, this order now reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Chemicals to which this order applies.
4. Required shipment dates.
5. Rejection of rated orders.
6. Limitation for acceptance of rated orders.
7. NPA assistance in placing rated orders.
8. Adjustments and exceptions.
9. Communications.
10. Records.
11. Audit and inspection.
12. Reports.
13. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to producers of each chemical listed in Schedule A appearing at the end of this order and provides rules for placing, accepting and scheduling rated orders for such chemical. Its purpose is to provide equitable distribution of rated orders among all producers thereof, in order to make possible maximum production and to reduce to a minimum disruption of normal distribution. It supplements NPA Regulation 2 but only those provisions of Regulation 2 which are inconsistent with this order are superseded and all other provisions of Regulation 2 continue to apply to the chemical industry.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes agencies of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Producer" means any person engaged in the business of producing for sale any chemical listed in Schedule A.

(c) "Schedule A" means the list of chemicals marked "Schedule A" appearing at the end of this order.

(d) "NPA" means National Production Authority.

SEC. 3. Chemicals to which this order applies. This order applies only to the chemicals listed in Schedule A, as amended from time to time. It is the intention of NPA that if and when the need arises, additional chemicals will be added to Schedule A.

SEC. 4. Required shipment dates. A rated order for any chemical listed in Schedule A must specify shipment on a particular date or dates or during a particular month, which in no case may be earlier than required by the person placing the order. The producer of such chemical must schedule the order for shipment within the requested month as close to the requested shipment date as is practicable, considering the need for maximum production.

SEC. 5. Rejection of rated orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by NPA, a producer need not accept a rated order for any chemical listed in Schedule A which is received by him less than the number of days (lead time), if any, set forth in Schedule A opposite the name of such chemical, prior to the first day of the month in which shipment is requested. Rated orders for any such chemical as to which no such period of time is specified in Schedule A are not subject to the provisions of this section.

SEC. 6. Limitation for acceptance of rated orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by NPA, no producer shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment of any chemical listed in Schedule A in any one month in excess of the quantity of such chemical determined as in Schedule A provided.

SEC. 7. NPA assistance in placing rated orders. Any person who is unable to place a rated order for any chemical listed in Schedule A due to the limitation imposed by section 6 should apply to NPA, Ref: Order M-32, specifying the producers who refused to accept the order. NPA will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply.

SEC. 8. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought and the justification therefor.

SEC. 9. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M-32.

SEC. 10. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction whether the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 11. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 12. Reports. Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139-139F).

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect on February 5, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Acting Administrator.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to tanners, cutters and any person who owns or possesses sole leather whole stock, midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality. It does not apply to any person whose use of sole leather is confined exclusively to the repairing of shoes for the general public. The purpose of this order is to insure the production of military grade midsoles and innersoles in quantities necessary to meet military requirements. This order prescribes how sole leather must be processed and cut; prohibits the cutting of sole leather unless so cut as to produce the quantities of military grade midsoles and innersoles set forth in Schedule A at the end of this order, which Schedule is hereby made a part of this order; and restricts the sale, delivery, processing or other use of all such soles cut after the effective date of this order, to the filling of orders for military shoes. This order further provides for equitable distribution of rated orders among all sole cutters in order to make possible maximum production of such soles and to reduce to a minimum disruption of normal distribution. In addition it calls for monthly reports by every sole cutter on the quantities of sole leather cut. This order supplements NPA Regulation 2, but only those provisions of Regulation 2 which are inconsistent with this order are superseded and all other provisions of Regulation 2 continue to apply to the sole leather industry.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes agencies of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Sole leather" means vegetable tanned sole leather commercially known as "manufacturers' " type.

(c) "Midsoles of military weight and quality" means men's cut soles of 7 to 8 iron, inclusive, of fine, semi-fine, imperfect fine, and No. 1 scratch grade or as otherwise required by the applicable specifications for military shoes.

(d) "Innersoles of military weight and quality" means men's soles of 5½ to 7½ iron, inclusive, first quality, full grain leather with strong fibre, of quality adapted to innersole use.

(e) "Whole stock" means sole leather sides, backs, bends, crops, strips, shoulders, bellies, and belly centers.

(f) "Sole cutter" means any person who produces outer soles, midsoles, innersoles, blocks, squares, strips, or taps from sole leather, including an independent cutter, a tanner cutter, a packer-tanner cutter, a shoe manufacturer cutter, and a tanner-shoe manufacturer cutter. Such term does not include a person whose use of sole leather is confined exclusively to the repairing of shoes for the general public.

(g) "Military shoes" means shoes required to fill orders for the United States Department of Defense and Coast Guard.

(h) "Put into process" with respect to midsoles and innersoles means the first step taken in the preparation of such cut stock for shoe making or for attachments to shoes or shoe uppers.

(i) "NPA" means National Production Authority.

(j) All trade terms shall have their usual trade significance unless otherwise specified in this order.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on tanning of sole leather. No person shall process sole leather except in accordance with the requirements of Federal Specification KK-L-261C, including any emergency alternate specifications, or amendments thereof.

SEC. 4. Restrictions on cutting hides and on cutting and sale of sole leather. (a) No person shall cut bellies from cattle hides processed for sole leather (excluding stags and bulls) except in accordance with standard practice, but bellies weighing 3 pounds or more when finished shall not be cut to measure less than 6 inches across the navel when finished.

(b) No persons shall cut shoulders from cattle hides processed for sole leather (excluding stags and bulls) except in a line running perpendicularly to line of backbone at a point within the limits of the break in the foreflank.

(c) No sole cutter shall cut any whole stock unless such cutting will produce at least the quantities of midsoles of military weight and quality and innersoles of military weight and quality set forth in Schedule A at the end of this order. Counters meeting military specifications may be cut in substitution for innersoles but only to the extent necessary to meet orders for military shoes and in the ratio set forth in said Schedule A. All such midsoles and innersoles shall be cut on Army size dies or commercial patterns fitting the Munson last currently used for the Department of Army, in sizes and widths to fit the sizes of shoes bought on U. S. Army tariffs as issued, or shall be cut in accordance with the shoe order schedules of the Navy or Marine Corps. In the absence of such tariffs or schedules the cut stock to which this order applies shall be of sizes meeting normal commercial cut stock casing practices.

(d) No person shall sell or deliver whole stock to any person other than a sole cutter.

SEC. 5. Restrictions on sales, deliveries and use of cut stock. No sole cutter shall, after the effective date of this order, sell, deliver, put into process, or otherwise use any midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality which are cut pursuant to section 4, except to fill DO rated orders for military shoes.

SEC. 6. Limitation for acceptance of rated orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by NPA, no sole cutter shall be required to accept DO rated orders for midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality for shipment in any one month in excess of his scheduled production of such midsoles or innersoles in that month, in accordance with the provisions of this order.

SEC. 7. NPA assistance in placing rated orders and disposing of inventories of midsoles and innersoles. Any person who is unable to place a rated order for midsoles of military weight and quality or innersoles of military weight and quality due to a limitation imposed by section 6 should apply to NPA, Ref. Order M-34, specifying the sole cutters who refused to accept the order. NPA will arrange to assist him in locating sources of supply. A sole cutter may at any time apply to NPA for assistance in disposing of his inventories of midsoles and innersoles which may be accumulated as a result of this order. Provision is made for such requests in the form referred to in section 11.

SEC. 8. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interests of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought and the justification therefor.

SEC. 9. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction whether the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 10. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

SEC. 11. Reports. (a) Every sole cutter shall on or before the 10th day of each month, commencing March 10, 1951, file with NPA a report on Form NPAF-28, setting forth the number of pieces of sole leather cut and all other information required by such form. The first of such reports shall cover the period from the effective date of this order to and including February 28, 1951. Thereafter each such report shall cover the calendar month immediately preceding the month in which such report is required to be filed.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such other reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139-139F).

SEC. 12. Communications. All communications and reports concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref. M-34.

SEC. 13. Violations. Any person who willfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or willfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order shall take effect on February 5, 1951.

C., two copies of applications on the appropriate form designated by the Commission and a like number of exhibits or other papers incorporated therein and made a part thereof. Only the original copy need be sworn to. Experimental television applications should be submitted in triplicate.

§ 4.14 Period of construction. Each construction permit will specify a maximum of 60 days from the date of granting thereof as the time within which construction of the station shall begin, and a maximum of six months thereafter as the time within which construction shall be completed and the station ready for operation, unless otherwise determined by the Commission upon proper showing in any particular case.

§ 4.15 Forfeiture of construction permits; extension of time. (a) A construction permit shall be automatically forfeited if the station is not ready for operation within the time specified therein or within such further time as the Commission may have allowed for completion, and a notation of the forfeiture of any construction permit under this provision will be placed in the records of the Commission as of the expiration date.

(b) The Commission may notify the permittee to conduct no tests or may cancel, suspend, or change the date for the beginning of equipment tests as and when such action may appear to be in the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

(c) Equipment tests may be continued so long as the construction permit shall remain valid.

Program test authority shall be automatically terminated by final determination upon the application for station license.

(d) The authorization for tests embodied in this section shall not be construed as approval by the Commission of the application for station license.

(b) Licenses for stations in the Auxiliary Broadcast Services will be issued for a period running concurrently with the licenses of the broadcast station with which such auxiliary stations are used. A remote pickup broadcast station licensed for use with more than one broadcast station will be licensed for a period running concurrently with the license of the broadcast station having the longer license period.

§ 4.19 License, simultaneous modification and renewal. When an application is granted by the Commission necessitating the issuance of a modified license less than 60 days prior to the expiration date of the license sought to be modified, and an application for renewal of said license is granted subsequent or prior thereto (but within 30 days of expiration of the present license) the modified license as well as the renewal license will be issued to conform to the combined action of the Commission.

§ 4.20 Renewal of license. (a) Unless otherwise directed by the Commission, each application for renewal of license shall be filed at least 60 days prior to the expiration date of the license sought to be renewed.

(b) Whenever the Commission regards an application for renewal of a station license for any class of broadcast station listed in § 4.1 as essential to the proper conduct of a hearing or investigation, and specifically directs that it be filed by a certain date, such application shall be filed within the time thus specified. If the licensee fails to file such application within the prescribed time, the hearing or investigation shall proceed as if such renewal application had been received.

(c) A supplemental report shall be submitted with each application for renewal of license of a station licensed experimentally[1] in accordance with the regulations governing each class of station.

§ 4.21 Temporary extension of station licenses. Where there is pending before the Commission any application, investigation, or proceeding which, after hearing, might lead to or make necessary the modification of, revocation of, or the refusal to renew an existing auxiliary or experimental broadcast station license, the Commission may, in its discretion, grant a temporary extension of such license: Provided, however, That no such temporary extension shall be construed as a finding by the Commission that the operation of any radio station thereunder will serve public interest, convenience, and necessity beyond the express terms of such temporary extension of license: And provided further, That such temporary extension of license will in no wise affect or limit the action of the Commission with respect to any pending application or proceeding.

§ 4.22 Repetitious applications. (a) Where an applicant has been afforded an opportunity to be heard with respect to a particular application for a new auxiliary or experimental broadcast station, or for change of existing service or facilities, and the Commission has, after hearing or default, denied the application or dismissed it with prejudice, the Commission will not consider another application for a station of the same class to serve in whole or in part the same area, by the same applicant or by his successor or assignee, or on behalf of or for the benefit of the original parties in interest, until after the lapse of 12 months from the effective date of the Commission's order.

(b) Where an appeal has been taken from the action of the Commission in denying a particular application, another application for the same class of broadcast station and for the same area, in whole or in part, filed by the same applicant or by his successor as assignee, or on behalf or for the benefit of the original parties in interest, will not be considered until the final disposition of such appeal.

§ 4.23 Assignment or transfer of control—(a) Voluntary. Application for consent to voluntary assignment of an auxiliary or experimental broadcast station construction permit or license or for consent to voluntary transfer of control of a corporation holding such a construction permit or license shall be filed with the Commission on Form FCC No. 314 (assignment of license) or Form FCC No. 315 (transfer of control) at least 60 days prior to the contemplated effective date of assignment or transfer of control.

(b) Involuntary. In the event of the death or legal disability of a permittee or licensee, or a member of a partnership, or a person directly or indirectly in control of a corporation, which is a permittee or licensee:

(1) The Commission shall be notified in writing promptly of the occurrence of such death or legal disability, and

(2) Within thirty days after the occurrence of such death or legal disability, application on Form FCC No. 314 or 315 shall be filed for consent to involuntary assignment of such station permit or license or for involuntary transfer of control of such corporation to a person or entity legally qualified to succeed to the foregoing interests under the laws of the place having jurisdiction over the estate involved.

LICENSING POLICIES

§ 4.131 Licensing requirements, necessary showing. (a) An applicant for a new experimental television broadcast station, change in facilities of any existing station, or modification of license is required to make a satisfactory showing of compliance with the general requirements of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, as well as the following:

(1) That the applicant has a definite program of research and experimentation in the technical phases of television broadcasting, which indicates reasonable promise of substantial contribution to the developments of the television art.

(2) That upon the authorization of the proposed station the applicant can and will proceed immediately with its program of research and experimentation.

(3) That the transmission of signals by radio is essential to the proposed program of research and experimentation.

(4) That the program of research and experimentation will be conducted by qualified personnel.

(b) A license for an experimental television broadcast station will not authorize exclusive use of any frequency. In case interference would be caused by simultaneous operation of stations licensed experimentally, such licensees shall endeavor to arrange satisfactory time division. If such agreement cannot be reached, the Commission will determine and specify the time division.

(c) A license for an experimental television broadcast station will be issued only on the condition that no objectionable interference will result from the transmissions of the station to the regular program transmissions of television broadcast stations. It shall at all times be the duty of the licensee of an experimental television broadcast station to ascertain that no interference will result from the transmissions of its station. With regard to interference with the transmissions of an experimental television broadcast station or the experimental or test transmissions of a television broadcast station, the licensees shall make arrangements for operations to avoid interference.

§ 4.132 Power limitations. Experimental television broadcast stations will be licensed with a power output not in excess of that necessary to render satisfactory service. The license for these stations will specify the maximum authorized power. The operating power shall not be greater than necessary to carry on the service and in no event more than 5 percent above the maximum power specified. Engineering standards have not been established for these stations. The efficiency factor for the last radio stage of transmitters employed will be subject to individual determination but shall be in general agreement with values normally employed for similar equipment operated within the frequency range authorized.

§ 4.133 Emission authorized. In case emission of a different type than that specified in the license is necessary or desirable in carrying on any phases of experimentation, application setting out fully the needs shall be made by informal application.

§ 4.134 Multiple ownership. No persons (including all persons under common control) shall control directly or indirectly, two or more experimental television broadcast stations (other than television relay broadcast stations) unless a showing is made that the character of the programs of research require a licensing of two or more separate stations.

EQUIPMENT

§ 4.151 Equipment changes. The licensee of an experimental television broadcast station may make any changes in the equipment that are deemed desirable or necessary provided:

(a) That the operating frequency is not permitted to deviate more than the allowed tolerance;

(b) That the emissions are not permitted outside the authorized band;

(c) That the power output complies with the license and the regulations governing the same; and

(d) That the transmitter as a whole or output power rating of the transmitter is not changed.

§ 4.161 Frequency tolerance. The licensee of an experimental television broadcast station operating below 450 megacycles shall maintain the operating frequency of its station within plus or minus 0.01 percent of the assigned frequency. The licensee of an experimental television broadcast station operating above 450 megacycles shall maintain the operating frequency of its station within plus or minus 0.05 percent of the assigned frequency. However, where a lesser tolerance is necessary in order to prevent interference, the Commission will specify the tolerance.

§ 4.162 Frequency monitors and measurements. The licensee of an experimental television broadcast station shall provide the necessary means for determining that the frequency of the station is within the allowed tolerance. The date and time of each frequency check, the frequency as measured, and a description or identification of the method employed shall be entered in the station log. Sufficient observations shall be made to insure that the assigned carrier frequency is maintained within the prescribed tolerance.

§ 4.163 Time of operation. (a) A licensee of an experimental television broadcast station is not required to adhere to a regular schedule of operation but shall actively conduct a program of research and experimentation.

(b) The program of research and experimentation as offered by an applicant in compliance with the requirements for obtaining a license for an experimental television broadcast station shall be adhered to in the main, unless the licensee is authorized to do otherwise by the Commission.

(c) The Commission may from time to time require that a station licensed experimentally conduct such experiments as are deemed desirable and reasonable for the development of the service.

§ 4.164 Station inspection. The licensee of each experimental television broadcast station shall make the station available for inspection by representatives of the Commission at any reasonable hour.

§ 4.165 Station and operator licenses, posting of. (a) The station license and any other instrument of authorization or individual order concerning the construction of the equipment or manner of operation of the station shall be posted so that all terms thereof are visible in a conspicuous place in the room in which the transmitter is located. However, if the station is licensed for portable-mobile[2] operation, the station license or a photo copy thereof shall be affixed to the equipment or kept in the possession of the operator on duty at the transmitter. If a photo copy is used the original license shall be available for inspection by an authorized government representative.

(b) The original license of each station operator shall be posted at the place where he is on duty: Provided, however, If the original license of a station operator is posted at another radio transmitting station in accordance with the rules governing that class of station and is there available for inspection by an authorized Commission representative, or if the station operated is licensed for portable-mobile[2] operation, a verification card[4] is acceptable in lieu of the posting of such license.

§ 4.166 Operator requirements. One or more radio operators holding radiotelephone first-class or radiotelephone second-class operator licenses shall be on duty at the place where the transmitting apparatus of an experimental television broadcast station is located and in actual charge of its operation. The licensed operator on duty and in charge of a broadcast transmitter may at the discretion of the licensee, be employed for other duties or for the operation of another station or stations in accordance with the class of operator's license which he holds and the rules and regulations governing such stations. However, such duties shall in no wise interfere with the operation of the broadcast transmitter.

§ 4.167 Inspection of tower lights and associated control equipment. The licensee of each experimental television broadcast station which has an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) required to be illuminated pursuant to the provisions of section 303 (q) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

LICENSING POLICIES

§ 4.331 Licensing requirements: necessary showing. (a) An applicant for a construction permit for a new developmental broadcast station, change of facilities or modification of an existing license is required to make a satisfactory showing of compliance with the general requirements of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, as well as with regard to the following:

(1) That the applicant has a program of research and experimentation which can best be carried on under the license requested.

(2) That the program of research has reasonable promise of substantial contribution to the development of broadcasting.

(3) That the program of research and experimentation will be conducted by qualified personnel.

(b) A license for a developmental broadcast station will not authorize exclusive use of any frequency. In case interference would be caused by simultaneous operation of stations licensed experimentally, such licensees shall endeavor to arrange satisfactory time division. If such agreement cannot be reached, the Commission will determine and specify the time division.

§ 4.332 Power limitations. Developmental broadcast stations will be licensed with a power output not in excess of that necessary to render satisfactory service. The license for these stations will specify the maximum authorized power. The operating power shall not be greater than necessary to carry on the service and in no event more than 5 percent above the maximum power specified. Engineering standards have not been established for these stations. The efficiency factor for the last radio stage of transmitters employed will be subject to individual determination but shall be in general agreement with values normally employed for similar equipment operated within the frequency range authorized.

§ 4.333 Emission authorized. In case emission of a different type than that specified in the license is necessary or desirable in carrying on any phases of experimentation, application setting out fully the needs shall be made by informal application.

EQUIPMENT

§ 4.351 Equipment changes. The licensee of a developmental broadcast station may make any changes in the equipment that are deemed desirable or necessary provided:

(a) That the operating frequency is not permitted to deviate more than the allowed tolerance;

(b) That the emissions are not permitted outside the authorized band;

(c) That the power output complies with the license and the regulations governing the same; and

(d) That the transmitter as a whole or output power rating of the transmitter is not changed. This limitation shall not apply to developmental broadcast stations licensed to operate in connection with the development and testing of commercial broadcast equipment.

TECHNICAL OPERATION

§ 4.361 Frequency tolerance. The licensee of a developmental broadcast station operating below 450 megacycles shall maintain the operating frequency of its station within plus or minus 0.01 percent of the assigned frequency.[4] The licensee of a developmental broadcast station operating above 450 megacycles shall maintain the operating frequency of its station within plus or minus 0.05 percent of the assigned frequency. However, where a lesser tolerance is necessary in order to prevent interference, the Commission will specify the tolerance.

§ 4.362 Frequency monitors and measurements. The licensee of a developmental broadcast station shall provide the necessary means for determining

*Subject to interference from radiations emitted by scientific, medical, and industrial stations.

[4] In case a program is transmitted from its point of origin to a broadcast station primarily by telephone facilities in which a section of such transmission is by radio, the broadcasting of this program is not considered a rebroadcast. The broadcasting of a program relayed by a remote pickup broadcast station is not considered a rebroadcast.

[5] Informal application may be employed.

[4] Tolerance may be 0.05 on equipment installed prior to October 1, 1946, and until October 1, 1947, when all developmental broadcast stations shall maintain frequency within the prescribed tolerances.

that the frequency of the station is within the allowed tolerance. The date and time of each frequency check, the frequency as measured, and a description or identification of the method employed shall be entered in the station log. Sufficient observations shall be made to insure that the assigned carrier frequency is maintained within the prescribed tolerance.

§ 4.363 Time of operation. (a) A licensee of a developmental broadcast station is not required to adhere to a regular schedule of operation but shall actively conduct a program of research and experimentation. However, licensees of developmental broadcast stations which are licensed to conduct special intermittent experiments, such as the development and testing of commercial broadcast equipment, are authorized to operate only when there is a need therefor.

(b) The program of research and experimentation as offered by an applicant in compliance with the requirements for obtaining a license for a developmental broadcast station shall be adhered to in the main, unless the licensee is authorized to do otherwise by the Commission.

(c) The Commission may from time to time require that a station licensed experimentally conduct such experiments as are deemed desirable and reasonable for the development of the service.

§ 4.364 Station inspection. The licensee of each developmental broadcast station shall make the station available for inspection by representatives of the Commission at any reasonable hour.

§ 4.365 Station and operator licenses; posting of. (a) The station license and any other instrument of authorization or individual order concerning the construction of the equipment or manner of operation of the station shall be posted so that all terms thereof are visible in a conspicuous place in the room in which the transmitter is located. However, if the station is licensed for portable-mobile [5] operation, the station license or a photo copy thereof shall be affixed to the equipment or kept in the possession of the operator on duty at the transmitter. If a photo copy is used the original license shall be available for inspection by an authorized government representative.

(b) The original license of each station operator shall be posted at the place where he is on duty: Provided, however, If the original license of a station operator is posted at another radio transmitting station in accordance with the rules governing that class of station and is there available for inspection by an authorized Commission representative, or if the station operated is licensed for portable-mobile [5] operation, a verification card [6] is acceptable in lieu of the posting of such license.

§ 4.366 Operator requirements. One or more radio operators holding radiotelephone first-class or radiotelephone second-class operator licenses shall be on duty at the place where the transmitting apparatus of any developmental broadcast station is located and in actual charge of its operation. The licensed operator on duty and in charge of a broadcast transmitter may at the discretion of the licensee, be employed for other duties or for the operation of another station or stations in accordance with the class of operator's license which he holds and the rules and regulations governing such stations. However, such duties shall in no wise interfere with the operation of the broadcast transmitter.

§ 4.367 Inspection of tower lights and associated control equipment. The licensee of each developmental broadcast station which has an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) required to be illuminated pursuant to the provisions of section 303 (q) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

(b) Shall report immediatedly by telephone or telegraph to the nearest Airways Communication Station or office of the Civil Aeronautics Administration any observed failure of the tower lights, not corrected within 30 minutes, regardless of the cause of such failure. Further notification by telephone or telegraph shall be given immediately upon resumption of the required illumination.

(c) Shall inspect at intervals of at least once each 3 months all flashing or rotating beacons and automatic lighting control devices to insure that such apparatus is functioning properly as required.

§ 4.368 Additional orders. In case the rules contained in this part do not cover all phases of operation or experimentation with respect to external effects, the Commission may make supplemental or additional orders in each case as may be deemed necessary.

No regular program service shall be broadcast unless specifically authorized. If the license authorizes the carrying of programs, the developmental broadcast station may transmit the programs of a standard, or FM broadcast station or networks, provided, that during the broadcast a statement is made identifying the station or network originating the program (by giving the call letters of the station or name of the network) and announcing that the program is being broadcast in connection with the experimental operation of a developmental broadcast station.

(b) No licensee of any standard, or FM broadcast station shall make any additional charge, directly or indirectly, for the transmission of programs by a developmental broadcast station.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE

§ 4.411 Cross reference. See §§ 4.11 through 4.23.

LICENSING POLICIES

§ 4.431 Purpose of remote pickup broadcast stations. (a) The license of a remote pickup broadcast station authorizes the transmission of program material, orders concerning such program material, and related communications necessary to the accomplishment of such transmissions, to an associated broadcast station,[6] to such other stations as are also broadcasting the same program material, or to the network with which the broadcast station is regularly affiliated. A license issued within the provision of § 4.432 (e) authorizes the additional communications therein provided. Remote pickup broadcast stations may be operated in conjunction with other broadcast stations not aforementioned, provided that the transmissions by the remote pickup broadcast station shall be under the control of the remote pickup broadcast station licensee, and that such operation shall not exceed a total of 10 days in any 30-day period.

(b) In the event of damage or impairment of the regular circuits of a broadcast station due to storms or other emergencies, remote pickup broadcast stations may be used to provide temporary emergency circuits for program transmission and cue purposes pending completion of repairs. However, remote pickup broadcast stations may not be used for such circuits on a regular basis.

(c) The license of a remote pickup broadcast station authorizes operation on only one of the assigned frequencies at any one time. A licensee may operate two or more remote pickup broadcast stations simultaneously. Remote pickup broadcast stations may be used to transmit orders and related communications from the program control point to the remote pickup point.

(d) Remote pickup broadcast stations licensed in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands of the United States may be used for any auxiliary broadcast purpose including inter-city relay circuits which may be operated by the licensee for the purpose of maintaining studios at locations other than that of the main studio: Provided, however, That such stations shall not be used for transmissions intended to be received by the public directly.

[1] As heretofore provided, remote pickup broadcast stations currently licensed for operation on frequencies within the ranges 30–40 Mc and 156–162 Mc will be permitted to continue operations on such frequencies temporarily subject to the condition that no harmful interference is caused to stations operating in accordance with existing frequency-service allocations, in order to allow for conversion of existing remote pickup equipment. However, in no event shall such operation be continued after July 1, 1960. Frequencies below 25 Mc are subject to change in accordance with action resulting from the proceedings in Docket No. 6651.

[2] Subject to the condition that no interference is caused to Government stations on adjacent channels.

[3] Subject to the condition that harmful interference will not be caused to the Industrial Radio Services.

[4] Subject to the condition that harmful interference will not be caused to government stations present or future in the government band 162–174 Mc.

[5] Note requirement of § 4.462 (b).

[6] The term "associated broadcast station" as used herein means a broadcast station with which the remote pickup station is licensed as an auxiliary facility.

§ 4.432 Licensing requirements. (a) A license for a remote pickup broadcast station will be issued only to the licensee of a broadcast station. Remote pickup broadcast stations will be licensed to television broadcast stations upon an interim basis pending development of equipment capable of transmitting the aural and the visual portions of television programs within the bands of frequencies allocated for television pickup stations. A separate license is required for each remote pickup broadcast station. Each application for construction permit for a new remote pickup broadcast station or for a change in the facilities of an existing station shall be specific with regard to the frequency or frequencies requested.

(b) In case a licensee has two or more broadcast stations of different services (standard, FM, television, etc.) located in the same city, it shall, in applying for a new remote pickup broadcast station or for renewal of license of an existing station, designate each of the stations with which the remote pickup broadcast station is to be operated.

(c) In case a licensee has two or more broadcast stations located in different cities, it shall, in applying for a new remote pickup station or for renewal of license of an existing station, designate the broadcast station, or stations under the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section, in conjunction with which the remote pickup station is to be operated.

(d) A remote pickup broadcast station may be licensed for portable or mobile operation in accordance with § 4.401 (a), or for operation at a fixed location in accordance with § 4.401 (b). An application for a new remote pickup broadcast station or for modification of license of an existing station requesting portable or mobile operation shall specify the area in which the proposed station is intended to be employed.

(e) Remote pickup broadcast base stations will be licensed for the purpose of providing communications between the studio and the transmitter of broadcast stations which utilize an FM broadcast STL station for program transmission, provided that such operation shall not be conducted on frequencies other than those listed in § 4.402 (a) (3).

§ 4.433 Temporary authorizations. (a) Special temporary authority may be granted for operation, as a remote pickup broadcast station, of equipment already licensed to another class of station or equipment in use by a class of station which under the Communications Act of 1934 does not require a construction permit.

(b) An application for special temporary authority for the operation of a remote pickup broadcast station[7] shall be filed with the Commission at least 10 days previous to the date of operation. Any application received within less than 10 days may be accepted upon due showing of sufficient reasons for the delay in submitting such request. The application shall set forth full particulars of the purpose for which the request is made and shall show the licensee, call letters, and type of equipment of the station proposed to be used and specify the frequency or frequencies, time and date, location, transmitter power, and type emission proposed and the purpose of the operation requested.

(c) An application for special temporary authority to operate another class of station as a remote pickup broadcast station[7] shall specify a frequency or frequencies allocated in § 4.402: Provided, however, In case of events of national interest and importance which cannot be transmitted successfully on these frequencies, other frequencies under the jurisdiction of the Commission may be requested, if it is shown that the operation thereon will not cause interference to established stations; And provided further, That no remote pickup operation will be authorized on frequencies employed in the emergency service or otherwise employed for the safety of life and property.

(d) An application for special temporary authority to operate equipment as a remote pickup broadcast station[7] filed by a person other than the licensee of such equipment shall contain a statement to show that temporary control of the transmissions therefrom has been secured for the duration of the special operation proposed. An application for special temporary authority to operate another class of station as a remote pickup broadcast station filed by a person other than the licensee of a standard or FM broadcast station shall contain a statement to show which broadcast station or stations contemplate broadcast of the program proposed to be transmitted.

§ 4.434 Remote-control operation. Remote-control operation of remote pickup stations will be permitted subject to the following conditions:

(a) A percentage modulation indicator or calibrated program level meter shall be provided at the operating position.

(b) The operator shall have off-and-on control of the power to the last radio stage.

(c) The transmitter shall be so installed and protected that it is not accessible to other than duly authorized persons.

§ 4.435 Power limitations. Remote pickup broadcast stations will be licensed with a power output not in excess of that necessary to render satisfactory service. The license for these stations will specify the maximum authorized power. The operating power shall not be greater than necessary to carry on the service and in no event more than 5 percent above the maximum power specified. Engineering standards have not been established for these stations. The efficiency factor for the last radio stage of transmitters employed will be subject to individual determination but shall be in general agreement with values normally employed for similar equipment operated within the frequency range authorized.

§ 4.436 Emission authorized. (a) The license for a remote pickup broadcast station operating on frequencies below 25 Mc will normally authorize A3 emission and may in addition authorize A1 and A2 emission where a need therefor is shown. A license for a remote pickup broadcast station operating on frequencies above 25 Mc will authorize A3 or F3 emission, depending upon the equipment employed. Stations licensed to employ F3 emission shall limit the frequency swing [8] so that the bandwidth of emission will conform to the requirements of the channel widths authorized as follows:

(1) For stations operating on the frequencies 26.11 to 26.47 Mc, 20 kilocycles.

(2) For stations operating on the frequencies 152.87 to 153.35, 166.25 and 170.15 Mc, 60 kilocycles.

(3) For stations operating on the frequencies 450.05 to 451.95 Mc, 100 kilocycles.

(b) Any emissions outside the authorized channel shall be limited to such an extent as not to constitute a source of potential interference to other stations and in no event shall such emissions be in excess of minus 40 decibels as compared to the emissions within the authorized channel.

EQUIPMENT

§ 4.451 Equipment changes. The licensee of a remote pickup broadcast station may make any changes in the equipment that are deemed desirable or necessary: Provided:

(a) That the operating frequency is not permitted to deviate more than the allowed tolerance;

(b) That the emissions are not permitted outside the authorized band;

(c) That the power output complies with the license and the regulations governing the same; and

(d) That the transmitter as a whole or output power rating of the transmitter is not changed.

450.05 to 451.95 Mc: All powers	.01	.01

[1] The listing of tolerance for power over 200 watts is in accordance with treaty values and shall not be construed as a finding that such power will be authorized.

[8] The term "frequency swing" means the instantaneous departure of the frequency of the emitted wave from the center frequency resulting from modulation.

[9] Remote pickup broadcast stations now operating in the frequency range 30–40 Mc and on frequencies above 154 Mc will, during the period such operation continues pending frequency reassignment of these stations pursuant to the proceedings in Docket No. 6651, retain the frequency tolerance requirements of their present licenses.

[7] Informal application may be employed.

§ 4.462 Frequency monitors and measurements. (a) The licensee of a remote pickup broadcast station shall provide the necessary means for determining that the frequency of the station is within the allowed tolerance. The date and time of each frequency check, the frequency as measured, and a description or identification of the method employed shall be entered in the station log. Sufficient observations shall be made to insure that the assigned carrier frequency is maintained within the prescribed tolerance.

(b) Each frequency for which the remote pickup broadcast station is licensed shall be measured at least once during each calendar year.[10]

§ 4.463 Station inspection. The licensee of each remote pickup broadcast station shall make the station available for inspection by representatives of the Commission at any reasonable hour.

§ 4.464 Station and operator licenses; posting of. (a) The station license and any other instrument of authorization or individual order concerning the construction of the equipment or manner of operation of the station shall be posted so that all terms thereof are visible in a conspicuous place in the room in which the transmitter is located: Provided:

(1) If the transmitter operator is located at a distance from the transmitter pursuant to § 4.434 the station license shall be posted in the above-described manner at the operating position.

(2) If the station is licensed for portable-mobile [11] operation, the station license or a photo copy thereof shall be affixed to the equipment or kept in the possession of the operator on duty at the transmitter. If a photo copy is used the original license shall be available for inspection by an authorized government representative.

(b) The original license of each station operator shall be posted at the place where he is on duty: Provided, however, If the original license of a station operator is posted at another radio transmitting station in accordance with the rules governing that class of station and is there available for inspection by an authorized Commission representative, or if the station operated is licensed for portable-mobile [11] operation, a verification card [12] is acceptable in lieu of the posting of such license: Provided, further, however, That if the operator on duty holds a restricted radiotelephone operator permit of the card form (as distinguished from the diploma form) he shall not post that permit but shall keep it in his personal possession.

§ 4.465 Operator requirements. One or more radio operators holding any class of commercial radio operator license or permit shall be on duty at the place where the transmitting apparatus of any remote pickup broadcast station is located, except as provided in § 4.434, and in actual charge of its operation. Further provisions and restrictions concerning the operator's authority are contained in Part 13 of this chapter. The licensed operator on duty and in charge of a broadcast transmitter may at the discretion of the licensee, be employed for other duties or for the operation of another station or stations in accordance with the class of operator's license which he holds and the rules and regulations governing such stations. However, such duties shall in no wise interfere with the operation of the broadcast transmitter.

§ 4.466 Inspection of tower lights and associated control equipment. The licensee of each remote pickup broadcast station which has an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) required to be illuminated pursuant to the provisions of section 303 (q) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

(a) Shall make a visual observation of the tower lights at least once each 24 hours to insure that all such lights are functioning properly as required.

(b) Shall report immediately by telephone or telegraph to the nearest Airways Communication Station or office of the Civil Aeronautics Administration any observed failure of the tower lights, not corrected within 30 minutes, regardless of the cause of such failure. Further notification by telephone or telegraph shall be given immediately upon resumption of the required illumination.

(c) Shall inspect at intervals of at least once each 3 months all flashing or rotating beacons and automatic lighting control devices to insure that such apparatus is functioning properly as required.

§ 4.467 Additional orders. In case the rules contained in this part do not cover all phases of operation or experimentation with respect to external effects, the Commission may make supplemental or additional orders in each case as may be deemed necessary.

§ 4.482 Station identification. Each remote pickup broadcast station shall announce its call letters at the beginning and end of each period of operation, and during operation; at least once every hour it shall either announce its call letters or make an announcement [13] which will permit it to be identified.

SUBPART E—BROADCAST STL STATIONS

DEFINITION AND ALLOCATION OF FREQUENCIES

§ 4.501 Definitions. (a) FM Broadcast STL Station: A fixed station utilizing telephony to transmit from a studio of an FM broadcasting station to the transmitter of that broadcasting station, programs to be broadcast by that station.

(b) Standard broadcast STL station: A fixed station utilizing telephony to transmit from a studio of a standard broadcasting station to the transmitter of that broadcasting station, programs to be broadcast by that station.

(c) The term "FM broadcasting station" as used in this part of the rules includes non-commercial educational FM broadcasting stations.

(d) The abbreviation "STL" is derived from "studio-transmitter link."

Mc	Mc	Mc	Mc
940.5	943.5	946.5	949.5
941.0	944.0	947.0	950.0

Stations operating in the band 925–940 Mc must accept any interference that may be experienced from the operation of industrial, scientific and medical equipment.

(c) The frequencies listed in paragraph (b) of this section may be assigned to FM broadcast STL stations in any area where insufficient space in that area is available in the band 940–952 Mc.

§ 4.503 Frequency selection. (a) Each application for a new station or change in an existing station shall be specific with regard to frequency. In general, the lowest suitable frequency will be assigned which, on an engineering basis, will not cause harmful interference to other stations operating in accordance with existing frequency allocations.

(b) Where it appears that interference may result from the operation of a new station or a change in the facilities of an existing station, the Commission may require a showing that harmful interference will not be caused to existing stations or that if interference will be caused the need for the proposed service outweighs the loss of service due to the interference.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE

LICENSING POLICIES

§ 4.531 Licensing requirements. (a) An FM broadcast STL station will be licensed only to the licensee of an FM broadcasting station as an auxiliary to a particular FM broadcasting station of that licensee.

(b) A standard broadcast STL station will be licensed only to the licensee of a standard broadcast station as an auxiliary to a particular standard broadcast station of that licensee.

(c) More than one FM broadcast STL or standard broadcast STL transmitter will be licensed for use with a single broadcast station only upon a specific and satisfactory showing that (1) more than one STL transmitter is required for the effective operation of a single STL circuit, due to terrain, distance of transmission, or similar circumstances; or (2) more than one STL circuit is needed for the purpose of connecting an additional studio with the transmitter and it is shown that the nature and extent of use of such additional STL circuit is such as to justify its authorization.

(d) Each station shall be licensed at a fixed location and the direction of radiation of the antenna shall be fixed.

§ 4.532 Service. (a) The license of an FM broadcast STL station or a standard broadcast STL station authorizes the relaying of programs from a studio to the transmitter of the broadcast station with which it is licensed, for simultaneous or delayed broadcast: Provided, however, That where the licensee of an FM broadcast STL station or a standard broadcast STL station is the licensee of an FM broadcast station and a standard broadcast station in the same city or metropolitan district, the license of each such STL station authorizes the relaying to be made to either or both such broadcast stations.

(b) Each FM broadcast STL station or standard broadcast STL station will be licensed for unlimited time operation.

(c) During periods in which it is not a part of the broadcast circuit, the transmitting equipment may be used for the transmission of communications which pertain to the broadcast operations.[2] Superfluous transmissions are not permitted.

§ 4.533 Remote control operation. Remote control operation of broadcast STL stations will be permitted subject to the following conditions:

(a) A percentage modulation indicator or calibrated program level meter shall be provided at the operating position.

(b) The operator shall have off-and-on control of the power to the last radio stage.

(c) The transmitter shall be so installed and protected that it is not accessible to other than duly authorized persons.

§ 4.534 Power limitations. Broadcast STL stations will be licensed with a power output not in excess of that necessary to render satisfactory service. The license for these stations will specify the maximum authorized power. The operating power shall not be greater than necessary to carry on the service and in no event more than 5 percent above the maximum power specified. Engineering standards have not been established for these stations. The efficiency factor for the last radio stage of transmitters employed will be subject to individual determination but shall be in general agreement with values normally employed for similar equipment operated within the frequency range authorized.

§ 4.535 Emission authorized. (a) Broadcast STL stations normally will be authorized to employ frequency modulation only.

(b) The maximum frequency swing [3] employed shall not be in excess of 200 kilocycles.

§ 4.536 Directional antenna required. Each Broadcast STL station is required to employ a directional antenna. Considering one kilowatt of radiated power as a standard for comparative purposes, such antenna shall provide a free space field intensity at one mile of not less than 435 mv/m in the main lobe of radiation toward the receiver and not more than 20 percent of the maximum value in any azimuth 30 degrees or more off the line to the receiver. Where more than one antenna is authorized for use with a single station, the radiation pattern of each shall be in accordance with the foregoing requirement.

EQUIPMENT

§ 4.551 Equipment changes. The licensee of a broadcast STL station may make any changes in the equipment that are deemed desirable or necessary provided:

(a) That the operating frequency is not permitted to deviate more than the allowed tolerance;

(b) That the emissions are not permitted outside the authorized band;

(c) That the power output complies with the license and the regulations governing the same; and

(d) That the transmitter as a whole or output power rating of the transmitter is not changed.

TECHNICAL OPERATION

§ 4.561 Frequency tolerance. The licensee of each broadcast STL station shall maintain the operating frequency of the station within plus or minus 0.005 percent of the assigned frequency.

§ 4.562 Frequency monitors and measurements. The licensee of a broadcast STL station shall provide the necessary means for determining that the frequency of the station is within the allowed tolerance. The date and time of each frequency check, the frequency as measured, and a description or identification of the method employed shall be entered in the station log. Sufficient observations shall be made to insure that the assigned carrier frequency is maintained within the prescribed tolerance.

§ 4.563 Station inspection. The licensee of each broadcast STL station shall make the station available for inspection by representatives of the Commission at any reasonable hour.

§ 4.564 Station and operator license; posting of. (a) The station license and any other instrument of authorization or individual order concerning the construction of the equipment or manner of operation of the station shall be posted so that all terms thereof are visible, in a conspicuous place in the room in which the transmitter is located: Provided, That if the transmitter operator is located at a distance from the transmitter pursuant to § 4.533 the station license shall be posted in the above-described manner at the operating position.

(b) The original license of each station operator shall be posted at the place where he is on duty: Provided, however, If the original license of a station operator is posted at another radio transmitting station in accordance with the rules governing that class of station and is there available for inspection by an authorized Commission representative, a verification card (Form 758–F) is acceptable in lieu of the posting of such license: Provided further, however, That if the operator on duty holds a restricted radiotelephone operator permit of the card form (as distinguished from the diploma form) he shall not post that permit but shall keep it in his personal possession.

[10] Remote pickup broadcast stations licensed for frequencies that are subject to change in accordance with the proceedings in Docket No. 6651 are required to measure only those frequencies on which they are equipped to operate.

[12] Form 758–F.

[2] If the STL transmitter and receiver are equipped with a multiplex circuit, communications during broadcast periods may be authorized upon application therefor. Such a circuit, if used, shall be designed and operated in a manner which will not cause spurious emissions or derogation of the program transmission. Studio to transmitter and transmitter to studio communication may also be provided by equipment operated under the remote pickup broadcast station rules.

[3] The term "frequency swing" means the instantaneous departure of the frequency of the emitted wave from the center frequency resulting from modulation.

§ 4.565 Operator requirements. One or more radio operators holding any class of commercial radio operator license or permit shall be on duty at the place where the transmitting apparatus is located, except as provided in § 4.533, and in actual charge of its operation. Further provisions and restrictions concerning the operator's authority are contained in Part 13 of this chapter. The licensed operator on duty and in charge of a broadcast transmitter may, at the discretion of the licensee, be employed for other duties or for the operation of another station or stations in accordance with the class of operator's license which he holds and the rules and regulations governing such stations. However, such duties shall in nowise interfere with the operation of the broadcast transmitter.

§ 4.566 Inspection of tower lights and associated control equipment. The licensee of each broadcast STL station which has an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) required to be illuminated pursuant to the provisions of section 303 (q) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

(a) Shall make a visual observation of the tower lights at least once each 24 hours to insure that all such lights are functioning properly as required.

(b) Shall report immediately by telephone or telegraph to the nearest Airways Communication Station or office of the Civil Aeronautics Administration any observed failure of the tower lights, not corrected within 30 minutes, regardless of the cause of such failure. Further notification by telephone or telegraph shall be given immediately upon resumption of the required illumination.

(c) Shall inspect at intervals of at least once each 3 months all flashing or rotating beacons and automatic lighting control devices to insure that such apparatus is functioning properly as required.

§ 4.567 Additional orders. In case the rules contained in this part do not cover all phases of operation or experimentation with respect to external effects, the Commission may make supplemental or additional orders in each case as may be deemed necessary.

OTHER RULES RELATING TO OPERATION

(1) Hours of operation.
(2) Program transmitted.
(3) Frequency check.
(4) Pertinent remarks concerning transmission.

(b) Where an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) is required to be illuminated the licensee shall make entries in the radio station log as follows:

(1) The time the tower lights are turned on and off if manually controlled.

(2) The time the daily visual observation of the tower lights was made.

(3) In the event of any observed failure of a tower light.

(i) Nature of such failure.

(ii) Time the failure was observed.

(iii) Time and nature of the adjustments, repairs or replacements made.

(iv) Airways Communication Station (C. A. A.) notified of the failure of any tower light not corrected within thirty minutes and the time such notice was given.

(v) Time notice was given to the Airways Communication Station (C. A. A.) that the required illumination was resumed.

(4) Upon completion of the periodic inspection required at least each three months.

(i) The date of the inspection and the condition of all tower lights and associated tower lighting control devices.

(ii) Any adjustments, replacements or repairs made to insure compliance with the lighting requirements.

§ 4.582 Station identification. Each broadcast STL station shall announce its call letters at the beginning and end of each period of operation, and during operation, at least once every hour, it shall either announce its call letters or make an announcement[4] which will permit it to be identified.

SUBPART F—TELEVISION AUXILIARY BROADCAST STATIONS

The following rules govern television auxiliary broadcast stations operated by a television broadcast station licensee. The services performed by these stations may be performed for the television broadcast station licensee by a communications common carrier under the rules governing that service.

DEFINITIONS AND ALLOCATION OF FREQUENCIES

§ 4.601 Definitions. (a) Television pickup station: A land mobile station used for the transmission of television program material and related communications from the scenes of events occurring at points removed from television broadcast station studios to television broadcast stations.

(b) Television STL station (studio-transmitter link): A fixed station used for the transmission of television program material and related communications from the studio to the transmitter of a television broadcast station.

(c) Television inter-city relay station: A fixed station used for inter-city transmission of television program material and related communications for use by television broadcast stations.

(d) Wherever used in this subpart the term "television broadcast station licensee" includes a television broadcast station permittee.

§ 4.602 Frequency assignment. (a) The following frequencies are allocated for assignment to television pick-up stations, television STL stations, or television inter-city relay stations:

Group	2,000 megacycle band (Mc.)	7,000 megacycle band (Mc.)	13,000 megacycle band (Mc.)
A	1990–2008	6925–6950	13025–13075
B	2008–2025	6950–6975	13075–13125

G	2093–2110	6900–6925	13175–13200

(b) A licensee will be limited to the assignment of only one frequency in each of the bands shown above for use in a particular area, and apportioned in the manner shown below: Provided however, That where there are less than seven television broadcast stations allocated to a city the unapportioned frequencies in the above bands may be assigned to any television broadcast station licensee in that area for television pickup or television inter-city relay purposes only.

Broadcast channel assignment:	Group
3 or 4	B
5 or 6	C
7 or 8	D
9 or 10	E
11 or 12	F
13	G

In the event that a television broadcast station licensee engages a communications common carrier to provide a pickup or STL service, the frequencies available to that licensee under the above apportionment may be assigned to the communications common carrier for the purpose of providing such service to that licensee.

(c) The following frequencies are allocated for assignment to television pickup stations, television STL stations, or television inter-city relay stations on an unapportioned basis:[5]

12875–12900 Mc	12950–12975 Mc
12925–12950 Mc	13000–13025 Mc

(d) The frequencies listed in this section are allocated primarily for television pickup and STL purposes. Television inter-city relay use of these frequencies shall be on a secondary basis subject to the condition that no harmful interference is caused to television STL and television pickup stations.

§ 4.603 Sound channels. (a) All of the frequencies listed in § 4.602 may be used for the simultaneous transmission of the picture and sound portions of television broadcast programs either by means of multiplexing or by use of a separate sound transmitter within the same channel.

(b) The following additional frequencies are allocated for assignment to television STL stations and television inter-city relay stations for the transmission of the sound portion only of television program material or communications relating thereto:[5]

Mc	Mc	Mc	Mc	Mc

Stations operating on these frequencies must accept any interference that may be experienced from the operation of industrial, scientific, and medical equipment in the 890–940 Mc band.

§ 4.604 Frequency selection to avoid interference. Where two or more television pickup stations are licensed for the same frequency or group of frequencies in the same area and when simultaneous operation is contemplated, the licensees shall endeavor to select frequencies or schedule operation in such manner as to avoid mutual interference. If a mutual agreement to this effect cannot be reached the Commission shall be notified and it will specify the frequency or frequencies on which each station is to be operated.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE

§ 4.621 Cross reference. See §§ 4.11 through 4.23.

§ 4.631 Purpose of television auxiliary stations. (a) The license of a television pickup station authorizes the transmission of program material, orders concerning such program material, and related communications necessary to the accomplishment of such transmissions, to its associated television broadcast station,[6] to such other stations as are also broadcasting the same program material, or to the network or networks with which the television broadcast station is affiliated. Television pickup stations may be operated in conjunction with other television broadcast stations not aforementioned: Provided, That the transmissions by the television pickup station shall be under the control of the television pickup station licensee and that such operation shall not exceed a total of 10 days in any 30-day period. Television pickup stations licensed to broadcast licensees may not be used in lieu of common carrier fixed inter-city video transmission facilities where adequate common carrier fixed inter-city video facilities are available for use by such broadcast licensees.

(b) The license of a television STL station authorizes the transmission of program material, orders concerning such program material, and related communications necessary to the accomplishment of such transmissions, from the studio or studios of the associated television broadcast station to the transmitter of that station. A television STL station may be authorized to operate in the direction from the transmitter to the studio upon a showing that such operation is necessary and that it may be effected without the assignment of frequencies in addition to those available for assignment to the applicant under the rules in this part.

(c) Television inter-city relay stations provide a means on an interim basis whereby television broadcast licensees may provide their own inter-city television transmission services in connection with the operation of their television broadcast stations. The provision for this service is a purely temporary measure designed to assist the television industry until such time as adequate common carrier facilities are available, and broadcasters who venture into the business of relaying television programs by means of television inter-city relay stations should plan to amortize their investments at the earliest possible date.

§ 4.632 Licensing requirements. (a) A license for a television pickup station, television STL station, or television intercity relay station will be issued only to the licensee of a television broadcast station.[7] A separate license is required for each station and the application therefor shall be specific with regard to the frequency or frequencies requested.

(b) An application for construction permit for a new television inter-city relay station or for renewal of license of an existing station shall be accompanied by a verified statement containing the following:

(1) A full statement as to why the applicant requires the requested facilities including reasons why common carrier facilities cannot be utilized; and,

(2) A showing that the applicant has, at the earliest time reasonably practicable, requested the appropriate common carrier or common carriers serving the general area involved to furnish the inter-city television transmission service required by the applicant, including in such showing a copy of the request or requests and of the reply or replies received from such common carriers.

(c) An application for construction permit for a new television pickup station or for renewal of license of an existing station shall designate the television broadcast station with which it is to be operated and specify the area in which the proposed operation is intended.

(d) In case a licensee has two or more television broadcast stations located in different cities, it shall, in applying for a new television pickup station or for renewal of license of an existing station, designate the television broadcasting station in conjunction with which it is to be operated principally, and it shall not thereafter operate the television pickup station in conjunction with another of its television broadcast stations located in a different city for a total of more than 10 days in any 30-day period.

(e) More than one television STL transmitter will be licensed for use with a single television broadcast station only upon a specific and satisfactory showing that (1) more than one STL transmitter is required for the effective operation of a single STL circuit, due to terrain, distance of transmission, or similar circumstances; or (2) more than one STL circuit is needed for the purpose of connecting an additional studio with the transmitter and it is shown that the nature and extent of use of such additional STL circuit is such as to justify its authorization.

§ 4.634 Remote control operation. (a) A television auxiliary station may be operated by remote control provided that such operation is conducted in accordance with the conditions listed below, and provided further that the Commission is notified at least 10 days prior to such operation and that such notification is accompanied by a detailed description of the proposed remote control installation showing the manner of compliance with the following conditions:

(1) The operating position shall be under the control and supervision of the licensee and shall be the place at which a licensed operator, meeting the requirements of § 4.655 and responsible for the operation of the transmitter, is stationed.

(2) A carrier operated device shall be provided at the operating position which shall give a continuous visual indication when the transmitter is radiating; or, in lieu thereof, a device shall be provided which will give a continuous visual indication when any transmitter control circuits have been placed in a condition to produce radiation;

(3) Facilities shall be provided at the operating position which will permit the operator to turn the transmitter carrier on and off at will; and

(4) The transmitter and all of its operating controls shall be so installed and protected that they are not accessible to other than duly authorized personnel.

(b) The Commission may notify the licensee not to commence remote control operation, or to cancel, suspend, or change the date of beginning for such operation as and when such action may appear to be in the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

§ 4.635 Unattended operation. (a) Television inter-city relay stations and television STL stations, where the circuit requires the use of more than one STL transmitter, may be operated unattended: Provided, That such operation is conducted in accordance with the conditions listed below: And provided further, That the Commission is notified at least 10 days prior to the beginning of such operation and that such notification is accompanied by a detailed description of the proposed installation showing the manner of compliance with the following conditions:

(1) The transmitter is capable of retransmitting by self-actuating means

[6] Shared with other services. See § 2.104 (a) of this chapter.

[7] Remote pickup broadcast stations may be used on an interim basis by television broadcast station licensees for the separate transmission of the sound channel to accompany the video transmissions of television pickup stations. See §§ 4.402 and 4.432 (a).

[8] As used in this subpart, "associated television broadcast station" means a television broadcast station licensed to the licensee of the television auxiliary broadcast station and with which the television auxiliary station is licensed as an auxiliary facility.

[9] The services performed by these stations may be performed for the television broadcast station licensee by a communications common carrier under the rules governing that service.

a radio signal received from another radio station or stations;

(2) The transmitter shall be provided with adequate safeguards to prevent improper operation of the equipment;

(3) The transmitter shall be so installed and protected that it is not accessible to other than duly authorized persons;

(4) Appropriate observations shall be made, at intervals not exceeding one hour during the period of its operation, at the receiving end of the circuit by a person holding a valid first or second class radiotelephone operator license who shall immediately institute measures sufficient to assure prompt correction of any condition of improper operation that is observed; and

(5) The station licensee shall remain responsible for the proper operation of the station, and all adjustments or tests during or coincident with the installation, servicing, or maintenance of the station which may affect its proper operation, shall be performed by or under the immediate supervision and responsibility of a licensed operator as provided in § 4.665.

(b) The Commission may notify the licensee not to commence unattended operation, or to cancel, suspend, or change the date of the beginning of such operation as and when such action may appear to be in the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

§ 4.636 Power limitations. Television auxiliary broadcast stations will be licensed with a power output not in excess of that necessary to render satisfactory service. The license for these stations will specify the maximum authorized power. The operating power shall not be greater than necessary to carry on the service and in no event more than 10 percent above the maximum power specified. Engineering standards have not been established for these stations. The efficiency factor for the last radio stage of transmitters employed will be subject to individual determination but shall be in general agreement with values normally employed for similar equipment operated within the frequency range authorized.

§ 4.637 Emission authorized. A license for a television auxiliary broadcast station operating above 1990 megacycles will normally authorize any type of emission for the video signal and accompanying sound within the assigned channel. A license for a television auxiliary broadcast station operating in the 890.5 to 910.5 mc band will authorize A3 or F3 emission, depending on the equipment employed. Such stations licensed to employ F3 emission shall limit the frequency swing[4] so that the bandwidth of emission will conform to the requirements of the channel widths of 500 kilocycles.

EQUIPMENT

§ 4.651 Equipment changes. The licensee of a television auxiliary broadcast station may make any changes in the equipment that are deemed desirable or necessary; Provided:

(a) That the operating frequency is not permitted to deviate more than the allowed tolerance;

(b) That the emissions are not permitted outside the authorized channel;

(c) That the power output complies with the license and the regulations governing the same.

(d) That the antenna location, maximum antenna height above ground or direction of the main lobe of radiation of the transmitting antenna of a television STL or television inter-city relay station is not changed.

TECHNICAL OPERATION

§ 4.661 Frequency tolerance. The licensee of a television auxiliary broadcast station shall maintain the operating frequency of its station so that the normal sideband energy shall fall within the assigned channel. If transmission is by asymmetrical sideband operation, suitable filters or other devices shall be employed to insure a minimum of radiated energy outside the assigned channel.

§ 4.662 Frequency monitors and measurements. The licensee of a television auxiliary broadcast station shall provide means for measuring the operating frequency in order to insure that the emissions are confined to the authorized channel. The date and time of each frequency check, the frequency as measured and a description or identification of the method employed shall be entered in the station log.

§ 4.663 Station inspection. The licensee of each television auxiliary broadcast station shall make the station available for inspection by representatives of the Commission at any reasonable hour.

§ 4.664 Station and operator licenses; posting of. (a) The station license and any other instrument of authorization or individual order concerning the construction of the equipment or manner of operation of the station shall be posted so that all terms thereof are visible in a conspicuous place in the room in which the transmitter is located; Provided:

(1) If the transmitter operator is located at a distance from the transmitter pursuant to § 4.634 the station license shall be posted in the above-described manner at the operating position.

(2) If the station is licensed for mobile operation, the station license or a photo copy thereof shall be affixed to the equipment or kept in the possession of the operators on duty at the transmitter. If a photo copy is used the original license shall be available for inspection by an authorized government representative.

(b) The original license of each station operator shall be posted at the place where he is on duty: Provided, however, That if the original license of a station operator is posted at another radio transmitting station in accordance with the rules governing that class of station and is there available for inspection by an authorized Commission representative, a duly issued verified statement[5] may be posted at the television auxiliary broadcast station in lieu of such original license: And provided further, That if the television auxiliary broadcast station is licensed for mobile[6] operation, a duly issued verification card[7] attesting to the existence of such original license may be carried on the person of the operator in lieu of the posting of such license or verified statement.

§ 4.665 Operator requirements. (a) One or more radio operators holding valid radiotelephone first-class or radiotelephone second-class operator licenses shall be on duty at the place where the transmitting apparatus of any television auxiliary broadcast station is located and in actual charge of its operation: Provided, however, That if a station is operated by remote control as provided in § 4.634 of this part, such operator or operators must be on duty at the control point in lieu of the transmitting location: And provided further, That, in case a station is operated unattended as provided in § 4.635 of these rules such an operator shall be on duty at the receiving end of the circuit and shall be responsible for the required observations and the proper operation of the station within the terms of its license.

(b) The licensed operator on duty and in charge of a television auxiliary broadcast station may, at the discretion of the licensee, be employed for other duties or for the operation of another station or stations in accordance with the class of operators license which he holds and the regulations governing such stations; however, such duties shall in nowise interfere with the operation of the television auxiliary broadcast station.

§ 4.666 Inspection of tower lights and associated control equipment. The licensee of each television auxiliary broadcast station which has an antenna or antenna supporting structure(s) required to be illuminated pursuant to the provisions of section 303 (q) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

(a) Shall make a visual observation of the tower lights at least once each 24 hours to insure that all such lights are functioning properly as required.

(b) Shall report immediately by telephone or telegraph to the nearest Airways Communication Station or office of the Civil Aeronautics Administration any observed failure of the tower lights, not corrected within 30 minutes, regardless of the cause of such failure. TITLE 39—POSTAL SERVICE

Chapter I—Post Office Department

PART 150—PROCEDURES OF THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

In Part 150, Procedures of the Post Office Department (39 CFR Part 150; 15 F. R. 4681) make the following changes:

1. Amend the caption of Subpart C to read: "Procedures Before Assistant Postmaster General in Charge of Transportation".

2. Rescind §§ 150.1002, 150.1003, 150.1113, 150.1302, 150.1306, 150.1401, and 150.1402.

3. Insert a new section, designated § 150.910 to read as follows:

§ 150.910 Fines and deductions. Railroad and electric car companies, mail messengers, power boat contractors in the United States, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and Hawaiian service, star route contractors and carriers, air carriers on certificated and star routes in the United States, its territories and possessions, steamship companies and air carriers conveying mails within the United States, between the United States or its territories or possessions and any foreign country, between the United States and its possessions or its naval or military forces abroad, or between any such possession or naval or military forces and any other such possession or naval or military forces.

(a) Fines: Notice of irregularity; answer; assessment of fine. Carriers or contractors, against whom evidence is found or reported of irregularities involving unreasonable or unnecessary delays, loss, or damage to the mails, careless handling, rough switching of mail cars, unsatisfactory condition of postal cars, violation of sections 405 (d) or 901 (a) of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, or other delinquencies, are given notice of the facts briefly in writing by an official representative of the Postal Service. They are given an opportunity to answer the charges or give reason for the irregularity, or to acknowledge the delinquency. If this exchange is conducted in the field service, the facts are briefed and the papers are forwarded to the Bureau of Transportation. The carrier or contractor may be charged directly by the Bureau of Transportation, and replies directly thereto. In either case, the papers are carefully examined in the Bureau of Transportation to determine the responsibility of the carrier or contractor involved. The amount of the fine, if any, is then decided upon and imposed by authority of the Postmaster General. The only exception concerns overland and airplane star route and powerboat contractors in the United States and its territories and possessions. In their case, the fine is usually imposed in the Bureau of Transportation by authority of the Postmaster General without previous notice to the contractor or carrier. These contractors receive only written notice of fines assessed and reasons therefor.

NOTE: Postal Transportation Service field officials use Forms 5178 and 5179 (for surface carriers) and Form 2744 (for air carriers) on which to make briefs of the facts.

(b) Deductions: Notice of irregularities; deduction. Evidence against contractors or carriers of failure to perform service according to contract is forwarded by the field service to the Bureau of Transportation. There, after careful examination, the amount of the deduction, if any, is decided upon and imposed, by authority of the Postmaster General.

(c) Damage or loss of mails; responsibility of carrier. Damage cases are investigated in the same manner as a fine case. (See paragraph (a) of this section.) Where it is found, after investigation, that the Government has suffered a loss through the payment of indemnity or otherwise as a result of the damage to or loss of mails, such loss is usually taken into consideration when determining the amount of the fine.

(d) Appeal. When a fine or deduction is imposed, the carrier involved is mailed an advice on proper forms stating the facts and amount of fine. The carrier may protest the imposition of the fine or deduction, but must file his protest with supporting evidence in the office of the Assistant Postmaster General in charge of Transportation within six months from the date of notice of the fine. The case is then reviewed by the Assistant Postmaster General in charge of Transportation and his decision is final.

[50 CFR, Parts 46, 161-165]

ALASKA WILDLIFE PROTECTION

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946 (60 Stat. 237, 239), notice is hereby given:

(a) That under authority contained in section 9 of the Alaska Game Law (57 Stat. 306; 48 U. S. C. 198) the Secretary of the Interior intends to adopt amendments to the Alaska Game Regulations affecting seasons, bag limits, and closure of areas necessary to insure proper conservation and utilization of the wildlife resources of Alaska. In addition, some provisions relating primarily to the administration of the Alaska Game Law may be amended in minor respects for the purpose of clarifying the application of the regulations and to facilitate the administration of the Alaska Game Law.

(b) That under authority of section 8 and subdivision M of section 10 of the Alaska Game Law of July 1, 1943 (57 Stat. 301, 310) as amended, the Alaska Game Commission intends to consider the advisability of amending the regulations of the Alaska Game Commission respecting poisons, licenses, the qualification of guides, and the establishment of fur management areas.

Interested persons are hereby notified that at a hearing of the Alaska Game Commission to be held in Juneau, Alaska, on February 12, 1951, the said propbsed regulations will be considered, and any such person may present his views, data or arguments with respect thereto. Such interested persons are also hereby given an opportunity to participate in preparing the regulations for issuance as set forth by submitting their views, data, or arguments in writing to Albert M. FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[Docket No. 9892]

COMMERCIAL RADIO OPERATORS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

In the matter of amendment of § 13.61 of Part 13 of the Commission's rules governing Commercial Radio Operators defining the operating authority of holders of the Restricted radiotelephone operator permit and the Aircraft radiotelephone operator authorization.

1. Notice is hereby given of proposed rule making in the above-entitled matter.

2. Proposed amendments to § 13.61 of Part 13 of the Commission's rules are set forth below. The Commission's Restricted radiotelephone operator permit and its Aircraft radiotelephone operator authorization are both issued upon "declaration" by eligible applicants, without examination. Because of this method of issuance, both of these classes of licenses correspond to the lower grade of Restricted radiotelephone operator's certificate provided for in the international radio regulations in force, in particular Article 24, Section 14, paragraph (2) of the Radio Regulations annexed to the International Telecommunications Convention of Atlantic City, 1947. Under Article 24 of these Radio Regulations, these two classes of Commission operator licenses are not valid for the operation of ship and aircraft radiotelephone stations of which the power in the antenna of the unmodulated carrier exceeds 50 watts. These proposed amendments are designed to bring the provisions of the Commission's rules, which define the scope of operating authority of holders of these licenses, into line with the Atlantic City Regulations by placing the same 50 watt power limitation therein.

3. These proposed rules are issued under authority of sections 4 (i), 303 (l) and 303 (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

4. Any interested person who is of the opinion that the proposed amendments should not be adopted or should not be adopted in the form set forth below, may file with the Commission on or before March 2, 1951 a written statement or brief setting forth his comments. At the same time, any person who favors the rules as set forth may file a written statement in support thereof. Comments or briefs in reply to the original comments or briefs may be filed within 15 days from the last day for filing said original comments or briefs. The Commission will consider all comments, briefs and statements presented before taking final action in the matter. If any comments are received which appear to warrant the Commission in holding an oral argument before final action is taken, notice of the time and place of such oral argument will be given.

5. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.764 of the Commission's rules, an original and fourteen copies of all statements, briefs or comments filed shall be furnished the Commission.

Released: January 30, 1951.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] T. J. SLOWIE,
Secretary.

1. Section 13.61 (g) of the rules governing Commercial Radio Operators is proposed to be amended to read as follows:

(g) Restricted radiotelephone operator permit. Any station except—

(1) Stations transmitting television, or

(2) Stations transmitting telegraphy by any type of the Morse Code, or

(3) Any of the various classes of broadcast stations other than remote pickup and ST broadcast stations, or

(4) Coastal telephone stations or coastal harbor stations other than in the territory of Alaska, or

(5) Ship stations licensed to use telephony for communication with coastal telephone stations, or

(6) [25] At a ship radar station licensed in the Ship Service, the holder of this class of license may not supervise or be responsible for the performance of any adjustments or tests during or coincident with the installation, servicing or maintenance of the radar equipment while it is radiating energy: Provided, That nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed to prevent any person holding such a license from making replacements of fuses or of receiving type tubes, or

(7) Ship stations or aircraft stations other than those used solely for telephony, or

(8) [25a] Ship stations or aircraft stations at which the power in the antenna of the unmodulated carrier wave is authorized to exceed 50 watts;

Provided, That, with respect to any station which the holder of this class of license may operate, (i) Such operator is prohibited from making any adjustments that may result in improper transmitter operation, and (ii) the equipment is so designed that the stability of the frequencies of the transmitter is maintained by the transmitter itself within the limits of tolerance specified by the station license, and none of the operations necessary to be performed during the course of normal rendition of the service of the station may cause off-frequency operation or result in any unauthorized radiation, and (iii) any needed adjustments of the transmitter that may affect the proper operation of the station are regularly made by or under the immediate supervision and responsibility of a person holding a first- or second-class commercial radio operator license, either radiotelephone or radiotelegraph as may be appropriate for the class of station involved, who shall be responsible for the proper functioning of the station equipment.

2. Section 13.61 of the rules governing Commercial Radio Operators is proposed to be amended by adding a new paragraph (h) as follows:

(h) [25b] Aircraft radiotelephone operator authorization. Aircraft stations at which the installation is used solely for telephony and the power in the antenna of the unmodulated carrier wave is not authorized to exceed 50 watts: Provided, That, (1) such operator is prohibited from making any adjustments that may result in improper transmitter operation, and (2) the equipment is so designed that the stability of the frequencies of the transmitter is maintained by the transmitter itself within the limits of tolerance specified by the station license, and none of the operations necessary to be performed during the course of normal rendition of the service of the station may cause off-frequency operation or result in any unauthorized radiation, and (3) any needed adjustments of the transmitter that may affect the proper operation of the station are regularly made by or under the immediate supervision and responsibility of a person holding a first- or second-class commercial radio operator license, either radiotelephone or radiotelegraph as may be appropriate for the class of station involved, who shall be responsible for the proper functioning of the station equipment.

[F. R. Doc. 51-1900; Filed, Feb. 6, 1951; 8:52 a. m.]

[25] Effective January 2, 1951.

[25a] Fifty watt limitation is applicable to all Restricted radiotelephone operator permits issued on or after May 1, 1951.

[25b] Fifty watt limitation is applicable to all aircraft radiotelephone operator authorizations issued on or after May 1, 1951.

The legal subdivision containing a spring and the lands within a quarter of a mile of such spring may be affected by the general withdrawal made by Executive Order of April 17, 1926 (43 CFR 292.1) creating Public Water Reserve No. 107, but the question of whether the spring is of such size or value or so needed by the public as to bring the lands within the scope of the withdrawal is left for future determination.

At the hour and date specified above the said lands shall, subject to valid existing rights and the provisions of existing withdrawals, become subject to application, petition, location, or selection as follows:

(a) Ninety-one day period for preference-right filings. For a period of 91 days, commencing at the hour and on the day specified above, the public lands affected by this notice shall be subject only to (1) application under the homestead or the desert-land laws or the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938, 52 Stat. 609 (43 U. C. 279-284), as amended, subject to the requirements of applicable law, and (2) application under any applicable public-land law, based on prior existing valid settlement rights and preference rights conferred by existing laws or equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation. Applications under subdivision (1) of this paragraph shall be subject to applications and claims of the classes described in subdivision (2) of this paragraph. All applications filed under this paragraph either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 35th day after the date of this notice shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at that time. (b) Date for non-preference-right filings. Commencing at 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this notice, any lands remaining unappropriated shall become subject to such application, petition, location, selection, or other appropriation by the public generally as may be authorized by the public-land laws. All such applications filed either at or before 10:00 a. m. on the 126th day after the date of this notice, shall be treated as though filed simultaneously at the hour specified on such 126th day. All applications filed thereafter shall be considered in the order of filing.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their applications by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

Applications for these lands, which shall be filed in the Land and Survey Office, Reno, Nevada, shall be acted upon in accordance with the regulations contained in § 295.8 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations and Part 296 of that title, to the extent that such regulations are applicable. TELANSERPHONE, INC., AND WARD C. ROGERS

ORDER CHANGING PLACE OF HEARING

In re applications of Telanserphone, Inc., docket No. 9845, file No. 7240-C2-P-E, and Ward C. Rogers, docket No. 9846, file No. 8192-C2-P-E, for construction permits in the domestic public land mobile radio service at Chicago, Illinois.

The Commission having under consideration a petition filed on January 12, 1951, on behalf of Telanserphone, Inc., requesting that the place of hearing on its application herein be changed from Chicago, Illinois, to Washington, D. C.; an opposition thereto filed on January 16, 1951, on behalf of Ward C. Rogers; and an oral argument on said petition and opposition held on January 23, 1951; and

It appearing, that the hearing herein is presently scheduled to be held in Chicago commencing on February 9, 1951, and the requested change in the place of hearing is predicated upon the expense which would be involved in bringing applicant's three witnesses to Chicago to testify in the proceeding; and

It further appearing, that during the course of the oral argument herein, counsel for both applicants agreed to a proposal whereby the nonengineering evidence in the respective cases would be presented in Chicago, and that upon completion thereof, the hearing would be continued to Washington, D. C., for the taking of the evidence on the engineering aspects of the proceeding; and they further agreed to an advancement of the date of the Chicago hearing from February 9 to January 30, 1951, so that it would fit into the schedule of other field hearings, including the proceeding in docket No. 9837, which is presently scheduled for Chicago, Illinois; and

It further appearing, that the public interest would be served by adopting the plan of presentation of evidence agreed upon by counsel and by advancing the date of hearing from February 9 to January 30, 1951;

An answer filed January 16, 1951, by Robert C. Crabb, opposing both the petition to transfer the consolidated proceeding to Washington, D. C., and the alternate proposal to permit Telanserphone, Inc., to present the evidence in support of its application in Washington, D. C.; and

Oral argument having been held this date in which counsel for Telanserphone, Inc., Robert C. Crabb, and the Commission participated; and

It appearing that it is in the public interest that the applicants present testimony in support of their respective applications in a consolidated proceeding in Los Angeles, California, and Telanserphone, Inc., has failed to advance sufficient, good reasons to warrant granting the petition to transfer the Consolidated proceeding to Washington, D. C., or in the alternative, permit it to present the evidence in support of its application in Washington, D. C.;

INCREASED FREIGHT RATES, 1951

At a general session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 1st day of February A. D. 1951.

Upon consideration of a petition filed January 26, 1951, by Baltimore Steam Packet Company, Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, and Philadelphia & Norfolk Steamship Company, asking leave to intervene in the above-entitled proceeding and that they be granted authority to increase their freight rates and charges in the same manner and to the same extent as prayed for by the railroad petitioners; and

Upon consideration of a petition filed January 31, 1951, by the Inland Waterways Corp., operating Federal Barge Lines, asking leave to intervene in the above-entitled proceeding for the purpose of securing authority to increase its rates and charges in the manner and to the extent therein set forth; and for the purpose of obtaining an order limiting increases in combination rates on coal applied over barge-line through routes to the maximum increase authorized by corresponding all-rail routes; and

Upon consideration of a petition filed January 25, 1951, by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad Company and Chicago Heights Terminal Transfer Railroad Company, asking leave to intervene in the above-entitled proceeding and asking for authority to make the same increases in freight rates and charges as those sought by the railroad petitioners, except that the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad Company does not wish to increase certain line-haul carload rates on automobiles and petroleum products:

It is ordered, That said petitioners be allowed to intervene in the above-entitled proceeding and be treated as parties thereto, provided that hearings and further proceedings concerning these petitions of intervention shall be held commencing February 19, 1951, concurrently with the hearing now set in this proceeding and that the Special Rules of Procedure and Instructions governing the hearing upon motions for interim relief shall also apply to these intervening petitions, including the stipulation as to the use of Commission's records and other data; and

Upon consideration of a petition filed January 29, 1951, by the Middle Atlantic Conference (an organization of motor common carriers) asking leave to intervene in the above-entitled proceeding, and asking for authority to make simultaneous increases in freight rates and charges of certain motor common carriers with the railroad petitioners:

It is ordered, That said petition be, and it is hereby, denied, for the reason that it unduly broadens the issues, and for the further reason that the subject matter of this intervening petition can be more conveniently and appropriately handled upon the filing of a separate petition:

And it is further ordered, That notice of this order be given to the general public by depositing a copy in the office of the Secretary of the Commission at Washington, D. C., and by filing a copy thereof with the Director, Division of the Federal Register.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-2548]

CENTRAL LOUISIANA ELECTRIC CO., INC., ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING AND NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING

In the Matter of Central Louisiana Electric Company, Inc., Forrest C. Lattner, and Frances H. Lattner, File No. 70-2548.

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 31st day of January A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Central Louisiana Electric Company, Inc. ("Central Louisiana"), a public utility holding company which has filed an exemption statement on Form U-3A-2 pursuant to Rule U-2 promulgated under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and Forrest C. Lattner and Frances H. Lattner, affiliates of Gulf Public Service Co., Inc. ("Gulf"), have filed a joint application pursuant to sections 9 (a) (2) and 10 of the act and Rules U-20, U-21, and U-22 promulgated under the act.

All interested persons are referred to said application, which is on file in the office of this Commission, for a statement of the transactions therein proposed which may be summarized as follows:

Central Louisiana has entered into an agreement with Gulf and Forrest C. Lattner, John H. Rauscher and Charles C. Pierce (herein referred to as the "Contracting Stockholders"), common stockholders of Gulf owning 73,100 shares of such company, under which Central Louisiana proposes to acquire some or all the common stock of Gulf, an electric public utility company operating in the State of Louisiana. The agreement provides, among other things, that:

1. Central Louisiana will amend its Articles of Incorporation, subject to authorization by its stockholders, to increase its authorized capital stock to $12,500,000, which will be represented by 750,000 shares of common stock, par value $10 per share, and 50,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $100 per share, of which shares of preferred stock 21,480 shares shall be designated as "4.5 percent Preferred Stock";

2. The Contracting Stockholders will exchange the shares of common stock of Gulf owned by them for shares of common stock and preferred stock of Central Louisiana at the rate of 1/10 of a share of common stock and 1/25 of a share of preferred stock of Central Louisiana for each share of common stock of Gulf owned by them;

3. Central Louisiana will make the same offer of exchange with respect to the remaining 463,900 shares of common stock of Gulf, presently outstanding in the hands of the public, such offer to remain open for acceptance for a minimum period of three weeks after the effective date of the Registration Statement filed under the Securities Act of 1933, or for such longer period as may be agreed upon by the contracting parties or as may be ordered by the Commission;

4. The agreement will not become effective unless, in addition to the necessary approvals by this Commission and the Louisiana Public Service Commission, the holders of at least 429,600 shares (80 percent) of common stock of Gulf, including the Contracting Stockholders, accept the offer of exchange, and unless Central Louisiana receives a satisfactory ruling from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that such an exchange will be a tax free reorganization of Central Louisiana and Gulf, within the meaning of the Internal Revenue Code;

5. The closing date shall be on March 7, 1951, unless otherwise agreed upon by the contracting parties, but in any event not later than June 30, 1951; and

6. Central Louisiana may, prior to the closing date, declare a stock dividend to the holders of its common stock in the amount of 1/20 of a share of common stock for each share outstanding, and furthermore Central Louisiana may sell, within 120 days after the closing date, not more than 36,000 shares of its common stock, such additional shares to be subject to the preemptive rights applicable to the then outstanding shares of common stock of Central Louisiana, including any shares of common stock of Central Louisiana issued in exchange for common stock of Gulf pursuant to the agreement.

Under said agreement Gulf may declare a regular quarterly dividend at the rate of 20 cents per share on its common stock; provided, however, that in order to coordinate the payment of dividends on the common stocks of Gulf and Central Louisiana during the quarterly dividend period in which the closing date occurs, Gulf may declare a special dividend payable to stockholders of record on the day preceding the closing date which will adjust the dividend payments according to a formula set forth in such agreement.

At the proposed rate of exchange and assuming that the holders of all the outstanding shares of common stock of Gulf accept the exchange, Central Louisiana will issue an additional 214,800 shares of common stock and 21,480 shares of 4.5 percent preferred stock.

The application states that for the most part the electric properties of Gulf are located in territory adjacent to the Central Louisiana property and can be integrated into the Central Louisiana system.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to said application and that said application shall not be granted except by further order of this Commission:

It is ordered, That a hearing on said application pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act and the rules thereunder be held on February 14, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. Any person desiring to be heard, or wishing to participate in the proceedings, shall file with the Secretary of the Commission on or before February 9, 1951, a written request relative thereto as provided by Rule XVII of the Commission's rules of practice.

It is further ordered, That Edward C. Johnson or any other officer or officers of the Commission designated for that purpose shall preside at the hearing on such matters. The officer so designated to preside at such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of the act and a Hearing Officer under the Commission's Rules of Practice.

The Division of Public Utilities of the Commission having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the application and that upon the basis thereof, the following matters and questions are presented for consideration by the Commission without prejudice, however, to the specification of additional matters or questions upon further examination:

6. Whether, and to what extent, the new charter provisions and any provisions concerning the future management of Central Louisiana are appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors.

7. Whether the fees, expenses and remunerations to be paid by Central Louisiana in connection with the proposed transactions are necessary services and are reasonable in amount.

9. Whether, if the transactions proposed herein are approved, it is necessary and appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers to impose any terms and conditions.

It is further ordered, That at such hearing particular attention be directed to the foregoing matters.

It is further ordered, That a copy of this notice shall be mailed by registered mail to the Federal Power Commission, the Louisiana Public Service Commission, the mayors of the communities of Zwolle, Many, Mansfield, DeQuincy, De Ridder, Leesville, Glenmora, Opelousas, New Iberia, Breaux Bridge, Franklinton, and Alexandria, Louisiana; and to Central Louisiana Electric Co., Inc., Forrest C. NOTICE OF APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 31st day of January A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Albert C. Rachlin ("Rachlin"), located at Academy Building, 17 Academy Street, Newark 2, New Jersey, and Bankers Securities Corporation ("Bankers"), located at No. 1315 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 7, Pennsylvania, an investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, have filed a joint application pursuant to section 17 (b) of the act for an order of the Commission exempting from the provisions of section 17 (a) of the act, the proposed purchase by Rachlin of (1) 76,948 shares of the common stock of Union Building Co. Rachlin is Vice President and Treasurer of Union and presently owns of record 10,022 shares, or 5.18 percent of the 193,300 shares of Union's common stock, being the outstanding capital stock of said company. As of said date, Bankers owned 14.74 percent, and its 95 percent owned subsidiary, Southwestern Market Company, owned 12.59 percent, together a total of 27.33 percent of Land Title's capital stock. Accordingly, Land Title may be presumed to be a controlled company of Bankers within the provisions of section 2 (a) (9) of the act.

On January 11, 1951, Rachlin also entered into an agreement with Greenfield Company whereby Greenfield Company will cause to be sold to Rachlin such number of shares of Union (not less than 44,000 shares and not more than 54,000 shares) as may be designated by Greenfield Company upon due notice to Rachlin, for the price of $12.00 per share, all cash. Greenfield), with respect to 14,818 shares of Union owned by it, on behalf of Albert M. Greenfield with respect to 5,125 shares of Union owned by him, on behalf of Land Title (with respect to the said 20,011 shares of Union owned by it (constituting all of such shares owned by Land Title) and for and on behalf of other persons, not controlled by Bankers, who may avail themselves of Greenfield Company's agency under the agreement.

The purchase by Rachlin of the aforesaid shares of common stock of Union owned by Bankers and by Land Title, constituting a purchase of securities by and affiliated person (Rachlin) of an affiliated person (Union) of a registered investment company (Bankers) from such registered investment company, and from a company controlled (Land Title) by such investment company, is prohibited by section 17 (a) of the act unless an exemption therefrom is granted by the Commission pursuant to section 17 (b) of the act.

1. The rights heretofore acquired in the name of the United States of America for the use of the Department of Agriculture (Forest Service).
2. Any fact or condition which would be disclosed by an accurate survey or by an examination of the premises and which is not disclosed by the public records of Polk County, Tennessee, including all right, title, and claim of third parties who may be in occupation.
3. Parcel 4 subject to the mineral rights reserved for T. M. Burkett by the deed recorded in Deed Book 32, page 458, in the Register's Office of Polk County, Tennessee, and subject to the adverse claim of F. B. Linder to 120 acres in the NW¼ of Sec. 36 and to a small portion of the SW¼ of Sec. 25, all in T2N, R3E.
4. Parcel 5 subject as to the portion within Sec. 16, T2, R5E, to such rights as may be vested in the State of Tennessee as trustee for the benefit of the common schools of Polk County, Tennessee, and subject to the mineral rights reserved by Thomas J. Knox et al., as to the portions lying in the SE¼ of Sec. 21, the E½ and NW¼ of Sec. 27, the NW¼, SE¼ and SW¼ of Sec. 28, and in Sec. 33, T1, R4E, in the deeds recorded in Deed Book 4, Pages 120 and 337, in Polk County; also, subject to the mineral rights reserved for J. L. Vaughan et ux, as to the portion in the SE¼ of Sec. 17, T2S, R5E, in the Deed recorded in Deed Book 32, Page 458 in said county.
5. Parcels 7 and 15 subject to the mineral rights reserved by Thomas J. Knox et al., as to the portions lying in the SE¼ of Sec. 21, T1, R4E, in the deeds recorded in said county in Deed Book 4, Pages 120 and 337.
6. Parcel 10 subject to the mineral rights reserved by Tennessee Copper Company in the deed recorded in Deed Book 12, Page 450, in said county.
7. Parcels 11, 12, and 20 subject to such rights as may be vested in the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company to railroad rights of way. In addition, Parcel 20 was acquired subject to the mineral rights reserved by Tennessee Copper Company in the deed recorded in said county in Deed Book 26, Page 308.
8. Parcel 19 subject to the mineral rights reserved by Tennessee Copper Company in the deed recorded in Deed Book 26, Page 306, in said county.
9. Trace AR-51 subject to a reservation by Tennessee Copper Company of the right to damage trees and vegetation by smoke, fumes, gases, etc., from its mining and smelting operations.

The aforementioned agreement between Tennessee Valley Authority and the Department of Agriculture, dated December 4, 1947, is intended to transfer from the Tennessee Valley Authority to the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the use of the Forest Service all lands and rights and interests in lands acquired by the Authority in the name of the United States of America from the Hiwassee-Nolichucky Power Company except the following lands which have been reserved by the Authority:

1. Approximately 80 acres east of and adjacent to Gee Creek;
2. Approximately 4.3 acres lying in the SW¼SW¼ sec. 29, T. 1, R. 4 E., Ocoee District, between the centers of the Hiwassee River and the L. & N. Railroad;
3. That portion of the NW¼ sec. 32, T. 1, R. 4 E., Ocoee District, lying north and west of the center of the L. & N. Railroad and containing approximately 42.7 acres;
4. A strip of land 500 ft. wide through sec. 25, T. 1, R. 4 E., Ocoee District, containing approximately 42.4 acres;
5. Approximately 61 acres located in fractional secs. 15 and 16, F. T. 2 S. R. 5 E., Ocoee District;
6. Approximately 1.4 acres located on the south side of the NW¼NW¼ sec. 21, F. T. 2 S. R. 5 E., Ocoee Districts;
7. A strip of land 500 ft. wide through the N½ sec. 30, F. T. 2 S. R. 5 E., Ocoee District, containing approximately 29.2 acres.

It is expressly agreed and understood that all calls given in the above description, except those bounding or adjacent to the lands reserved by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the land described under the heading "PARCEL SIXTEEN" in the Final Decree are based on the descriptions set out in the Final Decree and the deed from the Ocoee Timber Company to the United States of America of record in Deed Book 17, page 274 in the Register's Office of Polk County, Tennessee.

Also excluded from the transfer to the Department of Agriculture, and reserved by and to the Authority, is a tract of land located in Polk County, State of Tennessee, in the NE¼NW¼ sec. 21, F. T. 2 S., R. 5 E., Ocoee District, approximately 1 mile north of Farner, and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at a point, the coordinates of which are N. 286, 467 and E. 2,505,500, in the north line of sec. 21, from which U. S. Forest Service Monument 323 at the northeast corner of the NW¼ sec. 21 bears S. 71° 59' E., 307 ft.;
From the initial point by bearings and distances,

AUTHORITY: §§ 91.1 to 91.12 issued under sec. 6, Pub. Law 760, 81st Cong.

§ 91.1 Summary statement of applicable law. Pursuant to a policy authorized by Public Law 760, 81st Congress, all the mineral interests now held by the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation may be sold to private persons who apply therefor on and after December 5, 1950, and prior to September 6, 1957 (or 7 years from the date the mineral interests were acquired by the Corporation, whichever is later), and who at the time of application are the owners of the surface of the land. In areas where it has been determined by the Secretary of Agriculture that there is no active mineral development or leasing, the mineral interests covered by a single application shall be sold for $1.00. In other areas the mineral interests are to be sold at their fair market value, fixed in accordance with procedures authorized by the law. Area determinations may be revised from time to time, and whether the mineral interests will be sold at $1.00 or at fair market value is dependent upon the rule applicable to the area at the time application is made. Applicants are required to establish, at their own expense, their title to the surface of the land covered by the application to the satisfaction of the Corporation.

§ 91.2 Delegation of authorities and responsibilities—(a) Delegation by the Secretary of Agriculture to Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation. By order dated October 16, 1950 (15 F. R. 6998), the Secretary of Agriculture has authorized the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation to sell and convey the mineral interests heretofore or hereafter acquired by it in accordance with the policy expressed in Public Law 760, 81st Congress, with respect to the mineral interests described in section 1 thereof. This order also delegates to the Corporation all authorities, powers, functions, and duties vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by said act with respect to the disposition of mineral interests heretofore or hereafter acquired by the Corporation, except the power and authority to determine areas in which there is no active mineral development or leasing. The order further authorizes the Corporation, subject to the Secretary's approval, to issue rules and regulations necessary to carry out this disposal program and authorizes the Corporation, in its discretion, to redelegate upon such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, powers and authorities conferred upon it.

(b) Delegation of authority to district vice presidents. Subject to the general supervision and direction of the Central Office of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Washington office"), one vice president of the Corporation in each farm credit district (hereinafter referred to as "district"), designated by the Executive Committee of the Corporation, shall be responsible for the activities relating to the disposal of the mineral interests of the Corporation and for the supervision of personnel directly engaged in this program in the particular district in which he is situated. Any other vice president of the Corporation in each district is authorized to act for the vice president in charge of the program in the latter's absence or inability to act for any other cause.

§ 91.3 Area determinations—(a) Original determinations. The Secretary of Agriculture has reserved to his office the authority conferred by Public Law 760 to determine the areas in which mineral interests shall be sold at $1.00. This determination will be made on the basis of information furnished by the interested agencies of the Department and after consultation with the Secretary of the Interior. The Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation has been requested in connection with original determinations to submit information by counties on active mineral development or leasing. Each district office will be advised of the area determinations made by the Secretary.

(b) Information to be furnished in the event of changed conditions. If the district vice president receives information of changed conditions in any area designated as an inactive area which in his judgment would warrant reclassification of the area to an active area, he should submit such information immediately in writing to the Washington office.

§ 91.4 Notice to surface owners—(a) Preparation of lists of surface owners. The district vice president will inaugurate the disposal program by sending a notice to the apparent owner of the surface notifying him of his rights under the law. For this purpose it will be necessary to determine as accurately as feasible the name and address of the apparent present owner of each tract where the Corporation has a mineral reservation. Instructions already issued in this connection suggest the development of cards or lists by counties describing the tracts, and a check of the county tax records or other sources of information to determine the name and address of the apparent present owner. In some cases it may be advisable to send the list to county officials or other persons capable of obtaining the information. It will be important to select the most efficient method possible for obtaining the required names.

(b) Form of notice in inactive areas; time of mailing. A form of notice (MD–a) should be used in notifying surface owners in inactive areas. This form of notice should be mailed as promptly as possible after receipt of area determination information, since transfers of mineral interests of the Corporation in the inactive areas will be made without appraisal and area determinations may be revised. Transfer in such areas should develop largely as a routine operation, but should be carried forward as expeditiously as possible.

(c) Form of notice in active areas; time of mailing. A form of notice (MD–b) should be used in notifying surface owners in active areas. The district vice president will have discretion as to the time of mailing this notice. Notices may be mailed by selected areas over a period of time. However, the mailings should occur as rapidly as prompt service can be given.

§ 91.5 Application forms—(a) Inactive areas. A combined form of application and offer to purchase mineral interests in inactive areas (MD–c) has been furnished the district vice president. This application form should be mailed to the surface owners with the form of notice.

(b) Active areas. A form of application (MD–d) for use in accepting applications in active areas has been furnished the district vice president. This form may be adapted, if necessary, to meet local requirements, but prior approval of the Washington office should be obtained as to major revisions. This application form should be mailed to the surface owners with the form of notice.

§ 91.6 Closing sales in inactive areas. After the executed application and offer form and the certificate of title or abstract have been reviewed and the vice president is satisfied as to the ownership of the land as of the date of application and that all requirements have been met, he should execute and mail to the surface owner a quitclaim deed for the mineral interests, retaining a duplicate copy for the file.

§ 91.7 Determination of fair market values. In active areas, the owners of the surface land may purchase the mineral interests owned by the Corporation in such land at the fair market value of such mineral interests at the time the purchase price is mutually agreed upon. Since area designations are made on a county basis, it is recognized there may be tracts in a county designated as an active area on which appraisals may support sales at $1.00.

(a) Definition of fair market value. Fair market value as applied to mineral interests herein is defined as being equal to the price which a reasonably informed buyer might be expected to pay and which a reasonably informed seller might be expected to accept for the mineral interests in a tract of land should such mineral interests be actively offered for sale on the open market, recognizing that such price may be less than the highest price obtained for mineral interests in a speculative area or more than the price for which they can be sold readily in areas where the market is currently domant.

(b) Appraisals. The district vice president in charge of the program is responsible for the determination of fair market values of Corporation-owned mineral interests in his district. He is authorized to use such means as are at his disposal in order to determine such values on a fair and equitable basis; he may, at his discretion, procure outside professional or expert advice to assist him in the determination of such values, bearing in mind, however, that the cost of such outside services should be kept to a reasonable minimum and shall be proportionate to the value of the minerals involved and the chances of making a sale.

Due to varying conditions in different districts, States, and areas, it is impracticable for the Washington office to prescribe uniform methods of determining fair market values. There are, however, certain factors that may be applicable in most areas. Some of these are:

1. Such geological information as is available.
2. Leasing activity.
3. Lease bonus prices.
4. Lease rental prices.
5. Volume of trading activity in minerals and leases.
6. Prices paid for minerals in immediate area.
7. Proximity to drilling or mining activity.
8. Results of previous drilling or mining operations.

(c) Approvals required in fixing fair market value. While the district vice president is responsible for the final determination of the fair market value as the sale price for the particular mineral property, in all cases the recommendation or concurrence of one other person is required. If the appraisal is made by a person other than the vice president, such person's recommendation and the determination by the vice president are sufficient. In cases where a district vice president makes the appraisal, he shall obtain the concurrence of one other vice president of the Corporation in the fair market value that is established. When the tract of land involved is located within any known geological structure of a producing oil or gas field, the case shall be submitted to the Washington office prior to sale for approval of the fair market value being established.

(d) Recording appraisal information. The information having a bearing on the decision in each case shall be made a matter of permanent record. Such information shall disclose the factors that were the basis for arriving at the fair market value. It is recognized that such information may be uniformly applicable to several tracts, but in the folder relating to each tract appraised, reference shall be made to the file where the applicable appraisal data are recorded.

§ 91.8 Closing sales in active areas. After the mineral interests in a tract upon which an application has been filed have been appraised, the district vice president should get in touch with the applicant and undertake to negotiate a sales contract substantially in accordance with the form (MD–e) which has been provided for such purpose. If there is any question as to whether the Corporation (a) owns all the mineral interest described in its reservation, or (b) has a marketable title to such interest, full disclosure of these facts should be made on a case basis to the purchaser before a contract is entered into, in order that he may assure himself as to the interests he would acquire from the Corporation. Where the facts developed by the purchaser show that the interest owned by the Corporation is less than that stated in the reservation, the sales price should be adjusted to conform to the fair market value of the interest owned by the Corporation. If it appears that the Corporation holds no interest under its reservation, a quitclaim deed should be made without consideration. The sales contract should be signed by all persons owning an interest in the land at the time of application. In the event some of the owners are not available, or are minors, or are incompetents, or if the ownership is in an estate, the district vice president, in his discretion, may contract with less than all the owners, with the understanding, however, that conveyance will be made only to all persons having an interest in the land as shown by the title evidence. After the district vice president is satisfied that all requirements of the contract have been met, he should execute a quitclaim deed for the mineral interests, retaining a duplicate copy for the file, and proceed to close the sale.

§ 91.9 Title requirements; review required by district personnel. The law requires that applicants shall establish, at their own expense, their title to the surface land. The general requirement under this provision is that the applicant furnish at his own expense a certificate based upon an examination of the records from date of conveyance of the surface by the Corporation to date of application prepared by a practicing attorney at law setting forth the ownership of the surface of the land as of the date of the application, or an abstract of title covering such period. The district vice president shall make or cause to be made such review of this certificate or abstract as he deems necessary to establish that it is regular on its face, and that it shows a marketable title in the surface owners of the land as of the date of the application. Title requirements with respect to taxes, liens, and easements may be waived. In cases where producing or proven minerals are being sold for a relatively large consideration, the district vice president, in his discretion, may require in the contract of sale that the applicant furnish a short form abstract of title covering the period from date of conveyance of the surface by the Corporation to the date of the application, or other satisfactory title evidence, such as title insurance or title certificate issued by a title company, covering the same period of time.

§ 91.10 Conveyance. The district general counsel will be responsible for preparing the form of quitclaim deed to be used in each State, except that each deed shall contain the following uniform recitals:

1. This quitclaim deed is executed and delivered by Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, acting under the authority of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Act, as amended, and the order of the Secretary of Agriculture, dated October 16, 1950 (15 F. R. 6998), made pursuant to Public Law 760, 81st Congress, approved September 6, 1950 (64 Stat. 769).

2. No member of or delegate to Congress, or Resident Commissioner shall be admitted to any share or part of this quitclaim deed or to any benefit which may arise therefrom, but this provision shall not be construed to extend to this quitclaim deed if made to a corporation for its general benefit.

Recording of the deed will be the responsibility of the surface owner, and it may be advisable to emphasize in the letter of transmittal the importance of his putting it of record promptly after receipt.

§ 91.11 General provisions relating to sales—(a) Eligible parties. Sales may be made only to private persons who are owners of the surface at the date of the application. The term "private persons" includes private corporations but public bodies are not eligible to purchase. Guardians, legal representatives of the estates of private persons, and trustees of property of which the beneficiaries are private persons, are eligible to purchase upon establishing to the satisfaction of the Corporation their authority to make the purchase as holders of the legal title to the surface land.

(b) Interests sold. The Corporation will not sell less than its entire mineral interest in the particular tract covered by a single application and will not convey to less than all the surface owners of such tract of land, all of whom must be eligible to purchase.

(c) Terms. All sales shall be for cash.

(d) Taxes. Any validly levied taxes which are due and payable on the mineral interests on or before the effective date of the sales contract and for which the Corporation, in its sole discretion, determines it is liable, shall be paid by the Corporation before a deed is issued. Tax claims on which the Corporation is denying liability should be the subject of special agreement in the contract with the purchaser.

(e) Assignment of leases and division of lease income. If all or any portion of the mineral interests are leased on the date of delivery of deed, the Corporation shall transfer to the surface owner as of such date all of its right, title, and interest as lessor in and to such lease. This may be done by a transfer included in the deed or by a separate assignment. The Corporation shall be entitled to all rentals that became due and payable, whether or not paid, on or before the effective date of the sales contract, and the surface owner shall be entitled to all rents that become due and payable after such date.

(f) Fissionable materials. Sales made under Public Law 760 should not contain a reservation of fissionable materials since Executive Order 9908, dated December 5, 1947, is not applicable to such sales. Fissionable materials reserved by the Corporation in its own name pursuant to Executive Order 9701 dated March 4, 1946, constitute mineral interests held by the Corporation and, therefore, are subject to sale under Public Law 760.

(g) Reproduction of forms. Each district will be responsible for preparing the necessary reproductions of the forms to be used, and five copies of each form prepared should be furnished to the Washington office. Sufficient copies of Public Law 760, to permit the enclosure of one copy with each notice to surface owners, have been furnished each district vice president in charge of the program.

(h) Exchange of information with Farmers Home Administration personnel. The district vice president should establish contact with each State Director of the Farmers Home Administration in his district and should arrange for the informal exchange of information with such State Directors particularly with respect to values being established and sales being made in counties in which both agencies have mineral reservations.

§ 91.12 Disposal of reservations contained in real estate sales contracts. A reservation in a real estate sales contract of a portion of the mineral interests in property subject to the contract is not considered a mineral interest of the Corporation which is subject to being sold under Public Law 760. However, in keeping with the policy of the act, the district vice president may negotiate a revision of any such contract so as to eliminate the provision for a reservation of mineral interests. The requirements of these regulations with respect to sales of mineral interests shall, insofar as practicable, apply to such contract renegotiations.

Issued this 26th day of January 1951.

Executive Vice President,
Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

Chapter IX—Production and Marketing Administration (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

[Amdt. 1]

PART 957—IRISH POTATOES GROWN IN CERTAIN DESIGNATED COUNTIES IN IDAHO AND IN MALHEUR COUNTY, OREG.

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

a. Findings. (1) Pursuant to marketing agreement No. 93 and Order No. 57, as amended (15 F. R. 311), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in certain designated counties in Idaho and Malheur County, Oregon, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato Committee, established pursuant to said marketing agreement and amended order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the amended limitation of shipments, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice and engage in public rule making procedure (5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that the time intervening between the date when information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and this amendment relieves restrictions on the handling of Irish potatoes grown in the area regulated by said marketing agreement and amended order.

b. Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) of § 957.307 (16 F. R. 1) shall, on and after the effective date hereof, read as follows:

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of the Commerce

[NPA Order M-5, as Amended Feb. 1, 1951]

ALUMINUM

GENERAL

This amendment to NPA Order M-5, dated October 27, 1950, is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-5 as follows: It redesignates §§ 26.1 to 26.13 as sections 1 to 13, a new table replaces the one in section 5 (b) and the percentages are changed in paragraphs (a) and (b) in section 6.

As amended, this order now reads as follows:

1. What this order does.
2. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies.
3. Required delivery dates.
4. Rejection of rated orders.
5. Limitations for acceptance of rated orders.
6. Total tonnage limitation for acceptance of rated orders.
7. Distributors and jobbers.
8. Scheduled programs.
9. NPA assistance in placing rated orders.
10. Applications for adjustment or exception.
11. Communications.
12. Reports.
13. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 13 issued under sec. 704, Public Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; Sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to primary and secondary producers, fabricators, distributors and jobbers of aluminum and provides rules for placing, accepting, and scheduling rated orders for aluminum. Its purpose is to make possible maximum production of aluminum by reducing to a minimum disruption of normal distribution and by providing equitable distribution of rated orders among all aluminum producers and fabricators and all distributors and jobbers of aluminum. It supplements NPA Reg. 2, but only those provisions of Reg. 2 which are contradictory to this order are superseded, and all other provisions of that order continue to apply to the aluminum industry.

SEC. 2. Aluminum forms and products to which this order applies. This order applies to the following forms and products of aluminum.

Rod and bar.
Wire (under 3/8").
Cable (electrical transmission only).
Rivets.
Forgings and pressings (before machining).
Impact extrusions.
Castings.
Rolled structural shapes (angles, channels, zees, tees, etc.).
Extruded shapes.
Sheet, strip and plate.
Slugs.
Foil.
Tubing.
Tube blooms.
Powder (including atomized, granular, flake, paste and pigment).
Ingot, pig, billets, slabs.

SEC. 3. Required delivery dates. A rated order for aluminum in the forms listed in section 2 must specify shipment on a particular date or during a particular month, which in no case may be earlier than required by the person placing the order. The producer of aluminum must schedule the order for shipment within the requested month as close to the requested shipment date as is practicable considering the need for maximum production.

SEC. 4. Rejection of rated orders. Producers and fabricators of aluminum in the forms listed in section 2 need not accept a rated order which is received less than 60 days prior to the first day of the month in which shipment is requested, unless specifically directed to accept the order by the National Production Authority.

SEC. 5. Limitations for acceptance of rated orders. Subject to the tonnage limitation stated in section 6 and unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority:

(a) In order to make provision for a supply of metal to independent fabricators of aluminum, producers of primary aluminum shall accept rated orders from such fabricators up to 6½ percent of their scheduled production each month of primary pig and ingot;

(b) No aluminum producer or fabricator shall be required to accept rated orders for the products listed below for shipment in any one month in excess of the following percentages of his average monthly shipments of such products during the first eight months of 1950:

	Percent
Sheet (coiled and flat), Plate, Circles, and Blanks	40

TITLE 33—NAVIGATION AND NAVIGABLE WATERS

Chapter II—Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army

PART 208—FLOOD CONTROL REGULATIONS

HEART BUTTE DAM AND RESERVOIR, HEART RIVER, NORTH DAKOTA

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of sections 7 and 9 of the act of Congress approved December 22, 1944 (58 Stat. 890; 33 U. S. C. 709), the following regulations are hereby prescribed to govern the use of storage capacity for flood control purposes in the Heart Butte Reservoir on Heart River, Grant County, North Dakota, and the operation of Heart Butte Dam for flood control purposes.

§ 208.36 Heart Butte Dam and Reservoir, Heart River, N. Dak. The Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, represented by its appropriate Regional Director, hereinafter referred to as the Regional Director, shall operate the Heart Butte Dam and Reservoir in the interest of flood control as follows:

(a) The flood control storage capacity of the reservoir, which initially amounts to 150,000 acre feet between elevations 2064.5 and 2094.5, will be operated to restrict discharges to the capacity of the ungated glory-hole type shaft spillway except as necessary for irrigation requirements, unless otherwise directed by the District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, in charge of the locality, hereinafter referred to as the District Engineer. Whenever the reservoir is above elevation 2064.5 and below elevation 2067.0, the Regional Director will at the request of the District Engineer make supplementary releases up to the full capacity of the irrigation outlet for the purpose of expediting evacuation of the flood control storage. Oral instructions of the District Engineer to the Regional Director shall be confirmed in writing under date of the day issued.

(b) The discharge characteristics of the ungated glory-hole type shaft spillway (having an estimated capacity of 4,450 c. f. s. with water surface at maximum flood control pool elevation 2094.5), shall be maintained in accordance with the construction plans (Bureau of Reclamation Specifications No. 1992).

(c) Proposed schedules of irrigation releases and storage changes, if available, and current operating data shall be provided to the District Engineer by the Regional Director. These data shall be tabulated daily and furnished periodically as required, and shall include such items as: reservoir elevation; reservoir storage; inflow; discharge; and pertinent available hydrologic data.

(d) Whenever the reservoir level reaches or exceeds elevation 2064.5 or flood discharges appear imminent, the Regional Director shall report at once to the District Engineer by telephone, telegraph, or radio and as requested thereafter until the reservoir level falls to elevation 2064.5 or below and flood discharges cease.

(e) Nothing in the regulations of this section shall be construed to require that releases shall be made at rates or in a manner that would be inconsistent with requirements for protecting the dam and reservoir from damage.

(f) All elevations stated in this section are at the Heart Butte-Dam and are referred to the datum in use at that location.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine

DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING TO CONSIDER THE ADVISABILITY OF EITHER REVOKING THE JAPANESE BEETLE QUARANTINE OR EXTENDING THE QUARANTINE TO GEORGIA, ILLINOIS, INDIANA, KENTUCKY, MICHIGAN, NORTH CAROLINA, AND SOUTH CAROLINA

The Secretary of Agriculture has information that the Japanese beetle (Popillia japonica Newm.), a dangerous insect which is known to exist in portions of the States of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, and West Virginia, and in the District of Columbia, has been discovered in certain parts of the States of Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

It is necessary, therefore, to consider the advisability of either (a) revoking notice of Quarantine No. 48 and supplementary regulations on account of the Japanese beetle (7 CFR 301.48 et seq.), or (b) extending this quarantine to the additional States in which the beetle has been found and regulating the movement from these States or areas therein where the beetle has been discovered of possible host material, comprising (1) soil, humus, compost, and decomposed manure; (2) forest, field, nursery, or greenhouse-grown woody or herbaceous plants or parts thereof for planting purposes; (3) cut flowers; and (4) fresh fruits and vegetables.

The interstate movement of these host materials from quarantined states has been regulated for many years for the purpose of retarding the artificial spread of the Japanese beetle and preventing the establishment of new centers of infestation. The last public hearing at which the Japanese beetle situation was similarly considered was held November 16, 1935. Since that hearing, improved methods of chemically controlling the beetle, the introduction of biological control methods, and more extensive distribution of information concerning means of protecting agricultural crops and home plantings against this pest have made possible cheaper and more easily applied means of localized eradication of the insect. During the same interval there has also occurred some rather extensive spread of the beetle for considerable distances from the Federally-regulated area.

Cooperative Federal-State chemical control programs have been carried on at most of these isolated infestations. Movement of host plant material from such sections has largely been under the provisions of State quarantines.

In view of these improvements in means of combatting the beetle, as well as the extent of the beetle spread in recent years, it is considered advisable to review all these recent developments. For this purpose a public hearing is being called.

At this hearing there will be considered (a) whether the continued spread of the Japanese beetle by natural flight and artificial dissemination has been so extensive and persistent as to render undesirable and inexpedient further expenditures by the Federal Government in attempting to retard distribution of the pest in interstate commerce; (b) whether control methods have been so improved that it is now feasible for the Federal Government to relinquish its control attempts to the States, municipalities, or individuals affected; (c) whether the advantages of maintaining the Federal quarantine regulations justify the cost of administration and the expense to the shippers of complying with the requirements; and (d) whether the States in which the Japanese beetle has not yet become established are able to provide under State authority, more advantageously and economically than can be done through Federal action, protection against the establishment of new centers of infestation carried by commercial and private shipments of infested products.

Notice is, therefore, hereby given that, in accordance with section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act (37 Stat. 318, as amended, 7 U. S. C. 161), a public hearing will be held before the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine in Room 509, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Fourteenth Street and Independence Avenue NW., Washington, D. C., at 10 a. m., March 30, 1951, in order that any person interested in the proposed revocation or revision may appear and be heard, either in person or by attorney. Any interested person who desires to do so may submit his views on these subjects or written data or arguments thereon, and may file such views, data, or arguments with the Chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., on or before March 28, 1951.

[SEAL] CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

NOTICES

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

Military Renegotiation Policy and Review Board

CONTRACTS CONTAINING THE RENEGOTIATION ARTICLE ENTERED INTO BY OR ON BEHALF OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE, INCLUDING THE DEPARTMENTS OF THE ARMY, THE NAVY AND AIR FORCE

Contracts containing the Renegotiation Article entered into by or on behalf of the Department of Defense, including the Departments of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force through September 30, 1950 exclusive of those previously reported and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Pursuant to the note to § 423.322-1 (c) of the Military Renegotiation Regulations, six lists of numbers of prime contracts which contain the Renegotiation Article, together with the names of the contractors holding such contracts, have been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The last of these lists included information supplied by the Departments of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force and extended through June 30, 1950 and appeared in the October 27, 1950 issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. The following list includes contracts entered into through September 30, 1950, but excludes those previously reported in the listings through June 30, 1950. Although a contract is not subject to renegotiation, one or more amendments of such contract may be subject thereto (see MRR 423.332-2). In such cases, only the subject amendments are listed. Subcontractors receiving orders which refer to any such partially listed prime contracts are cautioned to communicate with their customers to ascertain whether it is to the renegotiable or to the non-renegotiable portion of the prime contract that their orders relate. Contracts over $1,000, but under $5,000, have been omitted from this list; however, the omission does not affect the renegotiability of such contracts.

Publication of these lists is for the sole purpose of disseminating information to help contractors and subcontractors identify sales which are subject to renegotiation. Although every effort has been made to have the lists complete and accurate, the omission of the number of a contract subject to the Renegotiation Act of 1948 does not relieve the contractor and the subcontractors thereunder from renegotiation. Conversely, the inclusion in a published list of the number of a contract which is not subject to the act will not make the contractor or subcontractors thereunder subject to renegotiation. The Renegotiation Article is not physically present in some of the contracts listed herein. However, it is considered that such contracts are required to contain the Article and are therefore subject to the Renegotiation Act of 1948. Consequently, the numbers of such contracts are published herein for the same purpose of information as those in which the Article is physically present.

Under legislation applicable to fiscal years starting after June 30, 1949 the scope of the Renegotiation Act of 1948 was broadened substantially. Such legislation, by generally making all negotiated contracts by or on behalf of the Department of Defense, including the Departments of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force subject to the act, has very much simplified the identification of renegotiable business. For this reason, as well as the fact that in the last few months the physical number of subject contracts has greatly increased, the Military Renegotiation Policy and Review Board has decided to discontinue these publications after one more quarterly edition, i. e., for the period from October 1 to December 31, 1950.

FRANK L. ROBERTS,
Chairman.

2. As to applications regularly filed prior to 8:30 a. m., November 16, 1948, and are for the type of site for which the land is classified, this order shall become effective upon the date it is signed.

3. As to the land not covered by applications referred to in paragraph 2, this order shall not become effective to permit leasing under the Small Tract Act until 10 a. m., March 30, 1951. At that time such land shall, subject to valid existing rights, become subject to application as follows:

Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their application by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

6. All of the land will be leased in tracts of approximately 2½ acres, each being approximately 330 by 330 feet.

7. Leases will be for a period of three years at an annual rental of $5 payable for the entire lease period in advance of the issuance of the lease. Leases will contain an option to purchase clause at the appraised value of $50 per acre, application for which may be filed at or after the expiration of one year from date the lease is issued.

8. Tracts will be subject to existing rights-of-way and to rights-of-way not exceeding 33 feet in width along or near the edges thereof for road purposes and public utilities. Such rights-of-way may be utilized by the Federal Government, or the State, county or municipality in which the tract is situated, or by any agency thereof. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice of public hearing to consider the advisability of (1) prohibiting or restricting the movement of certain plants and plant products from the Virgin Islands of the United States to other parts of the United States, and (2) modifying by making more stringent or less stringent, or lifting, certain quarantines governing the domestic movement of plants and plant products from the territories, possessions and districts of the United States.

Pursuant to section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161), notice is hereby given that the Secretary of Agriculture is considering the advisability of (1) prohibiting or restricting the movement of certain plants and plant products from the Virgin Islands of the United States to other parts of the United States, and (2) modifying, by making more stringent, or less stringent, or lifting, certain quarantines governing the domestic movement of plants and plant products from the territories, possessions, and districts of the United States. The specific quarantines, orders, and regulations are listed and described hereinafter.

The Plant Quarantine Act was formerly not thought to be applicable in the Virgin Islands of the United States, and, hence, plant material arriving in other parts of the United States from those islands was regarded as if it were of foreign origin and subject to the provisions of the foreign plant quarantines. The U. S. Virgin Islands are now considered to be a "district" of the United States within the meaning of the Plant Quarantine Act. Consequently, there is at present no Federal plant quarantine regulation of the movement of any plants or plant products of the Virgin Islands of the United States to Puerto Rico or to the mainland of this country. This creates a gap in the national program of plant quarantine protection of this country.
